days, with fine specimen plants of Boston ferns, palms and araucarias, besides good carnations, calendulas, roses, asters, etc. Business is not rushing, it is reported.

The Wm. F. Kasting Co. is cutting a fine crop of Sunburst roses at the greenhouses at Erie, Pa.

Harry Aust is doing some business in his new store, which opened October 7, for he has had considerable funeral work during the last week. When the store is finished it will be quite attractive, for it will be done in white enamel throughout. He has an excellent show window, with plate glass on three sides, permitting a display to be seen from every direction for a considerable distance. He has a good stock of ferns, palms and cut flowers.

J. G. Pickleman is going to have his store front redecorated with a few coats of white paint. He had planned to have the interior of his store remodeled and redecorated, but war times have made him put it off.

Joseph Streit is growing some fine October Frost mums and some Golden Glow and pink varieties as well. He has begun cutting the white ones, but the others are not quite ready to cut.

The Buffalo Florists' Club will have a ball October 29 and a good time is expected.

Visitors: Arthur Zirkman, of the M. Rice Co., Philadelphia; Arnold Ringier, of the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago; H. C. Neubrand, of A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn.

Harold Taylor has resigned his position at the branch store of W. J. Palmer & Son, and is now with Sullivan the Florist, of Detroit, Mich.

October 6 the monthly meeting of the Buffalo Florists' Club was held at Kasting's hall. Oliver Klingelmeyer was elected financial secretary by a unanimous vote. Refreshments were served. The club will go to North Tonawanda, October 18, to inspect the plant of the King Construction Co. All are looking forward to a good time.

The Colonial Flower Shop had its formal opening Saturday, October 10. It is artistically furnished. The refrigerator, mirrors, shelves, tables and desk are done in a dull gray finish and are hand-carved in colonial design. Colonial rugs add to the attractiveness of the store. Draperies between the store proper and the workrooms add materially to the decorative effect of the store. English ivy in wicker baskets is festooned over the pillars, the molding and the shelving. Classical music is rendered by a Victrola, the cabinet of which is finished in the same colonial gray. The trade wishes A. Kowalski and Miss Bellanca success.

The Market.

The market is in about the same condition as last reported. The retail business has picked up a little, but the extra demand did not clean up the overcrowded market. It will take a good frost to kill off the large quantities of dahlias, cosmos, gladioli and tuberoses that help to crowd the market. Roses are abundant; some extra fine Richmond, Killarney in all varieties, Hadley and Mrs. Ward are seen. Good Beauties and Mrs. Russell have a fine demand, but are somewhat scarce at present. Carnations are more plentiful, but as yet the bulk of them are short-stemmed. Extra fancy carnations are at a premium. Chrysanthemums are coming in more freely and large supplies are expected soon. Smith's Advance and Golden Glow are the varieties most in evidence. A few pink, Polly Rose and Glory of Pacific, will be in this week. Easter lilies are fine and sell well. Valley, too, is in demand. Cosmos is in oversupply and sells cheaply. Dahlias are in great abundance, as the call is for extra fancy varieties only. Gladioli and tuberoses are holding on, but sales on these have fallen off considerably. As yet, violets have no steady call. Anything in greens is to be had in plenty.

Club was held October 8, in Odd Fellows' hall. Owing to the big rain prior to the meeting hour, the attendance was small.

President Bourdet presided, with all the officers in their places. A letter from the Cook County Florists' Club, of Chicago, regarding next year's convention trip to California, was read. The letter was ordered filed for future reference.

G. Denys and A. W. May, growers at Kirkwood, made application for membership. Geo. H. Pring, H. W. Ohlweiler and C. W. Garrett were elected to membership.

The trustees reported having audited the books of the secretary and treasurer and found them in excellent shape. W. S. Wells started a discussion by making a motion to hold a spring flower show, but the motion was left over for further discussion at the November meeting. On motion, it was decided to hang posters in all the wholesale houses advertising the Florists' Club and showing the dates of meetings.

Joseph Hauser staged a vase of his new single red dahlia. A committee consisting of F. Fillmore and Gus Grossart said, "We believe the dahlia on exhibition is the best single red in cultivation. The blooms and stems are a great improvement on the same variety as exhibited last year."

The question box brought out a number of discussions on subjects of interest.

The next meeting will be held November 12.

can Association of Cemetery Superintendents, as was expected, but sent Arthur Gross, who informed us that Mr. Rudd was quite sick and regretted not being able to attend.

W. J. Pilcher says his new rose house is a big success and from the looks of his stock at the store of the W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co., the young stock is producing some high quality blooms. The Hadley are of extra fine quality.

E. W. Guy, G. Grossart, W. E. Ogle, of Belleville; E. Denker, of St. Charles; M. F. Widmer, of Highland; W. A. Rowe, of Kirkwood, and Joseph Hauser, of Webster Groves, braved the rain and attended the meeting of the Florists' club, October 8.

Frank Windler, of the Windler Wholesale Floral Co., says the Hauser single red dahlia is selling even better than last year. With stems three feet long, top prices are commanded.

Oliver K. Sanders, head of the retail store of Sanders Nurseries, on Clara avenue, says they had quite a busy day October 5, with orders for the ball of the Veiled Prophet at the Coliseum.

Edwin P. Niebling, stepson of C. Bergstermann, was married October 8, his bride being Miss Rose E. Schmiederer. The young couple will reside at 3534 Nebraska avenue.

E. J. Fancourt, of the Pennock-Meehan Co., Philadelphia, called on the trade last week. He always is a welcome visitor.

A. Jablonsky, of Olivette, one of our largest carnation growers, is sending in some fine stock. H. G. Berning says it is selling well.

Joseph Hauser has extended an invitation to all florists to visit his dahlia

Seed Trade News.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

President, Lester L. Morse, San Francisco, Cal.; Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

Thirty-third annual convention, San Francisco, Cal., 1915.

JOSEPH SCHILDER, of Schilder Bros., Chillicothe, O., is in Chicago this week.

THE Fain Seed Co., of Jackson, Miss., has been incorporated by J. B. Fain and L. C. Moorer, both of Jackson, with a capital stock of $10,000.

THERE seldom has been a year so favorable for the finishing of the western seed corn crop. The germination in 1915 should test unusually high.

A BRANCH warehouse at Groningen, belonging to Sluis & Groot, Enkhuizen, Holland, was burned September 23, with its contents, in process of drying. Large lots of seed, especially radish and spinach, were destroyed.

THE Commissioner of the Louisiana Department of Agriculture has stated that inasmuch as the last legislature did not provide an appropriation for carrying into effect the new Louisiana seed law, the department has as yet made no rules and regulations, and advises seedsmen to continue their business as heretofore, until further notice.

THE constitutionality of the Nebraska pure seed law is being attacked by the Griswold Seed Co., of Lincoln, Neb., in the case of the state against the seed company on the charge of selling adulterated alfalfa seed. In the trial of the case before Judge Cornish, of the District court, at Lincoln, the information on which the charge is brought was demurred to as well.

IT is stated that in view of the exceptional circumstances this season, more than twenty of the leading British seed firms have agreed not to send out any catalogues before December 25. The council of the Horticultural Trades' Association has voted to approve this decision and also to go further and see if steps can be taken to make this a permanent rule in the seed trade.

ACCORDING to a Holland report published in a British trade paper, "prohibitive action has been taken by the United States government. No more bulbs of any kind are being admitted to the United States unless the shipper can prove that such bulbs have been actually bought or ordered at a certain price by the consignee resident there." This deserves a heading, and "Interesting if True" is suggested.

IT is reported in England that a representative of the U. S. Department of Agriculture has visited the establishment of Kelway & Son, at Langport, and increased the government order for the free seed distribution to where it now calls for nearly seventy tons of garden seeds. It will be recalled that when Kelway & Son announced, last summer, that they had revolutionized the cut flower market last winter. It has brought higher prices than the best carnation, from the start to finish. They will be more sought for this year.

WINTER-FLOWERING ORCHID SWEET PEA, "MRS. A. A. SKACH."

My Original Winter-flowering Orchid or Spencer Sweet Pea

Mr. A. C. Zvolanek, Lompoc, Cal. Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 29, 1914.

Dear Sir: We handled your Winter-flowering Orchid Peas last year in quantity. We sold nearly all of the Peas from Messrs. A. Harvey & Sons, which firm no doubt you know very well. There was nothing in the cut flower line last winter that sold more readily than the Orchid Peas. We believe that all the growers who had your Orchid-flowering Peas last winter had a most profitable crop. As you know, some of the retailers are rather slow to take up something new. After the first purchase of Orchid Peas, however, they invariably bought them in preference. * * *

THE LEO NIESSEN COMPANY.

On account of the War, I will not take any chances to ship many of my foreign orders. This will enable me to send all American orders in full of the following varieties, besides having some to spare:

Pink and White Orchid, White Orchid, Mrs. A. A. Skach (clear pink), Orchid Beauty (dark rose), Venus (white, pink blush), Mrs. M. Spanolin (white), Mrs. Jos. Manda (light pink), all, 1 oz., $4.00.
Lavender Nora, the best and largest clear lavender in cultivation, 1 oz., $1.50.

WINTER-FLOWERING SPENCER MIXTURE

This consists only of the best light pink, pink, white, salmon, lavender and very few dark. Every commercial grower should plant at least one house of these, and he will be taking no risk. 1 oz., $3.00; 4 oz., $10.00; 1 lb., $30.00. Ask for special prices on 10 lbs. or more.

You need one ounce of the Winter Orchid Sweet Pea seed for 100-foot row.

Commercial Sweet Pea Culture, 50c, free with every $5.00 order.

We have all other Winter Grandifloras.

Our Summer-flowering Spencers are the best re-selected in the United States. Ask for list.

received an order from the United States government for forty-four tons of seeds it created wide talk and even provoked a debate in Congress.

RADISH IN MICHIGAN.

Antrim county, Michigan, has been a center for the production of radish seed. Usually the farmers grow it in small pieces under contract, but occasionally one grows a crop on speculation. This year, the same as last, there are three seed houses operating in the vicinity of Bellaire: S. M. Isbell & Co., Jackson, Mich.; Leonard Seed Co., Chicago, and Jerome B. Rice Seed Co., of Detroit and Cambridge. The first named has its usual acreage of radish, but the other two have reduced their acreage probably seventy-five per cent. Isbell probably will ship 600 to 700 bags of radish seed out of Bellaire. Walter Dewey, a farmer of Bellaire, has about 2,000 pounds of Cincinnati Market that is not contracted.

The yield on Antrim county farms is about seventy-five per cent of last year's crop. The quality of the seed is extra good this year.

FREESIA GROWERS ORGANIZE.

The growers of Freesia Purity in the vicinity of Santa Cruz, Cal., have formed an organization to be known as the Santa Cruz Freesia Bulb Growers' Association. The officers are:

President—H. A. Sutton, 38 Edgewood Way.

Secretary and Treasurer—R. A. Casad, 261 River street.

Directors—C. K. Hale, W. W. Ayers and F. S. Severance.

The association has over 4,000,000 bulblets planted and weather condition at present could not be better for them.

LIBEL THE SANT' ANNA.

In order to protect their interests the insurance companies involved in the recent fire on the Sant' Anna at its dock in Brooklyn have placed a libel on that vessel. It is estimated the loss approximates $75,000. In the cargo, partly discharged at the time of the fire, were 496 cases of Paper Whites, mostly consigned to Ralph M. Ward & Co., and 366 cases of immortelles, mostly consigned to H. Bayersdorfer & Co.

BULB IMPORTS SLACKEN.

There has been a perceptible slackening in the hitherto steady stream of Holland bulbs which has been pouring into this country. The receipts of the last week are considerably below those of the previous week. From this it may be assumed that the end is near, although in previous years shipments through the port of New York did not cease until the middle of November. This year, however, the crop was rather early, shipments were made at the first possible moment, and efforts have been made to get the bulbs out of Holland

THE POSTAGE PROBLEM.

Hastings Reports Experience.

One of the few mail-order seed houses that issued a midsummer catalogue is Hastings & Co., of Atlanta. Consequently they have had three months' experience of the parcel post system, as it applies to catalogues and seeds, at the time most seedsmen are wondering what they shall do and how it will work. Mr. Hastings' view will be of wide general interest.

"Being one of the few seedsmen in the United States who issue a regular mail-order seed catalogue in midsummer, we had to decide promptly the problem of making postpaid prices for seeds for this summer book," said Mr. Hastings, "as it is mailed to our customers about July 15. In making postpaid prices in our summer book we went absolutely on the same basis that we have in the past, when the old rate of the equivalent of 8 cents per pound was in effect. This has worked out in an entirely satisfactory manner in our late summer and fall trade and we have had absolutely no complaint from customers as to the question of any difference between the rates now and which we have been going under in the past. Further, we made a bid in our catalogue inviting those wishing to buy seeds in larger quantities to send to us for special quotations, based on delivery by parcel post to their particular post-office, but we have had not more than one request a week of this character.

"Whether or not our method is a wise rule for all seed houses we are not prepared to say, but we know that in nine cases out of ten, at the least, the average seed-buying customer will not and can not correctly figure out postage rates, in most cases underestimating, which would either require the seedsman to write to him asking for additional postage or else let the seedsman lose, neither of which is desirable from the seedsman's standpoint.

"Two of the greatest stumbling blocks in this matter are that the average seed-buying customer does not know the particular zone in which he lives in regard to Atlanta, Philadelphia or Chicago as the initial point, and can not get such information without application to his post-office; and the second is that he will only figure on the net weight of what he is buying, instead of on the gross weight, which will exist after the package is wrapped ready for mailing. As an illustration of this we would say that, where the customer wishes to buy a pound of cucumber seed to be mailed to a point in the fourth zone, he will take the net price of the single pound of cucumber seed and add the amount of postage on one pound from his seedsman's city to his post-office. As a matter of fact the wrappings on that pound of cucumber seed when ready for mailing make an additional weight of from fifteen to twenty per cent and, instead of being a single pound, it immediately becomes liable when ready for mailing to the two-pound postage rate. Not one out of ten of the seed-buying customers will think of this and we doubt whether any catalogue maker could make this so plain that they would thoroughly understand it.

"We will admit that our system makes a matter of injustice of a few cents to the seed-buyer in the nearer zones, but we do not believe that this is nearly as much to him as would be all the time and trouble he would be put to in attempting to figure out just the proper postage on his seed order from the seedsman's warehouse to his particular post-office.

"We believe that in mail-order seed selling, our catalogue should be just as simple and easily understood as possible; otherwise we would discourage seed-buying by mail. With that end in view we shall continue to make a postpaid flat rate on quarts, pints, pounds and under, believing this to be to the best interests both of the customers and of ourselves. We do this simply for the reason that our experience since the zone rates went into effect has been entirely satisfactory to us and, apparently, to our customers.

"When a man gets a catalogue he wants to know exactly what the goods are going to cost him delivered at his post-office. He does not, even for the sake of saving a few cents, want to work out an extended problem in arithmetic before he knows what the goods are going to cost him. Based on our own experience, we certainly urge on all catalogue houses to stick to the old basis of price, for if they do not we fear they will find themselves involved in a mass of error and resulting correspondence that will practically overwhelm them in the busy season.

"You can say as a matter of information that our experience has been based on the handling of an average of 600 to 700 orders a day for nearly three months, with an average distribution covering, approximately, the fourth zone.

"We place this before the trade as of interest to those who issue catalogues and at the same time wish to call attention to the fact that uniformity of action on the part of the catalogue houses is greatly to be desired."

for your business in general. Besides that, there's a good profit in the bulbs as well.

A bed of this most beautiful of early Tulips, when in bloom, is certainly a dazzling sight. The combination of colors, Brilliant Red and Dazzling Gold, cannot be surpassed by any other variety. The flowers are of extra large size with very strong stems, which protect them against rain and wind storms; furthermore, on account of their general strong character, they make a perfect showing for a longer time than any other variety. We have received from a specialist in Holland an exceptionally fine stock of this tulip and offer them at the low prices as below:

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

Los Angeles, Cal.—George W. Smith, formerly of Howard & Smith, and Jacob Dieterich sent out a formal announcement of the consolidation of their nursery and florists' business under the firm name of Smith & Dieterich. Their new salesroom, corner Seventh and Figueroa streets, was opened October 10.

TREATMENT OF SHAWYER.

Will you kindly tell me whether the indoor rose, Mrs. Geo. Shawyer, always droops its head after being cut and put in water? I have a house of Shawyer and Richmond, planted this season. Both are making excellent growth and have stems fully eighteen inches long. I keep a night temperature of about 60 to 63 degrees, spray twice daily, and have not given any manure of any kind. The Richmonds are splendid, but Shawyer hangs its head directly after being cut. It is also subject to mildew, although it is supposed not to be so. I should be glad if you could advise me concerning the growing of Shawyer satisfactorily.

I am also striking a lot of outdoor stock, using this year's wood, with a heel of last year's. These I intend to pot up as soon as calloused over, and would like to know whether it is possible to cut off the tops of these cuttings when rooted, say about January, graft the tops on to Manetti stock and grow as indoor stock, as I want a lot of outdoor stock before the budding season next year. If this is not practicable, do you know of any other method? A. G.

Mrs. Geo. Shawyer does not droop its head if it is properly handled. The only complaint on this score has come from men who cut and ship blooms of Shawyer to the market without giving them a chance to soak up, and in this respect Shawyer is like all other roses. When properly handled, the blooms are cut and placed in water as soon as possible, and put into a cooling room, where they are kept from twelve to twenty-four hours before being shipped to market. We ship Shawyer every day in the year and never have had any trouble with its hanging its head, save when we had to cut in the sunshine and ship to market immediately.

I note A. G. says he sprays twice daily. I am not acquainted with his climate, in Victoria, B. C., but there are not many locations where it is possible to spray twice daily without getting a bad dose of mildew. It is all right to spray on bright days, but the foliage should always be dry before night. As regards temperature, we have found a night temperature of 58 degrees much better than a higher one for both Shawyer and Richmond. I think if A. G. will make these changes in the culture and handling of his plants he will find Shawyer one of the best varieties he ever grew, since other florists along the Pacific coast are most enthusiastic in their praise of this variety.

There is no reason why A. G. cannot take the tops off his cuttings and graft on Manetti in January as he suggests; in fact, this is the only way to work up a large stock in a comparatively short time. However, he should not carry this style of propagation so far that the constitution of his plants will be impaired in any way.

C. H. Totty.

In asking you to discontinue our present ad we wish to say it has given us very good results, and that you will hear from us again when carnation cuttings are in season.—HOLLYWOOD GARDENS, Hollywood, Wash., Sept. 22, 1914.

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

There has been a slight falling off in business in the last week, but the advance orders on hand show that this is only temporary, and a busy time during the next few days is assured. Chrysanthemums are now at their best and the supply is already beginning to cap the demand. Bonnaffon is always a great favorite here and the flowers are perfect now. Indoor roses are not any too plentiful, the supply some days falling below the demand. Carnations are plentiful and good, as are centaureas. Cyclamens are becoming more popular as a cut flower, owing to their long lasting properties. Orchids are scarce just now, but the demand is not great. Valley is of excellent quality and more in demand. Greens of all kinds are plentiful. Plants, with the exception of ferns and coleuses, are scarce.

Dutch bulbs are arriving in good order, but the packing in some instances is not up to the usual standard and it looks as though it had been hurriedly done. The war is surely a godsend to the local ad-writers. It is surprising how many of the small local seedsmen have their goods "in spite of the war." "Our own growers" seem to have been attending strictly to business while the war is in progress. And "war or no war," the Dutch (?) bulbs grown in Santa Cruz and Los Angeles counties arrived on record time.

Various Notes.

At the semimonthly meeting of the Pasadena Horticultural Society the coming flower show was the principal subject up for discussion and everything points to a successful show. President Hutchison named John Blake as a suitable man to take up the matter of beautification of the city for 1915 in conjunction with the committee now working on it, and Mr. Blake consented to act, but only provided Mr. Hutchison acted with him, which he promised to do. The question box led to an interesting discussion on several points.

T. D. Robertson, of Fullerton, has an interesting place containing much that is not grown in the ordinary nursery and a rather hasty look around recently showed everything in first-class order.

Although I have visited the Superior Nursery a good many times, I have never seen the stock in such splendid condition as this year. Space forbids a lengthy notice, but a batch of about 2,000 magnificent cyclamens must be noted. The plants are fifteen to eighteen inches across, with foliage as attractive as the flowers and of a superb strain. Hundreds of Begonia Gloire de Lorraine and Glory of Cincinnati are here in perfect order, also fine batches of poinsettias and other stock advancing for Christmas. Ferns are a specialty here and the benches of Bostons, Whitmani, Piersoni and others are in fine condition. Propagation is constantly going on and every inch of space is utilized. The place is well worth a visit.

W. Armacost & Co. are cutting splendid Bonnaffons now and some of the stock shipped in to Wolfskills' & Morris Goldenson would be hard to beat.

The monthly meeting of the Los Angeles County Horticultural Society was held in Kruckeberg's hall October 6. W. Felgate, of Sierra Madre, again made a fine exhibit of zinnias and a number of choice vegetables, including some immense Black Beauty eggplant. Mr. Felgate spoke at considerable length on the culture of these and other plants and his remarks were, as usual, punctuated with humorous allusions to many of the audience and their peculiarities. A pleasant surprise to all was to see George Roeding, of the Fancher Creek Nurseries, of Fresno, walk in. Called upon for a speech, Mr. Roeding gave an impromptu address, short, but pithy and interesting.

Henry W. Turner is already working on his stock of new roses for next season. He has over 10,000 already of the popular September Morn. Ophelia is grand here now and is being propagated largely. Rapid transit with the new delivery car is considerably widening Mr. Turner's field of action.

Fred Sperry has made a good start in his location on Winston street. He says he is going to do a strictly wholesale business and will carry no "red violets."

Smith & Dieterich opened up October 10 with a nice show of stock and everyone in the trade wishes them well.

The Market.

As the season advances we note a general increase along all lines. The cold and rainy weather of the last few weeks is being followed by bright weather, which is a great benefit to all stock growing in the greenhouses. Outdoor stock is still on the market in limited quantities and everyone is looking for a good frost to do away with this class of stock. Carnations are now in greater supply, the quality being somewhat improved. Roses are to be had only in limited quantities and are not of the best. Violets have not yet made their appearance, while chrysanthemums are the flowers most in demand. Potted stock is being shown in

I sold all the Mum cuttings advertised, and you will not hear from me again until I can get some more stock ready. Shall root 100,000 Carnation cuttings for next season, as I know The Review will sell them for me.—Frank Wilhelm, Los Angeles, Cal.

We want to say that our last advertisement in The Review brought us orders from both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts. We had, strangely enough, on following days, orders from Salem, Ore., and from Salem, Mass.—State Floral Co., North Yakima, Wash.

We are well pleased with the results obtained by advertising in the Pacific Coast Department of The Review. We sold out clean and refused many orders. The Review surely gives results. —Van Slyke & Seamons, Tacoma, Wash.

limited quantities. Some primulas of excellent quality have made their appearance.

Various Notes.

On a recent visit to Henry Benthien's place, at Fife, I found things in excellent shape. The vegetable department, under Mr. Miller's management, was looking especially well. Two large houses of cucumbers and tomatoes were setting a nice lot of fruit. Mr. Benthien was busy among the potted plants; two houses are devoted exclusively to fern growing. A general line of perennials and shrubbery is grown here, while considerable experimenting is being done along the bulb-growing line. Spiræas and valley are also being tried out, Mr. Benthien having been quite successful in former years with his spiræas.

Surprise parties are getting to be quite the thing nowadays. The florists gave one in honor of A. A. Hinz, the popular K street florist, Wednesday, October 7. About twenty were present and a general good time was had.

There were no social or other events last week that required any large quantities of flowers. The bright days, following a cloudy spell, have brought in the roses and carnations until the supply is greater than the demand. Dealers in nursery stock have large numbers of advance orders on file and, after a careful sifting of credit accounts, the orders accepted are considerably in excess of those for the same period last year.

THE THIRD EDITION

Of the most successful book ever published for the trade

The original Album of Designs was published in response to many requests from florists who felt the need for an up-to-date book that could be used in taking orders for Funeral Designs, Wedding Decorations and Bouquets, Table Decorations and all cut flower work where it was not practicable to show the customer the finished article as it would be when ready for use. With the publication of this Album it became possible to show the finished work in beautifully printed pictures. The first edition sold like hot-cakes, and a second edition went quickly. The third edition is now ready. Everything is in it—all the standard designs and many new and heretofore unpublished pieces.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

THE J. H. Rice Co., of Ashtabula, O., has been incorporated to carry on a nursery business, with a capital of $50,000.

AN amendment increasing its capital stock from $20,000 to $30,000 has been filed by the Waxahachie Nursery Co., of Waxahachie, Tex.

AN almond nursery is to be started at Arbuckle, Cal., by Vergil Estes, a nurseryman of Chico, Cal. Twenty-five acres are included in the first plot to be used.

WITH the increase in business, the North Star Nursery Co., at Pardeeville, Wis., is increasing its plant, and a building 48x150 is now in the course of erection.

THE Northern California Nursery, of Corning, Cal., has filed articles of incorporation, with a capital stock of $50,000. The directors, all of Corning, are: W. V. Beresford, F. G. Beresford, Charles E. Hazen, R. R. Balderson and E. E. Whitaker.

W. F. ALLEN, the well-known strawberry plant grower, of Salisbury, Md., has incorporated his business as a stock company. It will be a close corporation, the entire $50,000 stock being held by Mr. Allen, his wife and children. The title of the concern will be the W. F. Allen Co.

To assist the buy-a-bale-of-cotton movement, the Wm. P. Stark Nurseries, of Neosho and Stark City, Mo., are offering to take cotton at 10 cents a pound in exchange for nursery stock this fall. The customers are asked to store and insure the cotton and send the warehouse receipts in lieu of money.

ARRANGEMENTS for the meeting of the Southern Illinois Horticultural Society at Centralia October 23 to 25 are keeping busy E. G. Mendenhall, of the Park Nursery, Kinmundy, and C. F. Heaton, of New Burnside, who are respectively secretary and first vice-president of the organization.

THE ways and means committee of the Texas State Horticultural Society, which met at Forth Worth October 14, is composed mainly of nurserymen. The members are Will B. Munson, chairman, of Denison; J. M. Ramsey, of Austin, a past president of the society; M. Falkner, of Waco, another past president; J. H. Arbenz, of Sarita, president, and G. H. Blackmon, of College Station, secretary. John S. Kerr, of Sherman, represents the nurserymen on the advisory committee of the society.

CEMETERY SUPERINTENDENTS.

The twenty-eighth annual meeting of the American Association of Cemetery Superintendents was held last week at the Planters' hotel, St. Louis, with about 100 members present. October 8, the last day of the session, the members were guests of the directors of the Missouri Botanical Garden, where luncheon was served.

The election of officers resulted as follows:

President—Thomas Wallis, of Chicago.

Vice-president—James Warren, of Providence, R. I.

Secretary-treasurer—Bullett Lawson, Jr., of Chicago.

Executive committee—H. S. Adams, of Boston; W. P. Jones, of Pittsburgh, and J. A. Reed, of Canton, O.

WAR AND FRENCH NURSERYMEN.

According to E. Turbat, general secretary of the Federation Nationale des Syndicats Horticole de France, the shipments of French nursery stock are not precluded because of the German invasion. Quite the contrary, export trade is expected to go on as usual. In a letter to The Review, dated at Orleans, September 28, Secretary Turbat says:

"Since the declaration of the war to France and to her allies and friends by Germany I have been much interested by reading the notes inserted on its subject in the American trade papers.

"Being not mobilized on account of age, I consider it a duty to explain to your readers in the name of my countrymen for our mutual benefit how stands the situation in France and how we expect it will be later on.

"Concerning the fruit, ornamental, forest, roses, and other young stocks, also for any plants, roses, etc., which are generally grown in France for export, in despite of mobilization, which has taken off about sixty to seventy per cent of the chiefs, staffs and workmen in our nurseries, I think that it remains sufficient direction and labor in every firm to be in position to do the shipment of the goods already ordered or to be ordered by the U. S. A., the English colonies, etc., etc. This labor will be sufficient this season, because our sales in France and on the European continent probably will be small.

"Our principal places of exportation, Angers, Orleans, Lyon, Ussy, the Paris district, etc., have not been affected by the war, having not been in the lines of action of the armies. The railways and seaports in connection with your country being also without harm, will be in position to accept our goods in time of shipping beginning generally at the end of October.

"For conclusion, we are in as good position as any country to do our export trade this season, and as widely as it can be done."

MORE TREES FROM HOLLAND.

Shipments of European nursery stock are coming along steadily. The quantity on any one boat is not of a surprising size, but the arrivals are constant, so that there is scarcely a doubt that we shall receive all of our regular importations. Advices from European concerns and from American importing houses indicate that practically all nursery imports will be received as usual, though there may, perhaps, be a little delay in the shipment of some lines of stock. The following consignments of trees and shrubs were brought by the steamer Palembaug, from Rotterdam, which arrived at New York October 5:

A large shipment arrived from Rotterdam October 7 on the steamer Ryndam. This was by far the largest quantity of nursery stock brought on any of the Rotterdam steamers so far and will, by reason of its size, prove the last straw for those who in pessimistic voice prophesied a scarcity of European stock on account of the war abroad. The consignments of trees and shrubs carried by the Ryndam were as follows:

CINCINNATI.

The Market.

Business seems to be picking up. Last week the demand was active, but the supply continued so large that only low prices were realized by the wholesalers. The supply of each seasonable flower is large and fully up to present requirements. In order to bring about better market conditions, a killing frost that will put an end to cosmos and dahlias is necessary. The supply of greens also is ample for requirements.

Club Meeting.

The Florists' Club's monthly meeting was held at Ray Murphy's home October 12, in the afternoon. The attendance was large. Otto Hirschfeld, the Cincinnati representative of the John C. Moninger Co., was elected to membership. Rudolph E. Kurowski, vice-president of the same concern, who was present, gave an interesting address.

Ray Murphy's greenhouses are spick-and-span and in elegant condition. The stock of carnations, chrysanthemums and sweet peas is in good shape.

The club members also visited Charles Murphy's place and found everything in good condition.

After the meeting the guests adjourned to a luncheon provided by Ray Murphy.

Various Notes.

Elmer D. Smith & Co. exhibited a vase of their new yellow chrysanthemum, Golden Queen, before the local C. S. A. committee. This variety looks good and made a distinct hit with those who saw it.

Thomas Windram last week finished planting his two new 150-foot carnation houses, erected during the summer.

E. G. Gillett went to Columbus October 13, with the Hauselman commandery, Knights Templar.

Mrs. P. J. Olinger is spending a month with relatives at Aurora and Evanston, Ill. Mrs. Olinger is greatly improved in health.

The John C. Moninger Co., Chicago, has opened a branch office in this city, at 2309 Union Central building. Otto Hirschfeld is in charge.

The Cincinnati Cut Flower Exchange reports a busy week.

BROCKTON, MASS.

At the Fair.

In the floral department at the celebrated Brockton fair there was good competition for a vase of fifty roses. H. M. Robinson & Co., of Boston, led with some grand American Beauties; Waban Rose Conservatories were second with a splendid vase of the beautiful new Mrs. Moorfield Storey; H. M. Robinson & Co. took third with Sunburst.

Some of the leading prize-winners on dahlias, which never were better shown, were J. K. Alexander, of East Bridgewater, who was invincible in pompons, as usual; W. A. Hathaway, of New Bedford; Wm. H. Symonds, of Marblehead, and Sisson & Thurston, of Newport, R. I. Gladioli were more largely and better shown than ever before; so were wild flowers.

The hall at the Commercial Club was used for the dinner given October 2 to the governor, his staff and other prominent guests of the fair. The decorations were tastefully carried out by W. W. Hathaway, the Main street florist. Palms, ferns and baskets of pink roses were used, the latter on the fourteen tables.

Various Notes.

Trade, on the whole, in Brockton has been better than for the last several years, reports W. W. Hathaway. While the aster tide has passed, gladioli still are good, and roses, carnations, mums and other indoor flowers are all going well. W. N. C.

BRAMPTON, ONT.

Trade continues fair, but really live business cannot be expected until the frosts set in. Thanksgiving orders came in freely and used up all available stock. Prices are on a little lower level than last year.

The members of the Old Countrymen's Club, most of whom are engaged in florists' work here, held their annual general meeting October 8. The club is in a flourishing condition and carries forward a credit balance of $108.70 for the following season. The following officers were appointed: Patron, T. W. Duggan; president, W. G. Peacock; vice-president, H. Peacock; secretary, A. J. Stewart.

This week's obituary column contains a report of the death of W. W. McIntyre, son of W. T. McIntyre; also the death of Wesley Coates, a carnation grower at the Dale Estate. W. G. P.

G. S. RAMSBURG, SOMERSWORTH, N. H.

GREENWICH, CONN.

There was a large attendance at the monthly meeting of the Westchester and Fairfield Horticultural Society, held in its rooms in Doran's hall, Greenwich, Conn., Friday evening, October 9, with President Williamson in the chair. One honorary member and one active member were elected and several proposals for membership were received. The fall show committee reported the schedules ready for distribution and everything in readiness for a successful exhibition. The schedules are attractive and complete. Handsome prizes of cash, cups, cut glass and silverware are provided. Copies of the schedule, entry blanks and other information may be had by application to the secretary of the exhibition committee, Oscar Addor, Larchmont, N. Y.

A committee was appointed to draft resolutions of sympathy for the bereaved family of the late Henry Darlington, who was a life member of this society and whose interest in its welfare was appreciated by the entire membership.

A feature of the meeting was the lecture by Nathan F. Barrett, of New Rochelle, N. Y., entitled "Landscape Architecture." He was accorded a rising vote of thanks for the great pleasure afforded to the members.

A remarkably fine display was on the exhibition tables. The special prize offered by Robert Allen, of Greenwich, Conn., was won by John B. Andrew with a fine collection of six varieties of outdoor grown vegetables. The other awards were as follows: Robert Williamson, cultural certificate for vegetables and honorable mention for peaches, muskmelons and English walnuts; E. Leurs, cultural certificate for onions of the variety Gigantic Gibraltar; P. W. Popp, cultural certificate for dahlias on long stems, comprising a wide range of varieties. A vote of thanks to the other exhibitors was awarded as follows: To John Conroy for seedling mum, Mrs. H. Robinson crossed with Cheltoni; Robert Grunnert for display of carnations; Carl Hankinson for vases of Hadley roses and Chrysolora mums; John Beck & Sons for vase of mums; J. B. Andrew for display of apples; James Stuart for the early flowering, hardy mum, Normandie.

The next meeting will be held November 13. P. W. Popp.

MILWAUKEE.

The Market.

Business seems to have picked up to some extent during the last week. Stock has not shown any decrease in volume. In fact, almost everything was in large supply, but the orders were heavier than heretofore and stock moved much more freely than it has for some time. Carnations are increasing in quantity every day, but are being sold fast enough to keep the market clean. The quality is no better than it has been, and nice, hardy stock will not arrive until the weather becomes much cooler. Roses are here in quantity and quality, and buyers in the Milwaukee market are getting some extra fine stock. Sunburst, Mrs. Chas. Russell and Killarney are the best sellers, although the other varieties are meeting with a good demand. Beauties are moving well and are sold almost as soon as received.

The outdoor stock is still burdening the trade with the large supply and is holding down the sales of really first-class greenhouse stock. Chrysanthemums are right in crop and are coming in heavily every day. They are in fine condition and the sales are better than could be expected, considering the quantity of other stock in the market. Lilies are good and are moving readily.

Various Notes.

Nic Zweifel, who left Milwaukee in June for Europe, returned to his home October 9. He was in close proximity to the fireworks of the warring nations and he has many interesting stories to tell of his experiences. It is up to the Milwaukee Florists' Club to get him to tell some of his entertaining stories at the next meeting.

Paul Boomer, of Beaver Dam, Wis., visited Milwaukee October 10.

Miss Irma Jens, with the Holton & Hunkel Co., is much elated over the approaching wedding of her sister. The firm, while wishing Miss Irma all happiness, is glad that it is not she who is going to enter the bonds of matrimony, as her smiling face has won many friends at the store, who would hate to lose her. H. J. S.

New Orleans, La.—In his report as state vice-president of the S. A. F., Harry Papworth, of the Metairie Ridge Nursery Co., said: "The seasons are short here, but when crops and business are good there is no city in America that spends more money for flowers than New Orleans, for its size. There is also an increasing demand for finer and better flowers. They cannot come too fine, as our people are willing to pay for them."

Let us quote you on Lilium Giganteum, Rubrum, Album and Auratum. Let the results convince you of the quality; the price will be right, too.

The Market.

All outdoor flowers have been completely cleaned up by the frosts. This has brought about a shortage of stock, as many of the houses have not yet commenced to cut. Carnations are poor and scarce, but show improvement and promise well. Chrysanthemums are coming in slowly but as fast as the general market can assimilate them.

Various Notes.

William Doel, who has just completed a good-sized addition to his greenhouses on Broad street, Pascoag, has finished planting it to carnations, using principally the Enchantress varieties. Mr. Doel contemplates a visit to his old home in England next summer.

William S. Sword and wife, of Valley Falls, who are on a vacation trip through New York state, are spending several days at Niagara Falls.

Albert West, with William Hay, is convalescing from a bad attack of blood poisoning from a rose thorn, which confined him to his home for several days.

James Warren, superintendent of the North Burial Ground, attended the convention of the Association of American Cemetery Superintendents at St. Louis last week.

Olney H. Williams is the Republican candidate for member of the state House of Representatives from Johnston.

Taxpayers in the city of Cranston who are taxed on $10,000 or more include J. A. Budlong & Son Co., $111,750; Budlong Rose Co., $145,490; Eunice Budlong, $10,080; Frank L. Budlong, $19,860; Harry A. Budlong, $26,620; James A. Budlong, Jr., $56,470; William Hay and wife, $24,250; Michael Sweeney, $12,640.

James B. Canning is finishing the renovation of his greenhouses, the glaziers having completed their work last week.

The local trade received a business call last week from Thomas Mead, of Fottler, Fiske, Rawson Co., of Boston.

J. Solomon, of Boston, who has the flower privilege at the S. S. Kresge store here, also has the flower stand in the new Arcade City Market, corner of Hay and Weybosset streets, which opened last week.

The flower booth at "Ye Olde English Village" at Infantry hall last week, under the auspices of the First Light Infantry Regiment, the crack independent military command of this city, was conducted by the T. J. Johnston Co.

Among the residents of Cumberland who are taxed on $5,000 or over, according to the assessors' report just filed, are: Walter S. Sword, realty, $6,700; Frank E. Vose, realty, $5,250, and Frederick I. Vose, realty, $7,000.

PANDANUS VEITCHII

I have about 10,000 pot-grown Pandanus Veitchii, well rooted, nicely variegated, no white ones; plants are grown only from small cuttings from 4 to 6 inches high. This is the best lot of such plants I ever had. Surplus over the requirements of my regular customers.

Special low net price is $80.00 per 1000; 500 at 1000 rate.

For 18 years I have been growing Pandanus Veitchii on a large scale, having standing orders from the largest houses in the country. I have increased my acreage of stock plants so that I now have some surplus over the requirements of my regular customers.

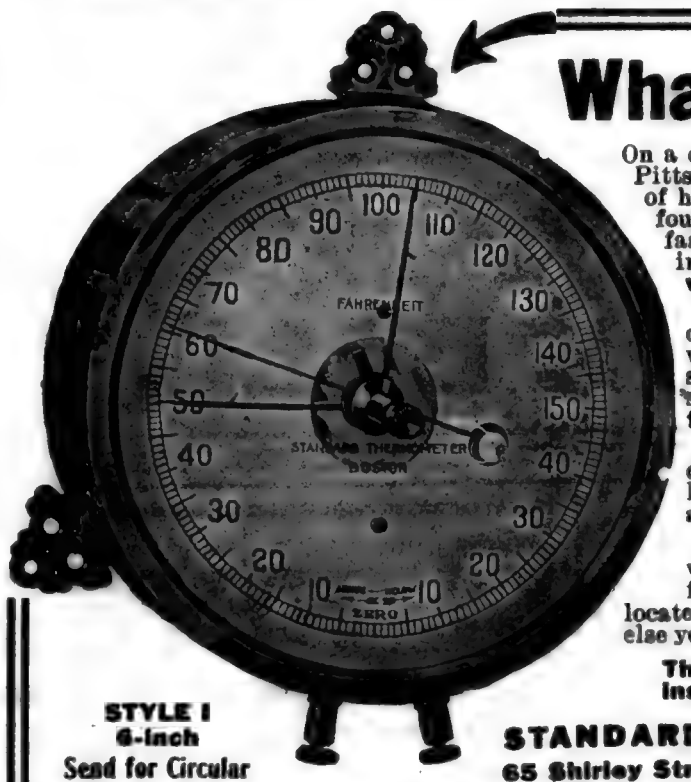
PAINT FOR HOT WATER PIPES.

Please tell me how to prepare paint for hot water pipes in greenhouses?

E. C.

While black asphaltum paint is excellent for greenhouse pipes, so far as preventing their rusting is concerned, it gives a smooth, glossy surface which is less favorable for the radiation of heat than a dull, rough surface. Such a surface can be secured by using a paint containing equal parts of linseed oil and turpentine, with enough lampblack to give the right consistency.



PIPING FOR COMPOSITE SYSTEM.

I should like to get a little advice in regard to piping my two houses, one 24x125 and the other 28x125. Both are six feet to the eaves. The 24-foot house is twelve feet to the ridge and the 28-foot house is thirteen feet nine inches to the ridge. The houses run east and west. In the south side of the smaller house there are three feet of glass; the rest of the wall is double boarded, with paper between. All the walls are of double boards to the height of three feet, except the north wall, which has four feet of double boards; the rest is glass.

What I should like to know is how to pipe the houses so that I can run hot water in moderate weather and change to steam when cold weather sets in. The outside temperature rarely gets below zero here, in southern Indiana. I have the houses piped for hot water now and should like to use the pipes I have, if possible. They are 2-inch and 2½-inch pipes. Will a boiler with the top eighteen inches below the greenhouse floor be low enough for the water to return when steam is used? My object in making this change is to be able to take care of another 28-foot house, which I want to put up and which I could not properly heat in cold weather with hot water. The temperature desired is 50 to 55 degrees in zero weather.

F. H. H.

To heat these houses with a composite system, which can be used with hot water in mild weather and changed to a steam system in zero weather, I would run in each house two 2½-inch flow pipes either on the wall plates or two feet below the ridges, and connect at the farther end of the houses with two coils of 2-inch pipe, each of which would contain four pipes. This will give two 2½-inch flow pipes and eight 2-inch returns in each house.

What $5 Will Do

On a certain February 11, B. L. Elliott, of Pittsburgh, was awakened by the ringing of his Standard thermostat alarm. He found his previously reliable night man fast asleep, and the temperature falling fast. In another half hour he would have lost $30,000.

Two nights later the night fireman of E. J. Ahern, Wellesley, Mass., met with a fall that rendered him unconscious. He had no Standard thermostat alarm and the entire place froze up solid.

This simple Standard thermostat is on the job night and day. Adjust the hands at whatever point you please and the thermostat whenever the temperature rises or falls to the danger point. You can locate the bell at your bedside or anywhere else you please. Anybody can put it up.

For use with hot water there should be an expansion tank, connected to the highest part of the flow pipes, which should be near the boiler. The connecting pipe should have a shut-off valve, so that the system can be closed when steam is used. There should also be a water gauge, a pressure gauge and a safety valve on the boiler for use with steam, and air valves at the lower end of the returns. The steam should work satisfactorily if the returns can be three feet above the top of the boiler.

The combination system, while correct in theory, does not always give good results, and the bother of drawing off the water and opening or closing the valves, when changing from hot water to steam, is a great disadvantage in the use of such a system. I also doubt whether the efficiency and capacity of the boiler can be increased by making such a change. The steam or hot water is the medium by which the heat generated in the boiler is carried to the places where it is needed, but, although steam readily transmits the heat, it cannot be said to increase the efficiency and heating power of the boiler. For this reason I doubt whether a change in the method of heating the buildings from hot water to steam will have the desired effect in the long run.

CONDENSATION NOT RETURNED.

Our boiler is unnecessarily large for the present size of the houses. A steam trap is connected with it. In the fall and spring, when it does not pay to have a steady fireman at night, we like to run up a few pounds of steam and bank the fire over. However, when the steam runs below seven to nine pounds, the steam trap does not pump the water back into the boiler, but sometimes even forms a vacuum and draws the water out of the boiler, so that there is danger of the top flues not being sufficiently covered with water. Is there any valve that could be used to compel the steam trap to pump the right way, without drawing water back out of the boiler, in case the fire is not looked after quite as often as it is now? J. F. D.

The use of a check valve on the return pipe near the boiler would keep the water from being drawn out into the coils, but would not aid the trap in returning the water to the boiler. A small electric pump on the return would correct the difficulty.

KANSAS CITY.

The Market.

Market conditions are variable, and it is hard to figure how much stock is needed to supply the varying demands. Business is increasing considerably. Every florist who decorates has an abundance of wedding orders. Business, it is thought, would be better if a frost would kill off the outdoor stock. The better grades of chrysanthemums are scarce, with an increasing demand. Golden Glow and Smith's Advance have all been cut and the midseason varieties are somewhat slow. Beauties of excellent quality are still plentiful. Roses are abundant; white varieties are scarce, but pink is in large supply. Carnations are coming in more abundantly and the stock is of extra good quality.

Various Notes.

The Kansas side of the state line was subjected to an aerial bombardment of ice October 8. The hailstones, measuring in some instances an inch in diameter, did considerable damage to plate-glass windows and several florists suffered small losses. The greenhouse of J. B. Masson, 627 Troup avenue, was completely wrecked; 5,000 feet of glass was broken and all of his stock was beaten to shreds.

General reports from across the state line are that business is improving, with plenty of funeral work.

Miss L. E. Boggess reports good out-of-town trade, which, with funeral work, has kept her busy.

Henry Kusik was at Council Bluffs last week. He says stock of all kinds is fine and that from now on heavy consignments will be coming in.

Biedermann & Son are busy these days. Between decorations and greenhouse work, they are kept on the jump.

Nelson Jarrett is getting ready for his winter trade. Everything here is in splendid shape, especially his stock of ferns.

Ed. Ellsworth has a fine lot of poinsettias, both bench and pot-grown. His place is looking fine.

The Geo. M. Kellogg Flower & Plant Co. reports plenty of wedding orders on hand. The company has commenced to receive heavy shipments of cut stock from the greenhouses.

The Florists' Club held its meeting Monday, October 5, in the ladies' parlor of the Coates house. All present seemed to be favorably impressed with the new quarters.

Callers on the trade last week were: Walter Mott, of the Hammond Slug Shot Works, Beacon, N. Y.; Robert Newcomb, of Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago, and Mr. Ford, representing A. Herrmann, New York. W. J. B.

Sunlight Double Glass Sash is the STANDARD Everywhere

These sash have become the standard sash, cutting out half the labor and cost and doubling the net profits of early gardening wherever used. This superior efficiency is due to these facts! The two layers of glass enclose an air space—a transparent blanket—through which the sun's rays pass freely to the beds, carrying heat and light, but through which the cold from without and the stored heat from within pass very slowly.

The result is the elimination of mats and shutters saving half the labor of covering and uncovering. As these extra covers, used on single layer sash, need never be bought or renewed, thus half the expense of hot-bed gardening is saved.

The Sunlight Greenhouse on which the sash are also used is inexpensive, attractive and a highly profitable addition to any garden. See the catalog.

Write today for the Free Catalog and enclose, if you wish it, four cents in stamps for Professor Massey's helpful booklet on the use of cold-frames, hot-beds and small greenhouses.

BOWLING GREEN, KY.

The establishment of the Burdell Floral Co. is of moderate size, 30,000 feet of glass, and is constructed almost in the shape of a square, the workroom and salesroom being in front. All hands were rushing at the time of my call to get out an unusually large run of funeral work and I saw some designs that were new to me. They were made up of pure white vinca, sweet alyssum and heliotrope, with staghorn fern fronds for green. They gave us a new idea of the value of the common bedding flowers. Mr. Burdell has his residence at the front and to one side of the greenhouses and for once I saw grounds that met my idea of what is fitting for a florist's residence. There is a good planting of the best shrubbery, arranged in such a way that it cannot help but bring business. All too often the florist's residence is one of the poorest kept in the town. Then I could not help remarking that the houses were the cleanest that I had ever seen. Mr. Burdell answered that he could not afford to keep them any other way, as litter harbors insects and plant diseases.

The concern has a good retail trade, but the main business is growing moonvines, of which it has a new variety of white that Mr. Burdell claims is the strongest grower and freest bloomer on the market. Salvia, coleus and chrysanthemums in 2-inch pots are grown for the trade. The drought has hurt, killing the larger part of the outdoor stock. F. B.

Moline, Ill.—City officials and street car company representatives are conferring in regard to building a protecting wall on Twenty-seventh street, in the rear of the greenhouses of Julius Staack & Sons, to prevent another flood breaking into the greenhouses from this street, like the three which have occurred this summer, causing several thousand dollars damages. The question of prime importance is the division of the expense, the street car company having been asked to pay half.

The Market.

A rather heavy frost the first part of last week put an end to all outdoor flowers. There is plenty of greenhouse stock, however, to meet all demands and it is most easily disposed of now. Trade is improving right along and everybody is hoping for a good winter's business. Pot plants are daily increasing in popularity. Some unusually fine Jerusalem cherries were seen last week. They were remarkably well berried and are selling well for this time of the year.

Various Notes.

Miss Margaret Long, a stenographer in the employ of the Barteldes Seed Co., was killed October 6. She fell down the elevator shaft from the third floor of the Harvard hotel, breaking her neck.

Several of the 5 and 10-cent stores have large displays of Dutch bulbs and Chinese lilies.

Wm. Horlacher is again with the Barteldes Seed Co.

George Brenkert has his place in good condition. His carnations are especially good. He says business is fine. R. S.

NEWPORT, R. I.

The Newport Garden Club has purchased land on Ocean avenue, at present wild and unimproved. It is planned to clear this land and lay it out in gardens by next summer and make it one of the beauty spots of the city.

A greenhouse is to be erected shortly by Thomas J. Gibson, at Middletown.

V. A. Vanicek, of the Rhode Island Nurseries, has the sympathy of the trade in the death of his wife, at Reading, Mass., following an attack of pneumonia.

The Market.

The market has been quite lively, due to the October weddings and the general opening of the social season. Chrysanthemums are just coming into bloom. Cosmos, dahlias, etc., are plentiful, and the expected frosts will create a better demand for indoor flowers. The frosts are later in arriving than for several years.

Various Notes.

Theodore Kuebler, of Santa Rosa Fruit Farm, has commenced cutting chrysanthemums. He looks for big business in mum cuttings this season and is better prepared than ever.

Miss Elsa Niednagel, daughter of Julius Niednagel, was married October 8 to John Land, of this city, and the couple left for an eastern trip. Mr. Land is engaged in the insurance business and formerly lived at Carmi, Ill. The wedding was attended only by relatives and familiar friends. Mums formed the principal decoration.

Mrs. Karl Zeidler is not recovering as fast as was hoped. Her hand, due to blood poisoning, is so badly affected that it is doubtful whether it can be saved. E. L. F.

LEBANON, TENN.

January 1, 1915, the name of the corporation, the Lebanon Floral Co., will be changed to the Anderson Floral Co., W. H. Anderson being president and J. C. Anderson secretary and treasurer. A general line of cut flowers, bedding and pot plants is grown for the local retail trade, which is excellent. During the summer a number of improvements in the already up-to-date establishment have been made. An additional supply and reception room has been built to the south of the main office and has been fitted up with a handsome wall case, easy chairs and divans, writing tables, desk, and two telephone systems. Suspended from the ceiling are handsome brass electric fixtures, so the first impression of the place is a pleasant one. Beneath this room has been constructed the cold storage cellar, made of concrete and having a temperature 20 degrees lower than the outside atmosphere. The old office will be used as the make-up room in the future. The greenhouses proper, occupying several acres of space, are heated both by hot water and steam. The concern has its own water plant and pumps water at a pressure of ninety pounds. W. A. Smith is the florist in charge.

Column Anchor Bases for our Reconstructed Construction

ALL COLUMNS in our Reconstructed Construction are clamped at the ground line to heavy four-way braced anchor bases, similar to the ones used on the side posts. The bottom of these bases is big and broad, giving an unusually large bearing surface for the base to rest on, and around which the concrete can grip. The top of the base is equipped with a split half, which friction-grips the column when the four galvanized bolts are tightened. This clamp permits an adjustment up or down of the column, which is a valuable feature in lining up the rafters.

In addition to the powerful friction grip of the clamp, it is equipped with a cold chilled pointed set screw, which bores right into the pipe, doubly insuring it against slipping.

The rafter and post are in one piece from the ground line to the column cap, where it is joined to the balance of the rafter extending to the ridge by a steel splice plate. This plate also carries the main member of the double angle iron truss.

The truss and rafter from the column to the ridge are all put together and hot-riveted in place at the factory. This saves a lot of work on the job and greatly increases speed of erection.

In our next ad we will tell you about the special treatment of the purlins and vent header in the Reconstructed Construction.

Cast Iron Gutters Below Cost

I have just purchased 2650 feet of new cast iron gutters of a standard pattern (see cut). These gutters vary just a trifle in straightness, about ⅛ inch to ¼ inch in a length, and were refused at the foundry on account of a misunderstanding with the purchaser. They are brand new and the prices I am quoting are lower than actual cost at the foundry. The selling price of these gutters was 75 cents per foot. I can furnish them made up in runs as desired, with sash bar brackets for any pitch of roof. These gutters will sell like hot cakes, so hurry your order in today. Cash with order preferred, but will give time to responsible parties.

THE FLORISTS REVIEW

KEEPING UP APPEARANCES

Appearances may be deceptive, but people believe in them just the same. The first view of the retailer's store makes a big impression upon the chance buyer. It may win or it may lose a good customer. The successful florist takes no chances, but is careful to keep up appearances.

JUST as true as the old adage, "Clothes make the man," is the less common expression, "Looks make the store," and in both there is considerably more truth than poetry. Appearances count tremendously, particularly in the business of buying and selling. Did you ever stop to consider why practically all traveling men are of a portly, prosperous, Frank McIntyre type? In this case it's not true that "nobody loves a fat man," for the weighty travelers seem to receive the most weighty consideration from those they call on. There is a good reason for it, too—a sound psychological basis, as the college professors would say. Stout men look prosperous and successful, and we believe what they say when they advise us to buy their goods in order to make money. Most men of lean cast look as though worry kept them thin, and we suspect they want us to buy their line so that they can make some money. It's all in appearance.

The Prosperous Look.

The same line of reasoning holds good in connection with the retail store. Some stores have a prosperous look, while others, not necessarily older, look as though they had seen better days. They give one the impression that business is poor.

The same trait in human character that makes the path of the corpulent traveling man an easier one, adds to the business of the prosperous looking store and diminishes the patronage of the lean looking establishment. "He that hath (or looks as though he hath), to him shall be given; and he that hath not, from him shall be taken away," is as truly a law of nature today as it was when those words were first written. We all prefer to make our purchases at stores where everything is spick-and-span. It is to be expected that the retail florist's patrons—distinctly of the better class of people—certainly should have that preference in purchasing flowers, over the freshness, daintiness, delicacy, etc., of which they so often grow verbose. Experience has shown that they are influenced by the appearance of the place, and as a general rule the flower store is the leader among shops in appearance.

A Specialty Shop.

When comparison is drawn between the florist's and other shops, the stores considered are not those of the grocer, the butcher and the hardware man—those are entirely out of his class. The stores which invite comparison with the florist's are the high-class specialty shops—the milliner's, the jeweler's and the like. These cater to the same class of people as the florist and conduct their business on the same high plane. They are the stores from which he may take pointers, although among these the florist usually is the leader.

His high standard of business calls for a particularly good store, and its appearance must at all times be of the best. "First impressions are strongest," because, as a witty gentleman remarked, "first impressions last." The view that meets the eye of a visitor upon his entering the store may be the means of driving him away or of making a permanent patron. It is well worth the effort to keep up an appearance that will produce the second result.

The proprietor of one of the largest and best retail stores in the middle west remarked that every time he entered his store he tried to assume the point of view of a customer entering it for the first time. Perhaps that is one of the reasons why the gentleman's store is one of the largest and the best. In this way he gained suggestions for improving the appearance of the place, so that visitors would be favorably impressed.

Doing the Work.

The head of the store who follows this plan will find many suggestions to make. To carry them out, it has been found a good practice to assign to each employee a certain part or section of the store, which he shall not only always keep in order, but which he may improve in appearance as his ingenuity suggests.

The responsibility thus placed on the employee serves to develop his thinking apparatus as well as better the looks of the store, and both employer and employed are benefited in more ways than one.

So many times have the opinions of The Review been set forth in regard to the furnishings, arrangement, etc., of the modern flower store that a repetition is unnecessary. Florists are well aware, also, what constitutes neatness and good appearance in a store. The salesroom is to a certain extent a display room, but it should never be a storeroom or a workroom. If this is remembered, litter, untidiness, crowding of materials or stock, etc., will be avoided. Water will not be splashed about on the floor, or at any rate, left there, to spoil the appearance and make slippery spots that risk a customer's fall. Everything will have its place and will be kept there. Convenience and comfort will be the marks of the establishment, without either disorder on the one hand or stiffness of appearance on the other.

Like a Habit.

The accompanying illustrations show how profitable are the results of a little care. They are of the store of the La Crosse Floral Co., of La Crosse, Wis. This company's business has increased so rapidly in the six years of its existence that it was recently decided to open a store to facilitate carrying on trade. Maintaining its high standard, the company obtained the best of fixtures and furnishings, and, to still further hold to its high record, it gave every attention to keeping up the excellent appearance of the place.

It is easy to keep up appearances in a new store, some may say. True, for in a new store there are no bad habits to break. But good habits, once formed, will wear just as well in an old place, and to a much more appreciable advantage. The first object is to get the good habits, and with these, appearances will seem to keep up themselves, almost without effort.

DEPARTMENT STORE METHODS.

A live journal must tell its readers what is going on, to be in touch with the times. The most important thing in the flower business today is the method employed to sell flowers and plants in the department stores of the larger cities. The methods have materially changed since the heads of the great stores have better understood conditions.

Formerly the flower department was under one of their own people, a trader, a business man; today it is run by a florist, who must have business ability, usually on the percentage plan. So rapid has been the growth of the business in these department stores that it affects the whole flower business—wholesaler, retailer and grower alike. The wholesalers understand the conditions under which department store sales are made better than either the retailers or the growers, who view them from a more or less prejudiced point of view. The retailers believe that the department stores take away their customers in some cases and cheapen their stock in others. The growers believe that the prices paid are starvation prices and that the claims made are unwarranted. Despite these conflicting views, many of our thinking florists are coming to the conclusion that the department store flower shop is a decided advantage to the business today. The surpluses incident to the growth of business are so large that a way must be found to move them. Price is not the first consideration at such a time. The stock must be moved "to make room," as the signs say.

The things that are not generally understood by the retailers are that the department stores pay fair prices for the stock they buy and that in nearly every case they make quite as large a profit as the retailer does; when they don't, the difference is more than made up by the amount of advertising obtained from the hullabaloo. For instance, a specimen plant purchased at $6 is offered for sale at $15.89, and if it doesn't sell in a week it is marked "Special, $12.29." Roses that no retailer will buy are purchased at $5 per thousand and offered at 1 cent each, 12 cents per dozen. The market having tightened; in other words, all the poor roses having been sold, the same roses are offered after lunch at 2 cents each, 24 cents per dozen, while the crowd thickens around the counter. Ferns that cost 50 cents are attractively marked at 98 cents, which, when you consider that the stock is quickly handled, is not so bad.

The modern flower shop in a department store must have a live florist, who understands his business thoroughly, in charge. Such a man knows when there is a surplus of anything and what that thing is worth. He brings producer and consumer together and must make a fair profit to make it worth his while to do so. Most florists have ceased to believe that these sales seriously affect prices, because they see that most of the department store buyers are rarely flower buyers. When they become so, they require something better than a department store can supply, and for that they go to a florist.

The growers are less strenuous in their opposition to the new method. They have some painful moments over the prices and the come-backs, but it teaches them business, and in so doing is of great value. Whether we like it or not, the department store flower

WILSON'S STYLE SHOW WINDOW.

A window display that brought business as well as a gold medal to the firm which staged it is shown in the illustration on this page. This was made by Wilson's Seed Store, at Columbus, O., for the local style show October 6 to 8.

One window, at the right, was devoted to roses; one dozen choice blooms of a number of the newer varieties, furnished by Bassett & Washburn, of Chicago, were shown in Japanese wicker vases and baskets, each variety being tagged. In the other window were displayed a shower bouquet of Kaiserin roses, valley and Adiantum Farleyense, a bridesmaid's hat of Cecile Brunner roses with a centerpiece of Wards, and baskets of snapdragon, against a background of mantel boxes, in which were crotons and pompons. Brown velvet plush on the floor of the windows added to the effect. Both windows were festooned with plumosus strings.

Competing in a class of florists and jewelers, Wilson's Seed Store was awarded the gold medal for the most artistic window. This concern, together with all the other merchants of Columbus, is strong in praise of the style show as an advertising opportunity. The committee in charge had worked up local interest and for three days and nights the streets were thronged with interested sight-seers.

How much in favor of this sort of thing Wilson's Seed Store now is may be seen from the firm's own statement: "We consider the money invested for our windows exceedingly well spent and believe florists in any town that has a style show would find it would pay to compete. We have landed several good jobs as direct results of our window display."

PRINCESS OF WALES VIOLETS.

Are there more than one kind of Princess of Wales violets? I have grown them from five different sources, and though I did not have five varieties, I think I had three. I obtained from C. H. Frey, Lincoln, Neb., a variety of Princess of Wales which seemed the same in leaf, flower and habit as some I had obtained locally. I obtained from Wm. Sim, Cliftondale, Mass., a Princess of Wales which corresponded to some others obtained locally in flower and leaf, and from David Bisset, Garrett Park, Md., I received another hundred Princess of Wales which resembled Sim's and the locally obtained ones in flower, but which were not so large and loose-leaved. All of these were beautiful violets of pale mauve color, intensely fragrant, with long stems, sometimes twelve inches, but of quite scanty bloom, averaging not over five violets to a plant, and that in February, when violets are at their lowest price. The Frey violets and my own are a deep, dark, beautiful blue. They began blooming this year September 22 and average about fifty violets to a plant. They continue in bloom until about May 1. They have fine stems and good flowers, though not so large as the others, being perhaps two-thirds of the size. The Bisset is two-thirds of an inch to one and one-fourth inches in diameter; the Frey is not quite an inch. The dark ones are not so fragrant as the Marie Louise or the large, pale blue of Sim and Bisset, but they have a pleasant and noticeable odor. S.

I think it is not at all unlikely that you may have had more than one variety of violet sent to you under the name of Princess of Wales, but it is well to remember that last year violets over a large section of the country acted peculiarly, due, in the main, to a long period of warm, wet and sunless weather, and lack of frost before the plants were housed. Plants bloomed erratically, a large proportion giving about one-third of a crop until spring, when, of course, all bloomed freely. As a consequence, the majority of the growers of single violets had the reverse of a good financial season. Early housing of single violets, before the plants have had the leaf growth checked by one or two moderate freezings, always results in a heavy leaf growth at the expense of flowers, which come paler in color and smaller in size. Violets produced on plants housed before frost and after freezing would pass for distinct varieties, owing to the distinct color of the flowers and the ranker leaf growth on the earlier planted ones. I know for a positive fact that one of the firms from whom you bought plants is the largest single violet grower in America, having 75,000 plants each season, and has nothing but Princess of Wales on the place. To produce good single violets you must grow them in a large, light, airy house, with a winter minimum as near 40 degrees as possible. Any higher figure will induce leaf growth at the expense of flowers.

appearance and make slippery spots that risk a customer's fall. Everything will have its place and will be kept there. Convenience and comfort will be the marks of the establishment, without either disorder on the one hand or stiffness of appearance on the other.

Like a Habit.

The accompanying illustrations show how profitable are the results of a little care. They are of the store of the La Crosse Floral Co., of La Crosse, Wis. This company's business has increased so rapidly in the six years of its existence that it was recently decided to open a store to facilitate carrying on trade. Maintaining its high standard, the company obtained the best of fixtures and furnishings, and, to still further hold to its high record, it gave every attention to keeping up the excellent appearance of the place.

It is easy to keep up appearances in a new store, some may say. True, for in a new store there are no bad habits to break. But good habits, once formed, will wear just as well in an old place, and to a much more appreciable advantage. The first object is to get the good habits, and with these, appearances will seem to keep up themselves, almost without effort.

DEPARTMENT STORE METHODS.

A live journal must tell its readers what is going on, to be in touch with the times. The most important thing in the flower business today is the method employed to sell flowers and plants in the department stores of the larger cities. The methods have materially changed since the heads of the great stores have better understood conditions.

Formerly the flower department was under one of their own people, a trader, a business man; today it is run by a florist, who must have business ability, usually on the percentage plan. So rapid has been the growth of the business in these department stores that it affects the whole flower business— wholesaler, retailer and grower alike. The wholesalers understand the conditions under which department store sales are made better than either the retailers or the growers, who view them from a more or less prejudiced point of view. The retailers believe that the department stores take away their customers in some cases and cheapen their stock in others. The growers believe that the prices paid are starvation prices and that the claims made are unwarranted. Despite these conflicting views, many of our thinking florists are coming to the conclusion that the department store flower shop is a decided advantage to the business today. The surpluses incident to the growth of business are large that a way must be found move them. Price is not the first sideration at such a time. The st must be moved "to make room," the signs say.

The things that are not gener understood by the retailers are t the department stores pay fair pri for the stock they buy and that nearly every case they make quite large a profit as the retailer does; wh they don't, the difference is more th made up by the amount of advertis obtained from the hullabaloo. I instance, a specimen plant purcha at $6 is offered for sale at $15.89, a if it doesn't sell in a week it is mar "Special, $12.29." Roses that no tailer will buy are purchased at $5 thousand and offered at 1 cent ea 12 cents per dozen. The market ha ing tightened; in other words, all t poor roses having been sold, the sa roses are offered after lunch at 2 ce each, 24 cents per dozen, while t crowd thickens around the counte Ferns that cost 50 cents are attra tively marked at 98 cents, which, wh you consider that the stock is quick handled, is not so bad.

The modern flower shop in a depa ment store must have a live florist, w understands his business thoroughly, charge. Such a man knows when the is a surplus of anything and what that thing is worth. He brings produc and consumer together and must mak a fair profit to make it worth his w to do so. Most florists have ceased t believe that these sales seriously affe prices, because they see that most of the department store buyers are rarely flower buyers. When they become s they require something better than department store can supply, and f that they go to a florist.

The growers are less strenuous their opposition to the new metho They have some painful moments ov the prices and the come-backs, but teaches them business, and in so doi is of great value. Whether we like or not, the department store flow

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Azalea Indica.

A good many azaleas from Belgium have already arrived in America and many more will undoubtedly come to hand this fall. A few weeks ago it seemed doubtful whether we would get any. Such as are arriving will cost importers some fifty per cent more than normal in freights. This may somewhat increase their selling price, but we are assured of at least a moderate supply. Just as soon as azaleas arrive, the balls should be stood in tubs of water and thoroughly soaked. Then they can be stood closely on the floor of a cold pit until potted. The work of potting should be done just as soon as possible, for the plants will only lose foliage if allowed to remain long out of the pots. Drain the pots well and ram the soil firmly about the balls. Soak well with water later, to settle the soil.

Some of the earliest azaleas, such as Mme. Petrick, Firefly, Charles Encke and Deutsche Perle, should go into heat at once. Quite a few will flower for Thanksgiving and a large number for Christmas. Spray these early plants freely and rub out any growths which may be made in advance of the flowers.

Rambler Roses.

While pot-grown roses are always the best for early forcing, plants which have been field-grown and are dug up now and carefully potted will run them a close second. Save all possible roots when potting and do not allow them to lie around and become dried up first. Pot firmly, using a good soil, heavy rather than light. Stand them outdoors in an open, sunny spot. This allows the soil to become warmer than where shade is afforded, and the roots become active almost immediately. These plants will become nicely established before the cold weather arrives and will break earlier and more strongly than late potted ones from perfectly dormant stock. When the plants cease wilting and are establishing themselves, gradually decrease the water supply in order to ripen off the wood better.

Every grower has his special favorites in ramblers, but it is safe to say that Tausendschon is today the most popular variety we have for pot culture. Dorothy Perkins, White Dorothy, Lady Gay, Hiawatha and the old Crimson Rambler are also favorites. Pink varieties sell much better than crimson ones, not only at Easter, but on all other occasions. Do not overlook the so-called baby ramblers, such as Orleans, Mme. Norbert Levavasseur, Baby Dorothy, Mrs. W. H. Cutbush, Catherine Zeimet and others. These all make ideal little pot plants.

Lily of the Valley.

There appears to be an adequate supply of cold storage valley pips in America to carry us along until well into the new year, and probably by that time some means may be devised to get additional shipments from Germany via Denmark or Holland. The shortage in valley will probably be more felt in 1916 and 1917 than in 1915. With all able-bodied men under arms up to 45 years of age, all industries must suffer and the likelihood is that valley planting will be no exception to the rule.

Cold storage valley does not need bottom heat. A top heat of 60 degrees is ample. Keep dark until the spikes are pushing up about halfway; then gradually give more light, so that the plants will have better foliage. It makes little difference what material valley pips are planted in. Sand is the easiest material to use and the most cleanly. A good watering a day will suffice and care must be taken not to wet the flowers over when once they are expanding. Valley is in good demand in October and November for weddings. It takes from three to four weeks at this season to flower it, in an average temperature of 60 degrees.

Pancratium Maritimum.

Another bulbous plant closely allied to the eucharis is Pancratium maritimum, which is now coming into bloom. It is particularly valuable for use in wedding bouquets and funeral designs. I find that one large flowering bulb in an 8-inch pot gives good results, or three may go into a 10-inch pot. For compost use one-half fibrous loam, one-fourth old cow manure and the balance leafmold and sand. By keeping the plants somewhat dry during August and September, a crop of spikes can be had in October and November. These old-world bulbs are hardy in the warmer parts of the United States, but most of us will need to grow them in pots. A few plants do not take up much room and an ordinary greenhouse will grow and flower them just as well as a more tropical one. Large specimens of pancratiums in pots are occasionally seen and make a beautiful show while in flower. It is best to remove the pollen masses from the flowers as they expand, to prevent the flowers from becoming discolored.

Reading, England.—Sutton & Sons have sent seventy employees to the colors, including two sons of Leonard Sutton, who are lieutenants.

London, England.—The hall of the Royal Horticultural Society, which has been used by troops, has been turned back to the society and the regular program of shows has been resumed.

Orleans, France.—E. Turbat & Co., successors to Jules Gouchault & Turbat, state that they see no reason why the usual shipments of nursery stock should not proceed from the Orleans district.

Ghent, Belgium.—Although the German army passed through this district, practically no damage was done the 1,500 horticultural establishments or their crops. With motors in many instances taking the place of horses, the moving columns stick to the highways.

Rotterdam, Holland.—German houses have established Dutch agencies to attempt to hold English custom, but the British horticultural trades are determined to get along without German supplies during the war. The British gardening press constantly urges planters to support the trade in this action.

London, England.—The British novelty raisers who had prepared stock for 1915 are going ahead as though nothing had happened. Cocker & Sons, Aberdeen; Dobbie & Co., Edinburgh; Cooper, Taber & Co., London; Watkins & Simpson, London; Laxton Bros., Bedford; Kelway & Son, Langport; Samuel McGredy & Son, Portadown; Hurst & Son, London; Charles Sharpe & Co., Sleaford, and others, have their usual lists of novelties.

Guernsey, Channel Islands.—C. F. A. van der Sluys grows annually a half-million plants of American and British carnations for export. Trade with the colonies has not been interrupted by the war and orders from England are again coming, but business with the continent has ceased.

London, England.—At Covent Garden market those who offer really good spray chrysanthemums admit that the general average returns are equal to other seasons. All good mums are selling at paying prices. Mrs. Charles Russell rose is of bright color, but seems to suffer greatly from mildew. Considering all things, plant trade is excellent.

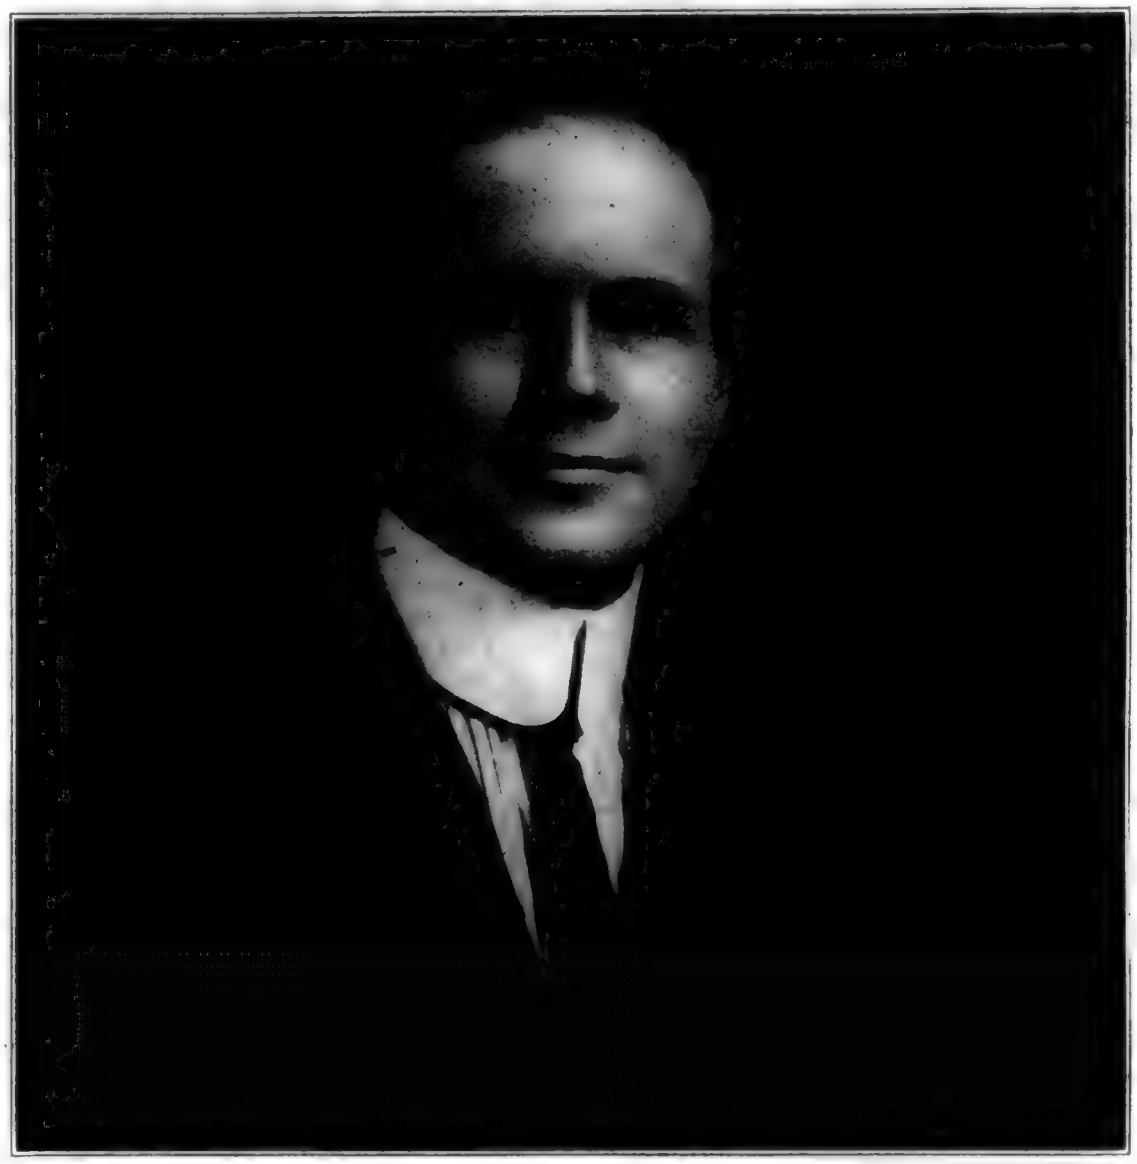
Ghent, Belgium.—Arthur De Smet, president of the trade syndicate, and his executive committee, have had a busy sixty days. Almost daily meetings have been held and the trade's interests safeguarded as far as could be, with advice and assistance given individuals wherever possible. Recently conditions have cleared to a considerable degree.

Haarlem, Holland.—The stronger exporters have ceased to push bulbs onto either the British or American markets. A considerable percentage of the crop remains unsold, but it is not desirable to demoralize the markets and bring loss to regular customers. The shipments to auction houses are principally by weaker houses or those who have no regular overseas customers. The haste with which shipments were sent out left the grower who usually sells to exporters with considerable stock, as the exporters did not wait to buy the items they do not themselves grow, but filled orders as best they could with what was in their own warehouses.

PREPARE FOR TEXAS SHOW.

The final premium list has been issued and preparations are advancing rapidly for the first annual show of the Texas State Florists' Association, which is to be held at Houston, November 12 to 14. To boost flowers in Texas and the south is the object of the exhibition and the advertising opportunity is an excellent one, as the show occurs the latter part of No-Tsu-Oh week, when the waterway celebration will draw thousands of visitors from all parts of the state and the south to Houston. This is expected to be a help to R. C. Kerr, of Houston, president of the Texas State Florists' Association, and T. J. Wolfe, of Waco, chairman of the show committee, in their work of securing exhibitors from all parts of the country, from the north and east as well as from their own section.

The premium list shows 100 classes, the greater part of which are open to professionals. Chrysanthemums are well represented, and there are a number of prizes for retailers' work of various kinds. As stated above, R. C. Kerr and T. J. Wolfe are the leaders in the work. The other members of the flower show committee are Henry Greve, of Dallas; T. J. Stubblefield, of Fort Worth; E. D. Hall, of Austin; W. Suchy, of San Antonio, and E. E. Stone, of Dickinson. The Houston committee of the state organization consists of George M. Cosh, chairman; C. T. Brock, I. M. Johnson and S. J. Mitchell. The committee of the Houston Florists' Club includes H. H. Kuhlman, H. Blicker, I. M. Johnson and John H. Boyle.



FREESIA PURITY.

How tall should Freesia Purity be in growth before flowering? The bulbs were potted August 7 in a 4-inch halfpot, or pan, and October 7 were thirty-one inches tall and still growing. I find it exceedingly difficult to keep them upright and the general appearance is not pleasing. They have always grown in this manner and, although they produce nice flowers, as pot plants they are not attractive. I have tried making the soil less rich this year, using soil from the violet beds, which had been in use one season, but without further enrichment. There was a liberal allowance of sand. The pots were kept on a north porch until the bulbs sprouted and "fenced," when they were removed to a shelf in the greenhouse, where they are now threatening to reach the roof. Any advice or information, it is needless to say, will be highly appreciated. S.

Your plants are certainly exceptionally tall; thirty-one inches is extremely tall, even for plants when in full flower. It would almost seem as though your plants had been drawn by being kept too far from the light. I measured today a batch potted about the same date as your own. They are now about sixteen inches tall.

I would suggest that you place your freesias another year in a coldframe after planting, water well and then cover the pots with leaves or moss to prevent drying out. Remove this covering when growth has started and give the plants full light. Remove to a carnation temperature by the middle of September if you want a Christmas crop. I find that freesias succeed better in a moderately rich soil with some sand added. Of course, only well decayed manure should be used. It is better to have good soil and not to feed, as I have found that feeding invariably causes the ends of the leaves to turn brown. The plants need an abundant water supply, however, once the pots are full of roots. It is best to plant at intervals of a fortnight for a succession of crops. Late batches can stay in coldframes until December if necessary. C. W.

"HIS FATHER'S SON"

G. E. M. STUMPP.

WHEN George M. Stumpp reached his sixtieth birthday last spring he handed over his business, one of the best in New York, to his son, and sailed for Europe.

A son is a mighty fine thing to have in a flower store, or a greenhouse—especially when the son is as keen for the business as G. E. M. Stumpp is for the business that occupied his father's thoughts and energies for thirty-five years. The young man can put fresh vigor into it when the sire is growing old—carry the family name onward and upward and add fresh luster to a business reputation. This chip off the old block is 33 years of age and, from his school days, has spent his life in his father's store, getting ready for this season of 1914-15.

PAPER WHITES IN SOLID BEDS.

Will you kindly tell me how to grow Paper Whites in solid beds? I always used to plant them in flats, but I think I could save a great deal of labor by planting them in solid beds right away. Would you advise me to do so? Please state how soon they will bloom if planted in this way. F. S.

You might be able to save some labor by planting your bulbs in solid beds. The trouble is that you will get too many in flower at one time. The great advantage in growing in flats is that the stock can be moved into heat and retarded at will. This you cannot do with stock planted in beds. Then again, all your bulbs can be planted in flats now, yet by using a cold cellar a succession of blooms is easily possible from Thanksgiving, and earlier if necessary, until March. The flats can be started below the benches, if you have any raised benches, and stood up before the flowers open.

If, however, you prefer to adopt the solid bed plan, you must make several plantings to insure a succession, or all will come in at once. Plant the bulbs, merely covering them, in any ordinary soil. The bulbs can go quite close together, almost touching one another. Soak well with water after planting, then go a little light with moisture until the growths are well started. They will succeed in a temperature of 50 to 60 degrees; at the lower figure the flowers will have more substance. C. W.

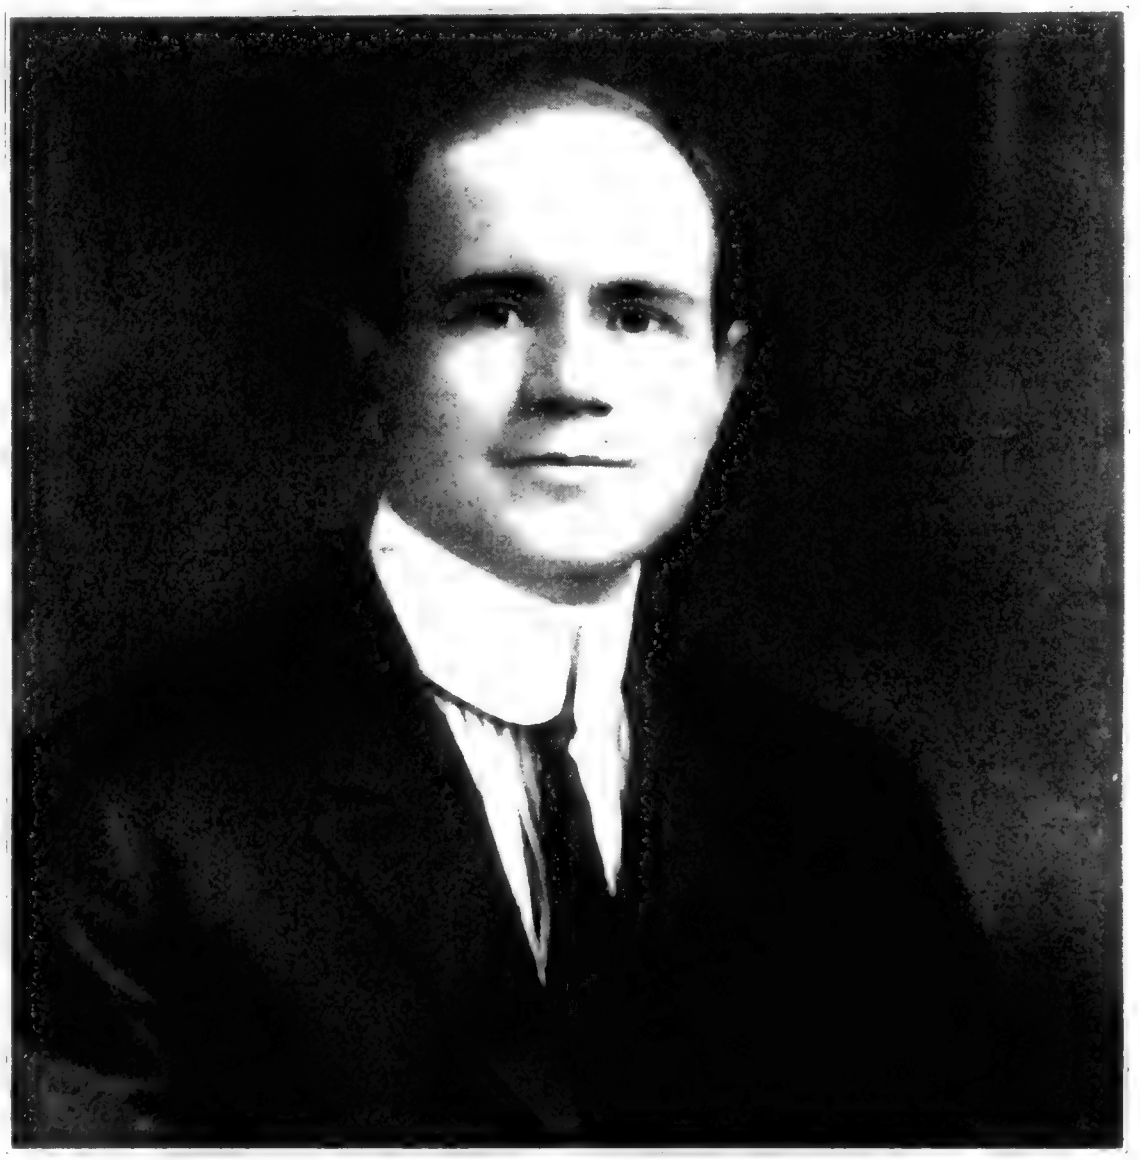
Hall, of Austin; W. Suchy, of San Antonio, and E. E. Stone, of Dickinson. The Houston committee of the state organization consists of George M. Cosh, chairman; C. T. Brock, I. M. Johnson and S. L. Mitchell. The committee of the Houston Florists' Club includes H. H. Kuhlman, H. Blicker, I. M. Johnson and John H. Boyle.

FREESIA PURITY.

How tall should Freesia Purity be in growth before flowering? The bulbs were potted August 7 in a 4-inch half-pot, or pan, and October 7 were thirty-one inches tall and still growing. I find it exceedingly difficult to keep them upright and the general appearance is not pleasing. They have always grown in this manner and, although they produce nice flowers, as pot plants they are not attractive. I have tried making the soil less rich this year, using soil from the violet beds, which had been in use one season, but without further enrichment. There was a liberal allowance of sand. The pots were kept on a north porch until the bulbs sprouted and "fenced," when they were removed to a shelf in the greenhouse, where they are now threatening to reach the roof. Any advice or information, it is needless to say, will be highly appreciated. S.

Your plants are certainly exceptionally tall; thirty-one inches is extremely tall. Even for plants when in full flower. It would almost seem as though your plants had been drawn by being kept too far from the light. I measured today a batch potted about the same date as your own. They are now about sixteen inches tall.

I would suggest that you place your freesias another year in a coldframe after planting, water well and then cover the pots with leaves or moss to prevent drying out. Remove this covering when growth has started and give the plants full light. Remove to a carnation temperature by the middle of September if you want a Christmas crop. I find that freesias succeed better in a moderately rich soil with some sand added. Of course, only well decayed manure should be used. It is better to have good soil and not to feed, as I have found that feeding invariably causes the ends of the leaves to turn brown. The plants need an abundant water supply, however, once the pots are full of roots. It is best to plant at intervals of a fortnight for a succession of crops. Late batches can stay in coldframes until December if necessary. C. W.



PAPER WHITES IN SOLID BEDS.

Will you kindly tell me how to grow Paper Whites in solid beds? I always used to plant them in flats, but I think I could save a great deal of labor by planting them in solid beds right away. Would you advise me to do so? Please state how soon they will bloom if planted in this way. F. S.

You might be able to save some labor by planting your bulbs in solid beds. The trouble is that you will get too many in flower at one time. The great advantage in growing in flats is that the stock can be moved into heat and retarded at will. This you cannot do with stock planted in beds. Then again, all your bulbs can be planted in flats now, yet by using a cold cellar a succession of blooms is easily possible from Thanksgiving, and earlier if necessary, until March. The flats can be started below the benches, if you have any raised benches, and stood up before the flowers open.

If, however, you prefer to adopt the solid bed plan, you must make several plantings to insure a succession, or all will come in at once. Plant the bulbs, merely covering them, in any ordinary soil. The bulbs can go quite close together, almost touching one another. Soak well with water after planting, then go a little light with moisture until the growths are well started. They will succeed in a temperature of 50 to 60 degrees; at the lower figure the flowers will have more substance. C. W.

"HIS FATHER'S SON"

G. E. M. STUMPP.

WHEN George M. Stumpp reached his sixtieth birthday last spring he handed over his business, one of the best in New York, to his son, and sailed for Europe.

A son is a mighty fine thing to have in a flower store, or a greenhouse—especially when the son is as keen for the business as G. E. M. Stumpp is for the business that occupied his father's thoughts and energies for thirty-five years. The young man can put fresh vigor into it when the sire is growing old—carry the family name onward and upward and add fresh luster to a business reputation. This chip off the old block is 33 years of age and, from his school days, has spent his life in his father's store, getting ready for this season of 1914-15.

Toledo, O. Metz & Bateman are sending out cardboard folders, on which appear the likeness of Manager Earl W. Metz and a few phrases calculated to catch business.

ORCHIDS

Dendrobium Phalænopsis.

Dendrobium Phalænopsis is a most valuable early winter-flowering orchid. Some flowers already are open and many more will expand within another month. We grow this orchid successfully by hanging it well up to the glass in a warm, moist stove house, removing the plants when in flower to the cattleya house. It succeeds best in small pans or baskets. As fifteen to twenty flowers are sometimes carried on a spike and several spikes are produced on strong bulbs, this is an invaluable orchid for groups, for table decorations or for cutting. Do not move it into a cool house as soon as the first flower opens, or there will be a probability that many of the buds will turn yellow.

Dendrobium Nobile.

Dendrobium nobile, the late winter flowering dendrobe, should now have its pseudo-bulbs well made up. All that have completed their growths should be hung in a sunny house and have their water supply much reduced; an occasional dip and a spray overhead on hot days will keep them plump. Leave plants with soft, immature bulbs a while longer in heat. Some of the nobile hybrids, such as D. euosmum, will soon be in flower. A few of the short-bulbed hybrid dendrobes, such as D. Juno, need a thorough baking to make them flower.

Dendrobium Wardianum.

Already I notice nodes showing on some of the earliest ripened of D. Wardianum. This is one of the largest and most handsome of all dendrobes and one which flowers profusely each year. Unlike nobile, it loses all its foliage before flowering, but the blooms are so striking that the absence of leaves is hardly noticed. Keep the plants dry at the root and fairly cool. This is necessary to prevent the plants from sending up a new lot of growths.

Calanthes.

As the calanthes start to lose their foliage, gradually reduce the water supply. Some growers imagine that no more water is needed when once the flowers are opening. As a matter of fact, the spikes are much finer if water is supplied in moderate quantities until all the flowers are open. Guard, however, against wetting the bulbs any more than is necessary. Liquid manure need not be applied after this date. The plants, until the flowers start to open, will succeed best in a minimum temperature of 65 degrees. Give them 5 degrees less heat and a drier house later. The spikes should now be four to six inches high, at least; in this case the flowers should be nicely open for Christmas.

Vanda Cærulea.

Vanda cærulea, the glorious blue orchid, delights in a position close to the glass. Plants grown under ground glass without any shade in summer are flowering much better than others kept in a shadier position, although the latter have beautiful dark green foliage. Keep some fresh shagnum growing on the surfaces of the pots; somehow plants in the growing moss look healthier and flower better than those without it. The cool end of the cattleya house suits this vanda admirably.

EUCHARIS AMAZONICA.

Will you please give me some information as to the proper handling of Eucharis Amazonica for cut flowers and as to the best varieties for this purpose? What are the proper day and night temperatures for them?

W. M.

This fine, warm-house bulbous plant is seen here commercially only to a limited extent. In Europe it is an important flower and realizes high prices. It is not grown here to the extent it was twenty years ago; more's the pity, as it is beautiful, of comparatively easy culture and splendid for florists' use. If the plants are to be pot-grown, the soil should be coarse, with the finer particles screened out and some lumpy charcoal, dried cow manure, sharp sand and bone meal added. Good drainage is necessary. A good water supply should be afforded and the foliage should be well syringed to keep down mealy bug. The plants can be moderately dried off for a few weeks at almost any season. After watering is resumed a good crop of spikes will soon appear, especially where the plants can have good bottom heat. In summer eucharis does well in any ordinary greenhouse, but is at its best in a tropical house kept at 60 to 70 degrees at night. I have seen splendid plants grown at the end of a rose house. Under careful culture two crops of flowers a year are easily to be had, and occasionally even three. Their culture must be well understood to get three, however. The finest spikes are produced where a piece of bench can be devoted to them. The compost must be coarse, so that water passes through it freely, and good bottom heat helps wonderfully. When planted out, eucharis is far more vigorous, and needs dividing once in three years to prevent overcrowding. Mealy bug can be controlled by spraying with clear water or a good insecticide.

C. W.

Kansas City, Mo.—E. S. Brus, formerly in business at 4015 Benton boulevard, has quit the florists' trade.

Milwaukee, Wis.—The Fox Point Floral Co., which specializes in cyclamen, has installed a No. 7 Kroeschell boiler in its new range of houses and Jacob Freytag is preparing to install a No. 5 of the same make.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

CRACKING UNDER THE BUD.

Can you tell me the reason why some of the buds on my Wm. Turner chrysanthemums are cracking almost off the stem just below where the bud and stem join? I have been told it results from overfeeding. The buds are first terminal and are just beginning to show color when the crack becomes noticeable.

H. E.

It is not an uncommon thing for Turner to crack under the bud. This is caused by overfeeding or heavy watering after the plants have become quite dry; as a result the sap rushes up to the bud and cracks the stem. However, this will not interfere with the finishing of the blooms, as I have known of cases where the flower grew perfectly hanging to the stem by a shred. If H. E. will discontinue feeding and keep his plants a little on the dry side, he will not need to worry about the development of the flowers.

Chas. H. Totty.

EARLY MUMS IN LATH HOUSE.

I am desirous of knowing whether the early varieties of chrysanthemums, such as Golden Glow and Smith's Advance, could be successfully grown in a lath house, for the market, in this Illinois climate. If so, how far apart should the laths be?

W. H. B.

There is no reason why you cannot grow Golden Glow and Smith's Advance in a lath house if you so wish, though these two varieties are not so satisfactory as some other varieties under the same conditions. Smith's Advance is the better one of the two, as Golden Glow seems to harden up and throw nothing but buds all summer and it is difficult to get any length of stem on it. The early flowering mums of such type as Normandie, Cranford Yellow, Cranford Pink, Jimmie, A. Barham and others are giving much better satisfaction in almost every section.

The lath we have used with success here is a kind which is handled by the lumber merchants and which is wired together and used as fences for chickens and in various other ways. The strips run about an inch apart.

IMMORTELLES COME SLOWLY.

The immortelles are not arriving as rapidly as had been expected. Each boat from Marseilles brings a few cases, but the number is not large enough to relieve the certain degree of uneasiness still felt as to the adequacy of the season's supply. On the boat that reached New York October 16 there were three consignments as follows:

Shipments of plants from the port of Rotterdam, through which Belgian stock is being sent, continue to come along steadily. A number of consignments of fair size come on nearly every boat. SEEDSMEN AT THE FAIRS.

The seed trade is taking full advantage of the autumn exhibitions to arouse public interest, staging well arranged booths at the county fairs and other similar exhibitions. As an example of what is being done in this line, the accompanying illustration shows the display of the J. J. Wilson Seed Co., at the recent Newark industrial exposition. In addition to the displays of seeds and vegetables, there were vases of many of the newer dahlias and such gladioli as Peace, Dawn, Niagara and Panama.

A Typical Seed Store Showing at an Industrial Exposition.

J. J. Wilson says business is developing most encouragingly and that the attention attracted at the exhibition was promptly reflected in the business at the store.

Vegetable Forcing

WILT OF CUCUMBERS.

Will you kindly tell me what is generally conceded to be the cause of bacterial wilt of cucumbers? If it is the cucumber bug, in what way does it kill the vine? I have noticed in some vines the upper portion seems to be dead and in others the entire vine. I am referring to greenhouse-grown cucumbers.

W. F. P.

This is an important question, and opinions from growers who have had this trouble and have overcome it would be highly appreciated by many readers of The Review.

It is a fact that cucumber specialists who make a habit of sterilizing their soil are usually entirely immune from this disease. It is a further proven fact that soil which has been thoroughly frozen gives a clean crop if the sides of the beds or benches are washed well with kerosene or crude oil. Where the soil is somewhat dry below and quite moist above, this bacterial wilt, which I attribute to root gall, is always acute. It seems to be encouraged or developed in a hot, moist atmosphere where the soil is kept constantly saturated. Not infrequently one part of the vine will die before another.

Cleanliness, careful watering and ventilation, and sterilization of the soil each year seem to be the means by which to control this menace to cucumber growers.

EARLY CABBAGE IN TENNESSEE.

My location, you will notice, is northern Tennessee. If I sow cabbage seed now, in open, rich beds outside, without covering, can I grow frost-proof cabbage plants to be set in January and February, when the weather will permit, and do you think they will make heads and not go to seed in this climate? I have heretofore sowed in December in sash-covered beds, and the result was that most of them went to seed. I have used Wakefield and midseason varieties. What varieties would you recommend, if it is possible to grow them here successfully? During the winter, quantities of frost-proof cabbage plants from the Carolinas and Virginia are shipped here. If possible, I would rather grow them.

M. E. H.

The best variety of early cabbage for Tennessee is the Charleston Wakefield, somewhat larger than the old Early Jersey Wakefield, but only a little later. Sow the seed in October. About the middle to the last part of November, transplant one and a half inches apart, both ways, in a coldframe. Air freely and grow the plants through the winter with a view to increasing their hardiness. The plants should be well established by the middle of December, and from that time on the purpose of the gardener is to harden them sufficiently to withstand the open climate. By the middle of February they should be transplanted to the field, preferably on the north side of a slight ridge running east and west. We have no difficulty in getting good heads and an early crop in this way.

CATALOGUES RECEIVED.

Fraser Nursery Co., Huntsville, Ala.—Wholesale catalogue, for nurserymen and dealers only. The stock listed comprises ornamental trees, shrubs, roses, fruit trees, small fruits, nut trees, garden roots, nursery tools and supplies; twenty-four pages, illustrated.

Hammond's Slug Shot Works, Fishkill-on-Hudson, N. Y.—A 28-page, illustrated catalogue of Hammond's insect exterminators, with directions for their use; included in the list, also, are a spraying apparatus, a weed killer, greenhouse paint, etc.

Arthur T. Boddington, New York, N. Y.—"Boddington's Garden Guide," containing lists of bulbs, plants, grass seeds, special mixtures of grass seeds for lawn and field, mushroom spawn, fruit trees, small fruits, garden tools, insecticides, fertilizers, potting materials and other supplies; thirty-two pages, illustrated, and cover.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS.

Samuel Murray, of Kansas City, Mo., is of the opinion that we must not look for quite so good a season as last year, although he has prepared for the best. One of the sights at his range is a house of Begonia Lorraine and Cincinnati, grown in 11-inch, green, light cedar tubs, the swellest yet seen. He considers Norwood Beauty the gem of Craig's crotons, of which there is a fine lot. There is also a batch of highly colored Ananassa sativa variegata. Among the various berried and other plants for Christmas trade is a block of peppers grown from seed brought from Egypt by a lady patron and presented to Col. Sharp, who has had charge of the houses for twenty-five years. The plant makes a graceful, irregular, free growth and is smothered with miniature scarlet fruit. A fine, healthy lot of cattleyas and the uncommon Lælia Gouldiana and Oncidium splendidum were also noted. A handsome specimen of Dicksonia antarctica, with a trunk ten feet high and a head of fronds spreading six feet, will help ornament the handsome store.

R. S. Brown & Son, of Kansas City, Mo., made a good move when they built the latest addition to their plant. The veteran founder of this, one of the first establishments in the west to engage in the plant shipping business, is under the weather, but will soon be on the job as usual.

Charles P. Mueller, of Wichita, Kan., is a director, decorator and busy man generally just now, during the annual exposition, which is breaking all previous records in the size and quality of exhibits. This is a year of banner crops and, to the interested observer, betokens a prosperous present and future. Corn sixteen feet in stalk; of alfalfa four and five crops in one season; an enormous yield of wheat—figures do not convey the satisfactory conditions that exist. The taste for the beautiful is increasing.

The Barteldes Seed Co., of Lawrence, Kan., is well pleased with feterita, a species of kaffir corn, but an earlier cropper and heavier yielder. While particularly adapted to dry culture, it has yielded heavily on moist lowlands this summer. Producing ears the size of the kaffir, it is bound to be popular.

C. E. Hubbard, of Topeka, Kan., says the weather is too mild for brisk business, although he has no kick coming. He had a good seed season and a full supply for the cut flower and plant departments. W. M.

HARTFORD, CONN.

The Market.

Flowers of all kinds are now in demand. The supply of roses is good and all move well. The novelty in roses is Francis Scott Key and the few that are to be obtained are eagerly sought. The supply of carnations is still light. Mums continue scarce. They are from two to four weeks late this year. The demand for them is greater than the supply.

Various Notes.

Spear & McManus held their fall opening October 7 and 8, at which they gave away 10,000 roses as souvenirs.

John Coombs' new store, on Asylum street, is quite attractive. V. H. Olmstead is in charge. With two first-class stores, backed by a fine range of glass, this firm is in a position to maintain its title, "The Leading Florist."

George G. McClunie reports business as rushing at his Maple street store.

A. N. Pierson, Inc., has received the usual quantity of azaleas. R. C. S.

DETROIT.

The Market.

Business has been rather spasmodic of late, coming in fits and jerks. Usually in the morning all hands are busy; then there is a lull and late in the afternoon some more work. A number of weddings have kept some of the retailers quite busy. Stock is plentiful and of finest quality. Beauties and other roses are first-class. Carnations are coming along nicely, the cooler weather of the last few days having helped considerably. Dahlias are still with us and many beautiful blooms are available. Mums are on hand in large numbers, including many pompons. The demand has been heavy for valley, owing to the many weddings.

Various Notes.

J. B. Nester and J. McAvoy, of Hitchings & Co., are in Detroit supervising the construction of a conservatory on the David Gray place at Grosse Pointe. These gentlemen were visitors at the Stahelin place on Sunday, October 18, and were much interested in Mr. Stahelin's movable houses.

The members of the Detroit Florists' Club who are classed as growers held a meeting Monday evening, October 19. This meeting was for growers only. Monday evening, November 2, will be retailers' night; then, on the following meeting night, November 16, there will be a joint meeting. This joint meeting, no doubt, will prove an unusually interesting one and well worth attending.

The writer visited the immense range of Albert Stahelin on Sunday, October 18, and was much impressed with the general appearance of the place and the condition of the stock. The carnations have already made wonderful growth; they have long, strong stems and good sized blooms, and loads of them. The new house, which is 72 x 400, is planted with pompons, carnations, stevias and snapdragons, all of which are in fine condition. The heating system in this house was entirely planned by Mr. Stahelin and is well worth anyone's inspection. The temperature can be regulated to the minutest degree.

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the Detroit Florists' Club held a special meeting Monday evening, October 19, at the Michigan Cut Flower Exchange, to complete the plans for a dancing party which is to be held at Strassburg's hall on the evening of November 12. The proceeds are to be devoted to charitable purposes and it is to be hoped that the men will all fall in line and help the ladies in this most noble undertaking. H. S.

The store of the Atlas Floral Co., on Campus Martius, a few doors west of Detroit Opera House, was formally opened to the public October 14. The manager, Bernard Freidmann, is only 22 years of age, but has spent more than half of his life in the trade. The new store is handsomely decorated and its furnishings are largely of marble.

Somersworth, N. H.—G. S. Ramsburg is away in the woods on his annual fall hunting trip.

Cromwell, Conn.—Wallace R. Pierson has returned from his yearly trip into the Maine woods, all gingered up for the winter campaign.

New London, Conn.—Martin C. Ebel, of Madison, N. J., will be the speaker at the November meeting of the New London Horticultural Society.

Milford, Conn.—A greenhouse seventy-five feet long is being erected at the range of Mr. Tubbs, who is a market gardener as well as a florist.

Fairhaven, Mass.—James Garthley, formerly in charge of the estate of H. H. Rogers, the late standard oil magnate, is operating the greenhouses on a commercial basis. He will move the greenhouses later, as the estate is to be cut up into streets and building lots.

Orange, Mass.—After a slight frost the weather has been fine, and asters, gladioli, antirrhinums, etc., are in excellent condition. Aside from funeral work, business is dead, according to Mrs. M. J. Cochrane. The stores are running on short time, while everything in the greenhouses looks fine.

Ansonia, Conn.—Thomas J. Mooney, proprietor of the Ansonia Floral Co., and his wife and two daughters had a narrow escape October 9, when an automobile struck the carriage in which they were riding, cutting it in two. All sustained small injuries, but nothing serious resulted.

Hartford, Conn.—John Coombs opened a branch store in the Hotel Garde October 8. Vincent H. Olmstead is in charge. The decorations in the new store are exceedingly handsome, the prevailing colors being white and quaker gray. The colonial style has been carried out throughout the store. The window has been provided with exceptional facilities for the display of flowers.

Northampton, Mass.—The Florists' and Gardeners' Club of Holyoke and Northampton met in this city at the greenhouses of Butler & Ullman, October 13. Arrangements were made for the second annual flower show of the club, which will be held in the city hall here November 6 and 7. The committee in charge consists of Prof. E. J. Canning, chairman; William Tickey, Frank Williams, Aubrey Butler and Karl Ullman, all of Northampton; James Whiting, of Amherst; F. D. Keyes, of Florence, and George Rackliffe, of Holyoke.

DENVER.

The Market.

The market is steady. There seems to be plenty of good stock coming in to supply all demands. Chrysanthemums dominate the market at the present writing. Good blooming plants are moving steadily. Several of the stores report good sales of bulbs this fall.

Various Notes.

Robert Mauff, formerly of the Mauff Floral Co., is at present taking a pleasure trip through the northwest.

A. B. Jacques, of Steamboat Springs, Colo., was among the visitors last week. He reports business good. Mr. Jacques formerly grew vegetables only, but he added a large house to his range this summer, which he has planted to carnations. Next spring he expects to build three more 300-foot houses.

K. Carlson, who suffered a broken ankle a few weeks ago, when his motorcycle ran into an automobile, is able to be around a little, although he has to use crutches.

The Globe Greenhouses have opened a downtown store at the corner of Tremont and Fifteenth streets.

Carl Gross, of the Alpha Floral Co., served on the jury in the West Side court for the last two weeks.

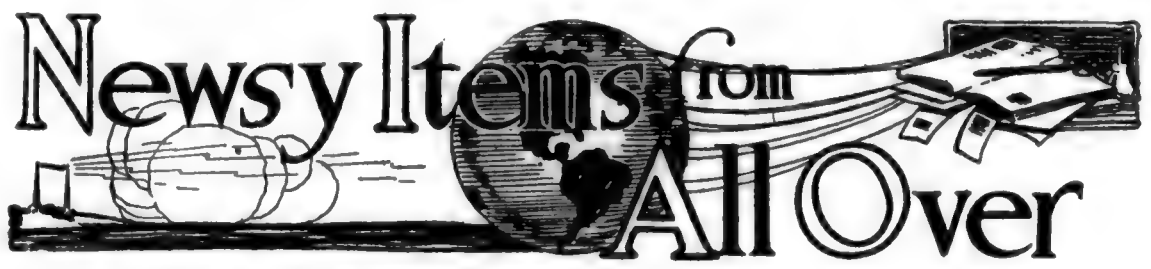
S. Knudson, of Boulder, Colo., was in town last week. He says business is good in Boulder. R. S.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

The Market.

The coming of cooler weather toward the end of last week had a tendency to speed up sales as well as to lessen the influx of stock of all kinds. A return of midsummer weather had caused the market to be flooded with dahlias, cosmos and outdoor chrysanthemums. It was predicted some weeks ago that the dahlia crop would prove a failure, but it is believed that the year's crop is one of the heaviest for some time. Carnations are much better in quality and are meeting with increased demand. Roses have been offered at the buyer's price, although some choice stock is holding up well. An overproduction of outdoor chrysanthemums served to force prices down. Orchids are quite plentiful and can be had in quantities at low prices. Few violets are to be had, but those seen are of good quality. There is some demand for yellow and white marguerites, limited quantities of which are on the market.

Various Notes.



St. John's church presented an attractive appearance on the occasion of the wedding of Robert A. Taft, son of the ex-President, and Miss Martha Bowers, daughter of the late Solicitor-general Lloyd W. Bowers. The altar was decorated with 200 auratum lilies and on each side of the chancel was a group of six cibotium ferns. The pillars around the gallery were entwined with string smilax and the choir stalls were hidden with a hedge of ferns and white cosmos. No palms were used, for in the opinion of W. D. Blackistone, who furnished this decoration, their use gives a much too somber effect to such a scene. The bride carried a shower bouquet of orchids and valley, while the bridesmaids carried large bronze chrysanthemums.

George H. Cooke is experiencing some delay in getting into his new store, which adjoins the site of his former place of business. He had been promised that the workmen would have the premises in condition for an opening October 15, but delays in the erection of the icebox and the completion of certain interior decorations will make it impossible for him to take possession before another week.

Among the visitors last week were Robert Shoch, of the M. Rice Co., Philadelphia; Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Doyle, of Lockport, N. Y.; Walter C. Cook, of the Stumpp & Walter Co., New York city; Howard Aschmann, of Aschmann Bros., Philadelphia; Charles Hochstedt, of Hamilton, Md.; J. H. Dick, of New York city; Mr. and Mrs. J. A. E. Haugh and Stuart Haugh, of Anderson, Ind.; I. Rosnosky, of Philadelphia, and L. J. Seiger, of the Robert Craig Co., Philadelphia.

Excellent results have been obtained from the palm and fern sales that have been held in the stores for the last week or ten days. This in a measure offsets the loss of business in greenhouse stock.

C. L. L.

Grand Forks, N. D.—E. O. Lovell will open a downtown store soon, having leased a store in the Elks building.

Lansing, Mich.—John Breitmeyer's Sons, of Detroit, came here last week to do two wedding decorations, the largest ever put up in this city.

Lake Linden, Mich.—The Pearce Floral Co. has added a greenhouse, 27x175 feet, and a propagating house. Business, the company reports, is good.

Lincoln, Neb.—C. H. Frey lost 3,000 lights in the hail storm of October 7. The total damage is placed at about $600.

Port Huron, Mich.—Bids have been asked for by the park commission for a greenhouse in Pine Grove park. Plans and specifications are on file in the city clerk's office.

Woodstock, Ill.—George Moncur is now well established in his new store, which has two entrances, one on Main street and one on Benton street. He has two excellent show windows.

Jefferson, Ia.—E. S. Foulks has added another greenhouse the same size as the first, doubling the size of his range. Mr. Foulks looks forward to a continuation this year of the growth of his business which made the addition necessary.

St. Paul, Minn.—At the meeting of the St. Paul Florists' Club held October 13 at the store of the O. R. Eckhardt Co. the following officers were elected: President, A. Lauritzen; vice-president, C. F. Vogt; secretary, J. W. Hoffman, and treasurer, N. C. Hanson.

Des Moines, Ia.—The homecoming of Iowa authors was an occasion of much importance here and the florists of this city were liberal in their gifts. The Guthrie-Lorenz Co., Lozier the Florist, the J. S. Wilson Floral Co. and the Iowa Seed Co. provided the decorations for the various events of the celebration.

Grayling, Mich.—The greenhouse business which was started here four years ago by John H. Cook was sold by him last spring to R. Hanson, who this summer enlarged the range and installed a new Moninger hot water boiler. The establishment now comprises two houses, one 18x100 and one 24x100, and a building, 20x60, for store, boiler room and workroom. John H. Cook is manager of the business.

Normal, Neb.—The hail storm of October 7 caused a damage of approximately $300 at the establishment of R. S. Griswold. About 2,000 lights were broken.

Marion, Kan.—Fred Gowan, manager of the Marion Plant & Flower Co., says that trade is not only good now but that the prospect is for one of the best seasons on record. Thus far all cut stock sold has been purchased, but new houses soon will be built to establish a home source of supply.

Oklahoma City, Okla.—At the first fall meeting of the Oklahoma State Florists' Society, held at the Lee-Huckins hotel October 5, the society after much consideration decided upon the coreopsis as its choice for state flower, because it is a native of this state, is in bloom for a considerable length of time, has good color and represents no other state. This choice may have some weight with the authorities who are selecting the state flower.

Terre Haute, Ind.—The Rosery is the name under which the new retail flower store at 11 North Sixth street will be conducted. At the formal opening there was a large attendance and 20,000 cut flowers were given away as souvenirs. The store has a floor space of 25x50 feet and the workroom in the basement is 30x75 feet. The Rosery is in charge of C. J. Houck, who has had experience in both New York and Minneapolis. It is owned by Dr. Edward Reiss, who is president of the Terre Haute Rose & Carnation Co. The two establishments, wholesale and retail, will be operated together, though as separate businesses.

Glen Cove, N. Y.—Although the drought of the last few weeks lowered the quality of the dahlia display at the early fall show of the Nassau County Horticultural Society, the displays in other lines were especially good. Henry Gaut, Frank Petroccia, William Noonan and Herman Boettcher won prizes for vegetables and fruits. James Duthie, of Oyster Bay, gardener for Mrs. E. M. Townsend, was awarded three special prizes for dahlias, and John Lewis Childs, of Floral Park, N. Y., received honorable mention for his display of seedling dahlias and a certificate of merit for celosia. John W. Everitt was manager of the show, and George Wilson, Angus MacGregor and Thomas Griffin were the judges.

PITTSBURGH.

The Market.

Pittsburgh is still having fine late summer weather, just right for outdoor life. The gardens are filled with the finest dahlias ever grown in this section. Cosmos is in its glory. The trade blames the weather for the fact that business is not up to the mark, and there is a likelihood that the life of the wholesaler will not be a happy one if we do not get a good freeze. Roses are fine and coming in great quantities. Carnations are a glut on the market. Chrysanthemums are here, and on account of the large quantity of stock on the market, prices are low. The worst depression seems to be in the small sales, but everyone is optimistic, believing that a good freeze will soon clean up outdoor stock.

Various Notes.

Thursday, October 29, is the field day of the Pittsburgh Florists' Club. They have accepted an invitation to visit the establishment of P. S. Randolph & Sons, at Sandy Creek. Those who know Mr. Randolph know what to expect, for he is the original hospitality merchant. His new place is worth seeing, being the latest built range of greenhouses in this vicinity.

Randolph & McClements had an elaborate wedding decoration at Youngstown, O., October 15. This is their second big wedding decoration in Youngstown this fall. They are cutting some splendid chrysanthemums from their Stanton avenue greenhouses.

The E. C. Ludwig Floral Co., in addition to its large cut flower business, is doing a large business in artificial door crepes. The undertakers demand these, and this firm reluctantly took it up and is receiving a large number of orders for them.

The Ludwig Floral Co., on Federal street, is taking advantage of the large number of dahlias and cosmos by keeping up immense displays, which attract a great deal of attention.

John Zimmerman, of Penn street and Fifth avenue, is becoming quite a factor in the landscape business.

The Duquesne Market is headquarters for home-grown dahlias and cosmos these days. The farmers bring them in by wagon-loads and sell them for a song.

This week's obituary column contains a report of the death of Frank R. Faulk, formerly of Faulk Bros., in this city.

GLEN COVE, N. Y.

The monthly meeting of the Nassau County Horticultural Society was held October 14 at Pembroke hall, with President Henry Gaut in the chair. Mrs. H. L. Pratt was elected to honorary membership. A motion was carried to send a letter of sympathy to W. E. Kimball on the death of his wife, an honorary member of the society.

Judges of the exhibits were J. Holloway, J. F. Johnstone and W. Hutton, who awarded first prize for three bunches of grapes to Henry Gaut; for twelve apples, two varieties, to Herman Boettcher, and for six pears, to F. Petroccia. A cultural certificate was awarded to Herman Boettcher for twelve varieties of apples and also honorable mention for a vase of delphiniums. Honorable mention was awarded Henry Gaut for twelve quinces. To John W. Everitt was presented the E. M. Townsend cup for roses, won by him at the dahlia show. James Gladstone was appointed manager of the fall show, October 29 and 30.

Exhibits for the next meeting, November 11, are to be chrysanthemums, three white, three pink and three yellow. President Henry Gaut has donated $10 to be divided into prizes of $5, $3 and $2 for the best table decoration of chrysanthemums, open to assistant gardeners only. After the meeting the members will hold a social evening, which all are invited to attend.

BUFFALO.

The Market.

Summer conditions continue; the weather is mild, but we are having cool nights. Consequently, there is an abundance of outdoor stock, such as dahlias, cosmos, mignonette, calendulas and cornflowers, and little call for indoor stock. A hard frost would be welcomed by all florists, for it would help the sale of roses and carnations a great deal. Violets are inferior, because of the warm weather, but the demand for them is strong. Carnations are much improved and are selling well. The supply is meager, however. American Beauties are in excellent condition and prices are firm. Sunburst is good, as is Mrs. Aaron Ward and Mrs. Chas. Russell.

Dahlias are beginning to be poor and are apt to drop the outer petals. The cactus dahlias hold up best. In many cases it is necessary to wire the stems of the dahlias to prevent the flower from breaking off.

Chrysanthemums are poor, because of the warm weather. October Frost seems to show the effect most, being soft and having a tendency to drop the petals. All mums seem small in size. Some of the local dealers have pompons on sale now.

Harrisii lilies are plentiful. Sweet peas are over with. Snapdragons and yellow marguerites are arriving daily. With some of the local dealers valley is still plentiful, but the price is high. Cattleyas and oncidiums are selling now. Cypripediums are seldom seen here and there is no demand for them. There are few flowering plants at present; some Begonia Vernon, however, are on sale. It is hoped that business will pick up and that the fall rush will soon begin.

Various Notes.

The Lenox Flower Shop is showing some good baby ramblers for this time of the year.

Ed. Slattery had an excellent wedding decoration in Smethport, Pa., October 15.

Barney Myers, of Lancaster, is cutting the first of his carnations. They are of fine quality, although the stems are short. His snapdragons grown under glass are doing well and quantities of blooms are being cut daily. He is growing Hadley roses to good advantage. As this is a new rose in western New York, it attracts much attention.

S. A. Anderson had an artistic decoration October 15 for the Wilson-Cowans wedding. It consisted largely of pink and white dahlias and palms. The four bridesmaids carried American Beauty roses.

W. J. Doty, of Sheridan, N. Y., has several acres of cactus dahlias of choice varieties, which will go to waste if they are not harvested soon. Mr. Doty is so pressed with the work of gathering the grape crop that he cannot give his dahlias any attention because of the lack of competent help and packing facilities.

At the store of W. J. Palmer & Son trade is good. There are several large weddings booked for later in the season. Bon Silene and Safrano roses are sold at special prices each week. Mr. Palmer is on the jury doing special work just now.

The fiftieth anniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Anderson was celebrated October 12 by a dinner, at which fifteen friends were present. The table decoration consisted of arches of autumn leaves and a mound of pink roses.

Stroh's Quality Flower Shop has a splendid display of snapdragons, carnations, pompon mums and cosmos of extra fine quality, all of which are grown at the greenhouses in Attica. The new Ford delivery car, which is painted Brewster's green, will soon be put to use. H. Petrie, formerly of the Lenox Flower Shop, is now in the employ of the above firm.

J. Berg, of Lion & Co., New York, was a visitor last week. He wore the genial smile that won't come off.

S. M. Crosby, of Washington, D. C., has entered the employ of Felix Alberts.

H. R. Francis, of the state college, lectured on "Shade Trees" at the City building in Olean, Friday, October 16.

LOUISVILLE, KY.

The Market.

Local florists have all started their fires, the continued cool spell of last week having made it necessary. It started to rain October 12 and continued during the greater part of the week. Notwithstanding the bad weather, business was fairly good. The fall racing season, with its usual quota of visitors, was responsible for this improvement in business. Funeral work was light, but this part of the business is never steady.

Stock at the various plants is in fine shape. Most of the local florists have put in their carnations, and their houses are in condition for the winter. Outside stock did not do well this last season, on account of the dry summer. Dahlias, however, are plentiful at present.

Various Notes.

The new Nanz & Neuner Co. has just finished extensive improvements at the plant in St. Matthews. When the present firm was organized it bought an extensive piece of land in the rear of the property formerly occupied by the greenhouses of the old firm. These houses have all been moved to the new property and rebuilt. A new steam heating plant has been installed to take the place of the hot water system that was formerly used. The old system is still used in some of the houses.

A. Rasmussen, of New Albany, Ind., has his new carnation houses planted and his stock is in fine condition.

John Skrobanek has his houses in fine shape again and is ready to start the coming winter with a brighter outlook than he did last winter after the disastrous fire of a year ago.

Mrs. M. D. Reimers has an artistic window featuring Hallowe'en.

G. R. Miller, manager of the Kunzman Floral Co., who was hurt during the state fair by a tub of palms falling on him while he was unloading his wagon and crushing his shoulder, is doing nicely.

OBITUARY

Frank R. Faulk.

Frank R. Faulk, formerly of the firm of Faulk Bros., in Pittsburgh, Pa., died October 11 at his home in Delray, Fla., at the age of 36 years. With his brother, he built up a good business in the Allegheny Market, Pittsburgh, about a year ago, but on account of poor health sold his interest to his brother, Walter Faulk, and went to Delray, Fla., where for a time he seemed to be regaining his health. He was beginning to build up a fine business there. His death was unexpected and was a great shock to his many Pittsburgh friends. He leaves a wife and three daughters, besides his mother and two brothers. Clarke.

Charles Byrnes.

Charles Byrnes, of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., died at his home, 70 Livingston street, Saturday evening, October 3. He was a florist, in the employ of the Poughkeepsie Water Works. His wife died last June. ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

The weather continues mild, with no frost. There have been a few light showers, but these have neither helped nor harmed any of the outdoor stock, which continues to pour in. In the first part of the week business was poor, but a decided change took place in the latter part, finishing the week with an exceedingly busy Saturday. Fortunately, there was plenty of good stock on the market. There have been large supplies of stock all the week, but it has been cleared at moderate prices. Carnations are getting better each week and the supply is about equal to the demand. Roses are good and plentiful and have been selling remarkably well. Sunbursts, Wards, Taits and Killarneys are our best sellers. Chrysanthemums are improving. Quantities of Polly Rose, Smith's Advance, Golden Glow and October Frost are in the market and move steadily. Most of the florists are using autumn foliage with their mums, greatly adding to the appearance. Violets are not selling freely, undoubtedly on account of the warm weather. Sweet peas are entirely gone. A few asters remain and are used readily in design work. Cosmos is in oversupply and does not move readily. Gladioli and dahlias are in fair supply; the former sell well, but the latter are only cleared at low figures. Easter lilies are fine and sell well. Valley is in good shape and a large quantity is called for.

A few good potted chrysanthemums are in the market and sell well. Aside from these, rambler roses, primulas and cherry trees are about all that are offered in potted stock. There is a moderate supply of all kinds of green goods.

Various Notes.

G. Reising, of L. Baumann & Co., Chicago, Ill., called on the trade last week. He is booking fairly large orders, being usually well supported by his Rochester friends.

Richard Roe, of H. E. Wilson's, who has spent a month with friends in Ottawa, Can., resumed his duties October 14, feeling "quite fit."

The first meeting of the Rochester Florists' Association for the winter season was held at Musicians' hall, October 12. Unfortunately, only fifteen members were present. The chair was taken by John Dunbar, president of the association, who gave an able address on "The Behavior of Some Trees and Shrubs from Western China." To illustrate his talk, Mr. Dunbar showed specimens, many of the varieties being entirely new to this part of the United States. The address was exceedingly interesting and educational.

Arthur Zirkman, representing the M. Rice Co., of Philadelphia, was recently in town and showed an elegant display of baskets and supplies at the Hotel Seneca. He says business is good.

Horace J. Head has been out of town for four or five days, visiting friends at Hilton, N. Y.

The Vick & Hill Co. is cutting large quantities of white candytuft, which sells well and is found decidedly useful. Their cuts of gladioli are gradually diminishing.

At the seed farms of James Vick's Sons work is rushing. The aster season being over, the time has come to gather in the seed before the worst weather arrives. So far the members of the firm express themselves well pleased with the outlook. The seed promises to be good this season.

Geo. T. Boucher reports that business is improving. He has several good weddings booked ahead. Funeral work has kept him busy of late.

H. E. Wilson, Salter Bros. and J. B. Keller Sons all experienced an unusually busy day on Saturday, October 17, with funeral work. Cut flower trade was brisk. H. J. H.

Mainly About People

St. Joseph, Mo.—T. M. Moroney has been stricken with paralysis at Hill Crest Farm and he is now in a critical condition, at 2120 Walnut street. It is feared his work as a landscape gardener is done.

Phoenixville, Pa.—Howard Pennypacker, the son and recently the partner of Joseph Pennypacker, will shortly assume the matrimonial bonds. The young lady is Miss Dorothy Alker, of Norristown.

Fort Worth, Tex.—The judges of the rose exhibits staged in connection with the annual flower garden competition, at the Chamber of Commerce October 17, were C. E. Papworth, C. A. Byers, L. Colwell and J. E. McAdams. Local seed and nursery firms contributed the prizes.

Green Bay, Wis.—Five brothers of Charles De Clerc lost their lives in the attack on Louvain, according to a letter received by him from his nephew, who was wounded and is now in the hospital. One of the brothers was a florist with large grounds and greenhouses near Louvain.

Millburn, N. J.—The greenhouse establishment conducted for many years by George Clark has been sold by the owner, Jacob Fischel, to George W. Brand, of East Orange. The new owner will take immediate possession, making some alterations in preparation for conducting a wholesale and retail trade.

Medina, O.—Andrew Lewis Hammerschmidt is the name of the 8-pound arrival at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Hammerschmidt. He made his appearance Tuesday, October 13, at 3:55 p. m.

Marysville, Kan.—H. R. Fisher reports that the prospects for a good winter's business have never been better. Stock all looks fine, and present business is good. For the first time in five years a heavy hail storm visited this place September 5, doing a slight amount of damage.

Baton Rouge, La.—Samuel Scheinuk, who started in business here about a year ago, has worked up a good trade in cut flowers and landscape work, and now finds his old place out of date. So he has purchased a plot of ground in the heart of the city and is busy building a residence and greenhouse, in preparation for a good season.

Morton Grove, Ill.—Elizabeth Meyer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Meyer, was married October 21 to Edward Schoeneberger, of Niles Center, at St. Peter's Catholic church, Niles Center. The wedding was a quiet one, only the immediate families being present. The bride was attended by her sister, Martha, and John Schoeneberger served his brother as best man. After an extended trip in the east, the couple will be at home at Niles Center, after November 15.

HOLD a hyacinth sale and help the seed stores clean up their surplus stock. Why not?

THE yellows of asters never caused greater loss than in the season of 1914. Who has the remedy?

TWO or three years ago a lot of growers were building concrete benches who have this season reverted to pecky cypress. Why?

OURS is a weather business. Trade does not become active until there have been general killing frosts, and this season the autumn has been summerlike.

THE man who writes his business letters on a leaf from a school tablet may be as good a florist as the one who has printed letter-heads, but, somehow, it is difficult to think so.

IF the florists in the middle west do not have a big season it will not be because of a scarcity of money in their neighborhood. The splendid crops have drawn hundreds of millions west of the Mississippi.

LILIUM BIONDII is a new Chinese species that has attracted considerable attention in England, where it recently received an award of merit from the Royal Horticultural Society. The flowers are rich, deep orange, spotted with black, as many as nine on a stalk. It is considered a promising novelty, inasmuch as it is said to be an easy doer, requiring only ordinary soil and treatment.

A WONDERFUL RECOVERY.

When the European war shut off transatlantic transportation in August it brought out as never before the interdependence of America and Europe; it looked as though nearly everybody in America was out of business, either for lack of things usually imported or for lack of a market for things usually exported. That, of course, was an exaggerated statement of the case, but it was bad. Calm judgment, however, indicated that conditions were almost sure to work back somewhere near normal. How wonderful has been the recovery is shown in the figures of September imports and exports just made public by the government:

Imports	$139,204,267	$171,084,843	$144,819,493
Exports	156,188,790	218,240,001	199,078,062

The figures are astonishing compared to the state of the public mind in August. Of course, some special items still are scarce, but it may be taken that imports are about normal—the September figures for 1914 are almost identical with those of 1912. And even the exports were three-quarters what they were in 1912!

All reports indicate that orders for food stuffs and war materials for export have come strongly since October and that the official records of sales to Europe soon will show the effect.

It looks like good business.

PAYING UP.

The man who pays his bills in full once a month is the man who leads a carefree life. The man who pays irregularly and only when he is pushed will some day find himself walking with Old Man Worry.

There are few florists who are not making enough money so that they can keep paid up if they try. The trouble is, in most such cases, they don't try. If they don't pay business bills, they spend the money some other way.

When a florist applies his income first of all to paying business bills, that florist soon is standing on a rock. When he pays other bills ahead of business bills his footing is among the sands.

AND STILL THEY COME.

Each day's mail brings its quota of commendations for the new magazine style of trade paper adopted a month ago by The Review. After four issues being sent out in the new form, the approval is even stronger than in the beginning. It will now be impossible for The Review to employ the pamphlet style of make-up:

In sending my subscription for another year, I want to say I have felt I could not afford to miss a single number. The new form makes it all the more valuable. —M. W. Walters, Bettsville, Ohio.

We like the new form of The Review, but we are inclined to believe that green would have been a better color, even though the one used is extremely good.—W. T. Jackson, Stevenson, Wash.

As one of the first subscribers to The Review, I want to compliment the new style in which the paper has made its appearance, in its new dress of striking color. We now can place our hands on The Review no matter how many magazines there may be on our table. Some years ago the writer informed The Review that it was "black on white and read all over," as we had orders coming in long after our ad was ordered discontinued. The same condition exists today, and I am more than ever convinced that The Review is "read all over," even if some readers think it should be green all over.—Louis Bauscher, Freeport, Ill.

You certainly have made a big improvement with the new dress and arrangement of matter, but we would prefer a good lively shade of foliage green and the elimination of the advertisements on the front cover, putting the index there and printing on a white ground.—Fred Gowan, Mgr. Marion Plant & Flower Co., Marion, Kan.

ADVERTISING.

The investment of money in advertising space is a serious business, requiring careful thought and analysis of values.

Friendship, sentiment, plea, promise or cut-rate do not declare dividends.

Spend your advertising money in the newspaper that offers you the greatest possible number of people who are able and willing to buy what you have to sell.

YOUR NEIGHBORS READ IT.

No matter where you are—east or west, north or south—your neighbor florists are reading the same paper you read, The Review. That is the secret of its advertisers' satisfaction, for it is where a paper is read, not where it is published, that counts. The advertiser on the shores of the Atlantic, 1,000 miles away from the place of publication, finds The Review is as generally read in his territory as it is in the middle or far west. That is why it produces these results:

Please cut out my ad for privet, the 18 to 24-inch, as I am all sold out of that size. The Review certainly does bring the answers.—Charles L. Smith, Pennsgrove, N. J., October 13, 1914.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

There has been considerable change in conditions in the last seven days. The market still is having irregular business, dull in the middle of the week, but active on Friday, Saturday and Monday. For a few days it will seem as though regular business conditions are about to become reëstablished, but the demand does not persist through the seven consecutive days.

Since last report the receipts of roses have been cut down sharply. The supply now is nowhere near so large as it was a fortnight ago, or even a week ago, and, should normal business develop at this juncture, a considerable scarcity would result. The demand thus far has not been strong enough to cause any considerable rise in the quotation for the best selected grade of shipping stock, but it already has had a marked effect on the average price, there now being little stock accumulating, to be jobbed off at low figures. The average price, however, is not yet up to last year. There has been no frost, a condition without precedent in the years since the market became so large an affair. The supply of Beauties has declined, as a result of the weather, less than rose receipts have been affected. Short roses and short Beauties are comparatively scarce; the receipts are running to the medium and long grades.

The supply of carnations seems to have been little affected by the conditions which have caused the sharp reduction in supplies of roses. There continue to be more carnations than the regular demand calls for. It is reported that one house shipped 35,000 carnations October 17, to buyers who can use quantities at a price. This relieved the market for the time being, but by Monday stock again was accumulating. As other growers begin making the first pick, short stems again appear in quantity.

Chrysanthemums are in large supply, probably larger than this market ever before has known so early in the season. Because the demand has not developed, and because the stock is ready earlier than usual, it is apparent many growers have let the flowers stay on the plants longer than they should. Some of the stock now coming in is of such excellent quality that it can be sold in moderate quantity at the highest prices thus far received this season, but the bulk of the demand continues to be for mums at $8 to $12 per hundred. There are moderate receipts of pompons, which are selling well.

Easter lilies are in light supply, but there are several growers cutting rubrums in quantity. Gladioli have bloomed themselves out. Cosmos continues plentiful. Single violets have come to join the doubles, although the weather is too warm for them, either for quality or for good sales. Orchids are abundant and prices easing off. Valley is equal to all requirements. There still are quantities of dahlias, but they sell poorly. Greens of all kinds are abundant.

In the retail way there is some variation of reports. The stores that cater to the best trade say business is ahead of any year except the unusually good autumn of 1913, while the stores that get their business among the less wealthy classes say trade is distinctly dull. The city retailers attach less importance to weather than do the growers and wholesalers, the latter feeling that a good freeze is essential and will be followed by a sharp increase in the demand.

Various Notes.

Ernest Hedstrum, who has been with the Hill Floral Co., Streator, Ill., for the last two years, has become foreman for the Brant & Noe Floral Co., at Forest Glen.

W. H. Kidwell & Son are reported as having done the largest September business in their history, with October to date not coming up to last year. They offer no explanation for the irregularity of the demand.

Albert T. Hey, of Maywood, will cut 18,000 mums within a month. He says he never had better quality, in spite of unfavorable weather.

As instancing the reduction in supplies, Felix Reichling states that Peter Reinberg cut 24,000 less roses last week than in the same week a year ago.

At the store of the Chicago Carnation Co. it is reported that a runaway team dashed into the gables of the Pyfer & Olsem range at Wilmette October 20, breaking a large quantity of glass.

The Chicago Flower Growers' Association has put in two more telephones, making three trunk lines.

The trade will learn with regret of the sudden death of Mrs. C. W. Northrup, at La Grange, October 17. The funeral was held October 20, with interment at Oakwoods. Mr. Northrup formerly was known as one of the most expert sweet pea growers for this market. He is now cashier of the La Grange State Bank. His greenhouses were torn down this summer.

at Lansing, Mich., last week and gave a hand to Phil Breitmeyer, of Detroit, who was there with a force of men to do two special wedding decorations.

When four fair maids from "The Midnight Girl" company expressed a desire to help fill the Herald's Christmas ship, A. I. Simmons, of 242 West Sixty-third street, contributed 250 roses, 400 carnations and 100 other flowers. With these, the girls raised $44 in an hour October 13, selling them from Will Singer's touring car at La Salle and Adams street.

At Winterson's Seed Store it is said retail bulb sales are surprisingly good, considering that soft-wooded stock still is blooming in the beds.

John Michelsen, of the E. C. Amling Co., says, "Blame Jack Frost, not Emperor William," if business is dull.

The Nelson-Le Moon truck Anton Then has used the last few months is giving him much satisfaction. He uses it for delivering wholesale orders as well as for the retail store.

The summer was the best Sinner Bros. ever have had, according to John Sinner, but he says October is running far behind because of lower prices without a compensating increase in production.

George V. Wienhoeber, of the Fleischman Floral Co., says there is no reason to complain of business. Sales have not quite come up to the early autumn of 1913, but that was an unusually good season, making a record hard to beat. Business now is considerably ahead of 1912 and all previous years.

Julius Zschau, now at 29 East One Hundred and Second street, is building a store at 10953 Michigan avenue. He expects to be able to move in about the middle of November.

Charles A. Johnson, once the Limits florist and later at Chillicothe, O., and Roswell, N. M., has joined the staff of George Perdikas while he is looking for another chance to go into business for himself.

E. Wienhoeber, who is noted for his conservatism, says business of late has been excellent, recent Saturdays having brought about all the work that could be handled. Several October days have given sales totals as high as the store ever gets in ordinary times.

CINCINNATI.

The Market.

The larger part of last week brought us miserable, rainy weather. During this time the market showed a substantial improvement. The demand, though better on some days than on others, was active on the whole. Owing to the continued heavy receipts, prices are still low. We need a heavy frost.

The rose receipts are easily equal to all immediate wants in this line. Carnations are coming in stronger. Lilies are plentiful. Chrysanthemum cuts are large and include a full assortment of colors and sizes. Many choice dahlias are still to be had. Both valley and orchids are offered regularly. Cosmos is abundant and good.

Various Notes.

Charles Pfeiffer's Sons, of Fort Thomas, Ky., have been sending excellent mums to this market, where they are represented by the Cincinnati Cut Flower Exchange.

The Market.

During the last week we have had the first rainfall in over six weeks and consequently outdoor stock pushed out wonderful quantities of flowers, but they were soft and poor keepers. Cosmos has arrived in quantity, but is not being taken up readily.

they did just the reverse; the wholesale houses are offering them at from $5 to $6 per hundred, about one-half of the former prices. Valley sales are up to the average, but the supply is too large for the demand. Carnations are now much better, but the sales are poor.

A general summary of the week's business shows it to be up to the average, but there is an oversupply of stock, which the retailers cannot take up, even at the low prices at which it can be bought, and the present condition will no doubt last until after frost kills outdoor stock and consequently reduces the supply.

There is every indication of a good supply of mums for the coming season and the majority appear to be of a quality above the average. A good supply of roses is also in prospect at the present time. Carnations on the whole are looking good for a later cutting, but are not being cut heavily at present. Nor are they needed, according to the market at this time.

Various Notes.

Prof. H. J. Patterson, president of the Maryland Agricultural College, has tendered his resignation to the board of directors of the institution, to take effect June 1, 1915. The college was formerly a privately owned institution, but recently passed under the control of the state of Maryland, due to the foreclosure of a mortgage of $19,000 which the state held. In tendering his resignation, Prof. Patterson expressed the idea that a commission form of supervision and direction was in his opinion the best for the college, as its affairs were too large and varied for one man to take care of properly.

Walter E. Cook, representing the Stumpp & Walter Co., New York, was a caller last week.

John Rider is cutting some fine carnations and his houses give every indication of a heavy winter cut.

Samuel Feast & Sons received six cases of azaleas last week and many other

Harry Ekas is cutting some fine Golden Gate dahlias. This is one of the new varieties of the year and many favorable comments are heard on its unusual size and beauty. It is of a clear yellow color, of the quilled cactus type, and flowers of from six to nine inches in diameter are not unusual for this variety.

W. F. E.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

It may fairly be said that the queen of autumn has replaced the dahlia as the leading flower this week. There is a marked difference in the chrysanthemums coming in today over the early varieties offered in the market during the last five years. Now there are more good yellows than all the other colors combined; formerly there were more of the Pacific family than anything else, sometimes several times as many. The change is an improvement, for in Ramapo, Chrysolora, Comoleta and Donatello we have a quartet of excellent early yellows, and yellow is the color most sought in this great fall flower.

The dahlia has improved with the much needed rains of October 15 and 16, but the public is tiring of dahlias, although there are more to be had today than at any time during the season. The extremely warm weather has had a disastrous effect on carnations; many of them have reached the market asleep and more have promptly gone to sleep on their arrival. This unhappy condition, together with the overloaded condition of the market, made prices about half those of the week before. Roses have done better in the warm weather varieties, but not in the Killarneys, which have suffered badly, many popping open on arrival, while the buyers are chary of them, often requiring price inducements. Cosmos is used in great quantities. Sweet peas, mostly single-flowered, are to be had. To sum up, the supply greatly exceeds the demand.

The Riverview Nurseries.

There is a modest sign that informs whomsoever it may concern that the principal nurseries of Henry A. Dreer, Inc., are one mile west. You wouldn't think so if you had tramped all over those splendidly kept fields of dahlias, cannas, asparagus, etc. Their extent is surprising, but it is not in these fields that the inspiration for this paragraph lies, but in the well appointed block of greenhouses set in their midst. The block I have often described; it is J. D. Eisele's first contribution to what is planned as an immense establishment in the future. Riverview has proved an excellent growing plant. The stock does well there, under skillful culture. Blocks of plants, a house of a kind, are picked out and grown on into a certain size until fit. It is Riverview's boast that four times as many palms were exported from there last season as they imported! There is a little trap in this. Can you guess it? Phœnix Rœbelenii and Kentia Belmoreana are fine; Riverview has more of the former in 4-inch than probably any other place. Ardisia crenulata is the pride of the place; 3,200 well berried plants, just think of it! Made in America, too. E. H. Michel closed a pleasant visit by pointing out a couple of houses of Dracæna indivisa. There was not a single plant in them! "Dracæna indivisa?" he was asked. "Why, yes. The houses will be full of them tomorrow night, after we have had a dozen fellows at work," was the jolly answer.

The Writings of Robert Kift.

Two generations of florists, the fathers who formed the Florists' Club and their sons, who now bear the brunt of the battle, owe a debt of gratitude to Robert Kift. His writings have afforded them pleasure and interest as the season rolled around. At first there was a mystery about Kift's column. It was signed successively A, B, C, D, and so on until K was reached. The K stayed. Then everybody knew that it was Robert Kift, genial, happy Robert Kift, with his joyous smile and hearty greeting for all. Everyone likes Kift and everyone enjoys his writings. Some of his sayings are famous. "There are prices for Chestnut street, prices for Eleventh street and prices for the stores uptown," was his description of an overloaded market, a description that might well excite the envy even of G. C. Watson. When a new grower sent in fine flowers he aptly described it thus: "Samuelson, of Hatboro, is sending in some extra fine roses. The other growers say it is the soil, but we think that the combination of the soil and Samuelson is all right."

Various Notes.

Mrs. John H. Claus celebrated her twenty-sixth business anniversary October 16 and 17. The decorations were oak leaves, ferns and chrysanthemums. A pretty souvenir was distributed.

Charles Grakelow gave a large birthday party at Broad and Columbia avenues on the evening of October 16. There were nearly 300 guests, who were entertained by a collation and vaudeville. Those "of ours" who were present were George Auegle, Raymond Brunswick, Walter Davis, Benedict Gibbs, Martin Gannon, Charles F. Krueger, Joseph G. Neidinger, James McClain, Charles W. Morby and Stuart H. Miller.

Alvah R. Jones spent last week in Pennsylvania and New York, Buffalo being the western point of his business trip.

Macaw Bros. are cutting fine chrysanthemums in three of the best early sorts, from their new place at Norwood.

Edward Reid thinks that the new Hitchings house of Griffin Bros., at Holmesburg, is a model in greenhouse construction.

A box of chrysanthemums unpacked in one of the leading wholesale houses of this city was ruined by having a layer of small flowers, sweet peas and daisies packed over it. The mums were bruised by the top layer. What a pity to throw away half the value of six months' work!

Joseph G. Neidinger says that Japanese chenille and Jap wreaths are making a hit.

The Johnstons, of Baltimore, were with us this week.

The return game of quoits was played at Media a few days ago. Jacques Gillmet and his partner, A. Hampshire, captured three out of seven games from their great rivals, Emile F. Lieker and George Auegle. Inspired by dinner and,

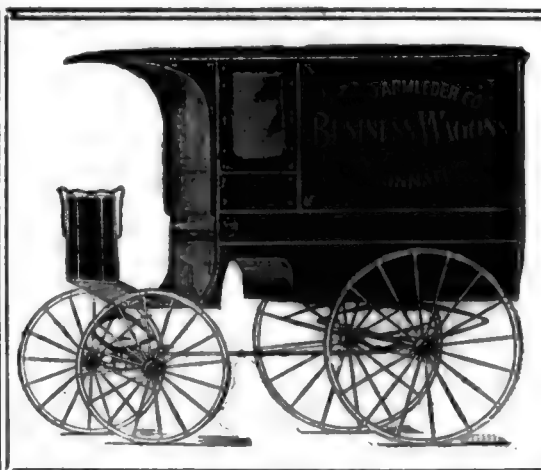
The Pennsylvania Horticultural Society held its monthly meeting October 20. Early chrysanthemums and cosmos were the attractions.

The Retail Florists' Association opened the season at the Poor Richard Club October 15. An active campaign of publicity is planned.

October 16 Fred Cowperthwaite spoke before the public school of Ridley Park, on "Bulbs for the Window Garden," and in the evening gave an illustrated lecture on "Bulbs for Winter and Spring Flowers in the House and Garden."



William Swayne returned from California recently in good time to harvest his first early chrysanthemums, which are a feature at the store of William J. Baker.

Henry A. Dreer, Inc., has two beautiful show windows, one of dahlias of named sorts, and autumn leaves; the other of named roses, one vase of each.

William H. Smith, of the Johnson Seed Co., was 79 years of age October 16. Unfortunately, Mr. Smith is ill with a bronchial attack.

Philip Freud has executed a clever idea in the window of the Henry F. Michell Co. A colored man suitably arrayed pops corn with an electric apparatus in two minutes and two seconds per pop. Samples are distributed and corn for popping is sold. The show will last until Hallowe'en. Phil.

The Market.

I cannot report any improvement in business; it seems to have entirely lost the old-time snap and clearances are hard to make. Even on the best grades of flowers sales are more difficult and prices are averaging lower than a year ago. The weather continues unseasonably warm; perhaps a cool spell might galvanize a little more life into trade. With so poor a demand as now exists, the question of the disposal of the large supplies must be faced. This subject is likely to be discussed at the annual meetings of the wholesale markets, and it is hoped something can be done to relieve a congestion which might otherwise continue for some time.

Roses are in the worst position of any of the cut flowers. They are arriving in large quantities and of first-class quality, but the sales are, for the most part, discouraging. The call is chiefly for the newer varieties; even American Beauty specials drag at $3 per dozen. Carnations are not doing so well as a week ago. First-class flowers make $2 per hundred; a few reach $3, but far more sell at $1. I believe occasional bunches have this season realized $4. The latter price, however, was for novelties and must not be taken as a prevailing price. Chrysanthemums are seen in great quantities and the prices are quite low for even the best. Pacific and Polly Rose are now abundant and good.

Valley last week did not sell so well. Sweet peas are coming in from several growers in small quantities. A few dahlias, gladioli, asters and other outdoor flowers are still seen, but these now cut little figure. Lilies and callas are to be had in quantity. The callas as yet are small. Yellow marguerites are small; so are snapdragon spikes. Cattleyas are not selling well. Sales on Asparagus Sprengeri are improving. Pot plant trade improves, but has not yet any life to it.

Club Meeting.

The Gardeners' and Florists' Club held a splendid meeting October 20, with an attendance of 125. The special feature was the lecture by L. W. C. Tuthill, on "Advertising, the Spark Plug of Business." Mr. Tuthill spoke interestingly and instructively and his remarks called forth numerous questions and an animated discussion. Patrick Welch read an appreciative review of the recent convention and was warmly applauded. Good progress was reported on the landscape classes. The death of Luke Mahan, an old member, was announced, and a committee appointed to draft resolutions. Three new members were elected. A communication from John Young, secretary of the S. A. sidered, but action was deferred. The question box brought out many interesting points.

Among the evening's exhibits were the following: Fine Ramapo mums, from Alex. McKay; Chrysolora mums and French hydrangeas, from W. W. Edgar Co.; Golden Glow mums, from E. K. Farr; Carnation Alice, from Peter Fisher; a new sectional concrete bench from Harry Levis.

Various Notes.

R. E. Wadsworth & Co., of Northboro, Mass., are sending to H. T. Capers some good mignonette for so early in the season. They also have an excellent lot of carnations, including Pocahontas, Pink Delight and Matchless.

Paul F. Bingham, who now operates the one-time Midgely Greenhouses, at Westboro, Mass., is growing a choice lot of carnations this season, including Eureka, Pink Delight, White Enchantress, Matchless and Enchantress. His Unaka mums are also good.

J. K. Chandler & Sons, of Tewksbury, grow Golden Glow mums remarkably well. October 16 and 17 they disposed of 500 dozen at the wholesale market.

McAlpine & McDonald handle a choice lot of roses and ship now to nearly all New England points. The Tafts from the Exeter, N. H., plant are grand; so are Crimson Queen, or Black Beauty; Ophelia, Double White Killarney and Mlle. Cecile Brunner. Their business at 260 Devonshire street continues to grow steadily.

The Boston Flower Exchange voted a year ago to invite ladies to the annual meeting, which will be held at Young's hotel, October 24. The ladies had been banking on a pleasant evening, but have had their hopes dashed, as the management has decided "to cut the ladies out" this year, owing to reductions in rentals, etc. However, we still have one wholesale market that is glad to welcome the ladies to its annual gathering.

Among the pot chrysanthemums which W. H. Elliott is now marketing in nice, bushy stock are Harry Parr, Bon Ton, Pretoria and Ethel Robinson.

Frank P. Putnam, of Lowell, is cutting a fine lot of pompon mums, in which he specializes. His carnations are now extra good. His leaders are Pink Delight, White Wonder, Matchless, Benora, Gloriosa and Philadelphia. All are handled by McAlpine & McDonald.

sending in Campbell violets of a size equal to those usually seen at Christmas. Fred L. Sly, of South Stoughton, also has a good lot.

N. A. Hudson, of Natick, and A. E. E. Koch, of Nobscot, are two of the earliest shippers of yellow marguerites, which always sell well.

Wax Bros., at their Tremont street store, had an attractive window October 17. They used vases of cattleyas, Beauties and Mlle. Cecile Brunner roses in vases and baskets, yellow marguerites, double violets and yellow oncidiums. The arrangement was loose and effective.

T. F. Perkins, of Reading, formerly with the West Street Greenhouses, of that city, is a new grower shipping to the Boston Coöperative Market. At present his Beacon, White Wonder and Pink Delight carnations are good.

Herman Waldecker, of Braintree, is cutting splendid Halliday and Glory of Pacific mums. His carnations are looking fine.

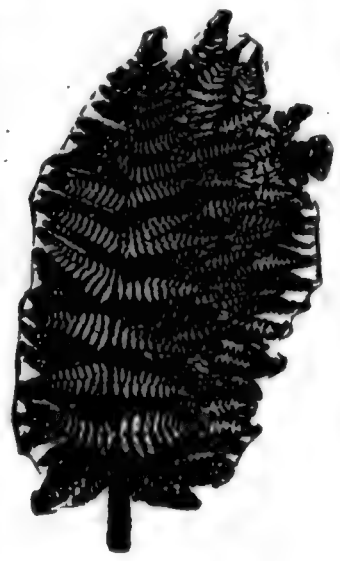
Mr. and Mrs. Henry Penn left last week for a ten days' vacation among the Berkshire hills, at Lenox, Mass.

Everett E. Cummings and Charles Cummings, of Woburn, are now large shippers of good single violets.

J. Streiferd & Son, of East Weymouth, have their houses in excellent shape this season. They now are cutting Polly Rose and Glory of Pacific mums and pink snapdragon in quantity.

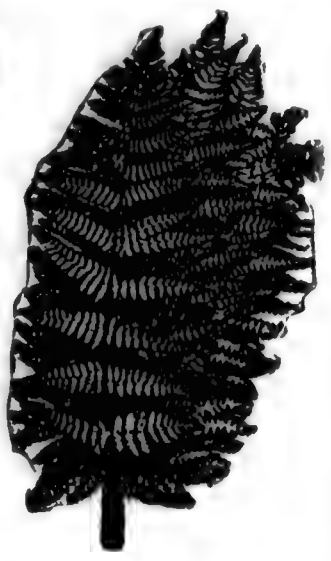
J. M. Cohen, of the Boston Coöperative Market, filled an order for 15,000 carnations for tag day in Winchester October 17. These are the sort of orders which help the market.

J. W. Foote, of Reading, is the only local commercial grower of Bouvardia Humboldtii, the flowers of which are now much prized for bridal bouquets. As usual, he has Pink Delight, Beacon and White Wonder carnations of first-class quality.



The longest drought New England had experienced since 1844, lasting for forty-eight days, ended October 16. We had thirty hours of rain, which wonderfully refreshed parched vegetation and drowned out numerous fires in the woodlands. A great deal more rain is necessary to replenish wells, springs and ponds.

I noted at Penn's, October 17, a handsome spray of Killarney Brilliant roses, the order for which came per cable from London. Business here continues to hold up well.



At the store of J. Newman & Sons, bulbs, in addition to cut flowers and plants, are meeting with a good sale.

Thomas Capers, of Wellesley, is sending in good Benora, White Wonder, Enchantress and Pink Delight carnations.

J. A. Budlong & Son Co., of Auburn, R. I., in addition to an average of 10,000 roses daily, has now some extra fine chrysanthemums.

The Market.

During the first part of October business has improved considerably, but it is not as good as we had hoped. The continued Indian summer weather, with but two slight frosts, probably has a great deal to do with the condition of the market, as so many outdoor flowers are being used at social functions, etc. The cosmos is in all its glory, as well as the marigold, dahlia and a variety of other late outdoor stock. The gladioli and asters are over for the season. The indoor stock is of fine quality. Roses are more plentiful than any other flower at present. Some fine Sunburst, Aaron Ward, Shawyer, Mrs. Russell, Killarney and Richmond are in the market. Chrysanthemums are making a good showing. The best varieties at present are Chrysolora, October Frost, Unaka, Smith's Advance and Robinson. These sell extremely well. Carnations are improving daily, although they are not as vigorous as they will be in a few weeks. Violets are coming in slowly. Antirrhinums and marguerites are of good quality.

The fall weddings and funeral work constitute the greater part of the business, counter sales being slack. Fall openings and displays create a demand for flowers in large quantities. The wholesale market is slow, due to the depression caused by the war. The public apparently is following conservative lines, preferring to save on luxuries as much as possible until more certain as to the effect of the European war in this country. The splendid crops harvested throughout the middle west have encouraged the florists in this part of the country, as they expect that the farmers' prosperity will help general business materially.

Various Notes.

The New Haven Floral Co. is cutting some excellent chrysanthemums, and this firm's carnations, too, are exceedingly good for this season of the year.

Frank Knecht & Co. report that their stock is in splendid condition. The carnation plants are in fine shape and are sending forth good flowers. Chrysanthemums and roses also are first-class.

Some splendid Chrysolora are seen in the conservatories of the Flick Floral Co., as well as October Frost and Robinson. This firm has had several large decorations lately, including the decoration for the fall opening of Wolf & Dessauer's department store. Great quantities of flowers were used and some lovely autumn effects were gained in the decorations.

Cattleyas of extra good quality are being cut at the greenhouses of W. J. & M. S. Vesey; also roses, chrysanthemums and other seasonable flowers.

Mrs. Cecil Max, of Mobile, Ala., has arrived in the city to take charge of the home of her father, Judge W. J. Vesey, in the absence of Miss Margaret Vesey, who is enjoying a trip to Florida.

Miss C. B. Flick and Miss Mildred Flick returned recently from a trip abroad. They were detained several weeks in Lucerne, Switzerland, during the mobilization of the troops, but escaped any extraordinary hardship in Europe and sailed on time. Beyond the disappointment of missing a part of their proposed itinerary, which included Germany, Holland and France, they were fortunate and were glad to set foot on American soil. R. R. F.

Canton, Miss.—Misses A. & T. Ewing are building up a prosperous business in plants and cut flowers.

The Market.

Business is both good and bad; on Saturdays it is good, on other days for the most part poor. Saturday, October 10, had June beat for brides; practically every florist had a wedding decoration, some two of them. Some fine decorations were made with autumn foliage, mums, smilax, etc. On Saturday, October 17, everyone was busy with funeral work.

Some excellent mums are coming in, with fine foliage, large flowers and good color. Polly Rose, Glory of Pacific, Chrysolora, Early Snow, Pacific Supreme and Monrovia are among the best ones. Carnations and roses are improving. Some fine orchids are seen. Violets are rather poor and scarce. The first rain of any account since August 30 fell October 16 and 17.

Various Notes.

This city will soon have to change its name to the City of Florists. Three new places have been started in the last three weeks, making ten flower stores in all, and ten or more greenhouse establishments, besides street venders and department stores that carry a line of plants and flowers.

Herrick & Gray have started a new store on Worthington street, at the Flower Shop's old stand. This store is in a prominent place and a good trade is expected. Herrick & Gray run the Hickory street greenhouses, where a line of cut flowers and potted plants is grown.

Abundantly prepared at all times.

Mrs. N. F. Higgins has opened a store at 237 Pine street, in connection with the greenhouses, where a full stock of cut flowers and plants is grown. At present large quantities of good mums are being cut. The carnations are coming on finely and some excellent ferns are to be seen, with other plants. The place has an automobile delivery car and is doing good business.

A new store has been started on Main street, between Bridge and Vernon streets, which sells both flowers and plants at prices below the average. This place is in the busiest section of the city and so has a chance to carry on a large trade. F. J. C.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

Up to almost the end of last week bright, warm, dry weather prevailed. The record drought was not broken until October 16, after forty-six days of sunshine. The all day and night rain which followed has been a godsend, especially on Long Island.

The continuous sunshine has kept the New York cut flower market flooded with roses, and the mum crop is already almost a flood. The market will have enormous quantities to digest this year, if one may judge by preliminary indications.

Just at present the oppressive surplus is in roses, especially the short-stemmed arrivals, large quantities of which, as the week advanced, could not be moved at all. Even American Beauties are back again to midsummer prices. The teas followed in their wake, and good grades often fell to as abnormal a quotation as $5 per thousand.

Orchids are abundant and there is no change from the prices recorded through September. Gardenias are improving daily in quality and better prices are expected immediately. Oncidiums have improved from their low prices of last month.

With the coming of the mums, longiflorum lilies have again retreated, and prices were last week cut in two. Valley, also, is lower, and the demand light. The expected increase in the carnation shipments has now materialized, and values are receding, only the specialties or novelties selling above $2 per hundred. Mrs. Ward continues to be the general favorite with the public. The dahlia shipments are over. Violets will now show improvement in size and color.

Various Notes.

The eighty-third annual exhibition of the American Institute of New York will be held in the Engineering building, 25 West Thirty-ninth street, November 4 to 6. A large display of orchids, roses, carnations and chrysanthemums is expected. The exhibition hall gives the society ample room, a handicap of about eighty years' duration having spoiled many of the institute shows in the past.

November 9 is to be ladies' night at the New York Florists' Club. There will be refreshments and high-class entertainment provided, and a large attendance of club members and their wives. This is the great night of the year, and the entertainment committee guarantees 1914 will distance all former records.

London, for forty-two years, which he claims is a record.

John Young will be the manager of the chrysanthemum show at the Museum of Natural History October 30 to November 3. Over 100,000 visitors attended the exhibition last year, and the committee, of which F. R. Pierson is chairman, is anticipating an even larger number this season.

Secretary Neubrand, of the Tarrytown Horticultural Society, was in the city Friday, October 16. He says the new offices in the flower palace of the F. R. Pierson Co. are now occupied and the furnishings are in keeping with the rest of the structure.

H. P. Knoble, of Cleveland, O., is in the city, and G. E. M. Stumpp has made his visit a pleasant one.

J. F. Sullivan, of Detroit, is making his annual purchases of palms, ferns, etc., this week, and visiting friends and relatives here.

For the international show next spring in New York A. T. Bunyard is the first of the retailers, Secretary Young announces, to secure space for his exhibit.

Fred Lautenschlager, of Kroeschell Bros. Co., Chicago, was in the city last week on his way home from the vegetable growers' convention.

Ed. Grunewald has opened his new store, at Seventy-third street and Madison avenue.

P. J. A. Berckmans, Jr., and Mrs. Berckmans, of Augusta, Ga., have been enjoying a few days in New York and vicinity on their way home from their summer holiday.

A. T. Boddington has been visiting his tuberose and canna acreage in North Carolina.

The plant and bulb auctions continue every Tuesday and Friday. The MacNiff Horticultural Co., with the advantage of the ground floor facilities, always has a houseful of buyers. The retail trade here is also satisfactory.

not later than October 28. John Young has been appointed manager of the exhibition. The premiums for specimen palms have been much increased over those of last year, and it is hoped that this will bring forth a number of these large specimens.

ST. LOUIS.

The Market.

Last week was not a good one for either wholesaler or retailer. Rain during the greater part of the week made a great depression in business. All are looking forward to a good frost, which, it is hoped, will promote trade. In looking over the cut stock at the wholesale markets, I found chrysanthemums had the best call. All the early varieties are in and the quality is excellent. The late fancy chrysanthemums will demand high prices. These have greatly hurt the sale of roses and carnations, of which consignments have been heavy. The outlook for a clean-up sale on these is not bright. Some of the roses coming in are badly mildewed, which hurts their sale. Carnations, except extra fancy, are not selling any too well. Cosmos and dahlias were in heavy supply last week, but these will soon leave the field to chrysanthemums and other cut stock. Violets are arriving in greater numbers and the quality is good. Valley and lilies are selling well. Orchids are scarce. Ferns, smilax and asparagus are in demand, and there is a good supply of all.

Various Notes.

The quarter-centennial celebration of the organization of the board of trustees of the Missouri Botanical Garden took place October 15 and 16. A number of noted botanists from all parts of the world were present. Among them were noted Dr. W. G. Farlow, of Harvard University; Dr. A. Appel, of Berlin, Germany, and Dr. N. Wiles, of Christiania, Norway. The two-day meeting ended in a banquet at the Leiderkranz hall, which was beautifully decorated for the occasion. Water lilies, the favorite flower of Henry Shaw, predominated in the decorations. The banquet was attended by 400 guests.

The Lady Florists' Home Circle met October 14 at the home of Mrs. Emil Schray. The members spent a most pleasant afternoon. The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. F. W. Bruenig.

The Retail Florists' Association held its regular monthly meeting October 19, at the Washington hotel.

Two thousand plants of Torenia Fournieri are being shown at the Missouri Botanical Garden and provide an attractive display. The annual chrysanthemum show will take place next month and will, as usual, be free to the public.

Frank Weber, of the H. J. Weber & Sons Nursery Co., reports an unusual demand for nursery stock of all kinds. This firm had a large contract for nursery stock with the city, which was closed last week.

Phil. Goebel, of Webster Groves, is out with his new automobile truck. He is bringing in consignments from a number of growers to the wholesale market. This is a great saving for the suburban growers, who now do not have to make daily trips to the city.

Continuous rain last week had a bad effect on business, which was not to the liking of the retailers. The wholesalers, too, say demand was light.

a nice cut to H. G. Berning. He has discarded carnations.

Grimm & Gorly have a beautifully arranged window of cut chrysanthemums and autumn leaves. Some finely colored cockscomb plants are an added attraction. Vincent Gorly says funeral work has been good, but other business is slow.

The work on the Central parkway from Twelfth street to Grand avenue will be rushed. The officials in charge say it will not only beautify the city, but a number of gardeners and nurserymen will be benefited by the work, as thousands of trees and shrubs will be needed.

Fred C. Weber, Kalisch Bros. Floral Co., Sanders Nurseries and F. H. Weber, all west-end retailers, had artistic window displays last week, which were especially attractive. Miss M. S. Newman, Geo. Waldbart and M. M. Ayres, too, showed some splendid displays.

Chas. Young, manager of the downtown store of C. Young & Sons Co., says the bulb trade this fall was better than expected. Shipping trade, too, has been large since the opening of the season.

Ostertag Bros. had some large decorations to take care of this month, for which a number of large decorative plants were used. They report a number of wedding decorations booked for next week. Business here is good.

The largest decoration of the season, for the Love-McBride wedding at the new cathedral, was furnished by Grimm & Gorly October 20. The cost ran into thousands of dollars for floral work alone. Chrysanthemums and orchids predominated.

Werner Bros., of Clayton, are cutting some excellent roses at present. They are among the best from the local growers. Their Richmond and Killarneys are of excellent color and have clean foliage and good stems.

Chas. Beyer has received a large shipment of azaleas from Belgium, which arrived in excellent condition. His large show house, facing Grand avenue, is filled with fine decorative and blooming plants, including orchids in full bloom.

The horse show, which will open at the Coliseum the first week in November, will create a demand for cut chrysanthemums, which by that time will be at their best.

A number of traveling salesmen called on the trade last week. Among them were: Julius Dilloff, of Schloss Bros.; Samuel Seligman, of Wertheimer Bros.; Chas. Ford, representing A. Herrmann; M. Adler, and M. Le Vine, of Lion & Co., all of New York, and Guy Reburn, of A. Henderson & Co., Chicago.

President Bourdet and the other officers of the Florists' Club are making great efforts to increase the membership to 150 by spring. They hope to have 100 S. A. F. members among them, so that the club will be represented on the board of directors of the S. A. F. before the next convention. J. J. B.

Seed Trade News.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

President, Lester L. Morse, San Francisco, Cal.; Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

Thirty-third annual convention, San Francisco, Cal., 1915.

THE western vine seeds have not often been ripened, harvested and cleaned under such favorable weather conditions as this year.

INCORPORATION papers have been issued to Charles J. Cherry & Co., of Rockford, Ill., to "buy, sell and deal in plants, seeds, bulbs, etc." The capital has been fixed at $15,000. The incorporators are Charles J. Cherry, La Verne C. Miller and A. Emmett Hickey.

A 10-YEAR lease has been obtained by the St. Louis Seed Co. on the building to be erected at 411-13 Washington avenue, the old site next to the Missouri Athletic Club building. The structure, 42x125, which will have four stories and a basement, is expected to be ready January 1.

LONDON bulb houses are offering African-grown tuberoses as "a distinct improvement upon the ordinary American Pearl; they are much earlier, and if planted in October and kept under gentle treatment, bloom about Easter; vigorous in growth, of even height, free and large flowering."

EACH season for several years there has been a steady increase in the number of catalogues that price peas, beans and sweet corn by the pound rather than the quart. This season there will be a still farther important addition to the list as a result of the discussion that has been carried on this summer.

THERE probably never was a season that presented so many difficulties for the man who wants to quote prices a considerable time in advance of delivery. Not only have prices been extremely erratic in the last two months, but information is so meager that no one can more than guess as to the future.

MR. THERKILDSON APPROVES.

W. F. Therkildson, the indefatigable chairman of the postal laws committee of the American Seed Trade Association, strongly approves the recommendations regarding method of pricing seed catalogues made in last week's issue of The Review by H. G. Hastings, of Atlanta. "It is with pleasure that I note your printing of the letter of H. G. Hastings relative to the matter of the postage problem," writes Mr. Therkildson. "I have been in correspondence with Mr. Hastings a great deal in this matter, and I wish to say that the publication of these letters will do more to bring about the feeling and condition that should exist in the trade relative to this complicated parcel post system than any other thing that could be done.

"As you are fully aware, it has been my idea since the beginning that wherever possible everyone should stick to the flat rate idea in pricing, and if you will refer to the A. S. T. A. report of 1914 you will find that these are the recommendations I made not only in my report but in discussion during convention of that body at Washington.

"I do not think there is anyone in the trade who has given this matter of parcel post, parcel post pricing, etc., any more thought or attention than myself, and all will have to admit that Mr. Hastings' letter is only in support of the theories and recommendations which I have worked for and talked of since the original Bourne bill came before our notice in the Chicago convention.

"The success of the various mail order concerns throughout the country, not only in the seed business, but in other lines, has been and is because of the fact that they make buying by mail easier than to buy from the local dealer, and it is certainly a fact that anything that the catalogue-maker may do in the way of pricing to complicate affairs will certainly diminish his chances of securing an order, and especially where the prospective customer chances to have several catalogues, and where some one or the other may quote a flat delivered price.

"I have talked with many people in the trade, and I am sure that it has been the experience of all who have issued a summer or fall catalogue, either in seeds or bulbs, that the flat rate method is by far the most satisfactory.

"Right now I am working with the idea of having a bill introduced in Congress that will provide for the bulk mailing of catalogues, and I hope, with the assistance of several influential members of the trade, to be able to advise in the near future of our success in this matter."

BEATING THE PARCEL POST.

Apparently the big general mail-order houses are profiting by the parcel post through its cheap local delivery of catalogues, etc., making shipments to central distributing points. The following is from H. G. Hastings, of Atlanta, Ga.:

"I note in The Review for October 8 the statement as to the mail-order houses beating the zone system of postage on heavy weight catalogues. The postmaster of Atlanta informed me a few weeks ago that this was being done regularly through the Atlanta post-office; that large mail-order houses in New York and other northern cities were shipping catalogues here in car lots by freight, the same being all zoned and stamped for distribution in the southeast from Atlanta. The postmaster said they even refused to buy the stamps in the office in which the catalogues are mailed, stamps being purchased in a northern city, and all the labor of zoning, etc., being done before shipments are made by freight. The mail-order houses have an agent here in Atlanta who takes these catalogues on arrival and dumps them into the Atlanta post-office, and they go out from here instead of the real point of origin. As a matter of fact, the houses issuing heavy

DUTCH BULB SHIPMENTS LIGHT.

Shipments of bulbs from Holland are dwindling fast. The consignments on the Rotterdam steamers are few in number and small in size. The Hollanders were successful in their efforts to get the bulbs away early, and the imports of the present week are about on a par with those of the middle of November last year. The consignments received at New York last week on the Rotterdam steamers, Alfred Noble, Dubhe and Oostdyk, were as follows:

THE DUTCH BULB SITUATION.

Dutch bulbs kept coming last year, in considerable quantity, as late as November 17, at which date the receipts through the port of New York amounted to 24,011 cases. This year the arrivals at New York had run to 30,845 cases as early as October 4. In its issue of August 6, when everyone else was crying that there would be no European stock this season, The Review told the trade to consider the possibility that the Dutch bulbs sent to America this year might run far ahead of any previous season—and the outcome has justified the warning.

The situation, which became badly demoralized as soon as the possibility of oversupply became a certainty, is gradually clearing itself. The oversupply to date is apparently about twenty-five per cent, or rather less than might be supposed from the talk one hears. Of course, there is another month during which bulbs are likely to come on every boat, but the probabilities are that the shipments will dwindle rapidly. The exporters realize

Nothing Ventured---Nothing Gained

THIS year we have shipped direct from Japan carloads of Japan bulbs to various cities in the United States and Canada for the benefit of our customers situated at a distance from New York. The freight rate from Japan on bulbs is the same to New York as it is to Omaha or Denver, and as we must employ a broker in each city, the cost is more to us than if we bring all the bulbs on to New York. So the sole reason for distributing from these various centers is to save you freight and effect prompt deliveries. If you order bulbs to be delivered from these centers, you help your section of the country, as well as yourself; and if we find that the florists will support us in these deliveries, we will send larger quantities to the various centers, as well as other bulbs from other countries. We offer Japan bulbs for prompt delivery from the following distributing points; storage facilities in each city if you wish to store the bulbs:

they have loaded the American market about all it will stand. No doubt large quantities could be drawn from Holland on short notice if it should develop that more bulbs can be merchandised here without making it difficult to collect something like invoice price for the quantities shipped on advance orders.

Seedsmen, florists, department stores—everybody is putting special effort into bulb sales and it looks as though America would be able to sell to its public a good fifty per cent more bulbs than usual, perhaps at a little below the ordinary prices, but still at profitable rates in spite of some general depression in business.

The Holland salesmen began showing up shortly after the opening of the war. They have a threefold mission: to collect for advance sales, to work off surplus and to book advance orders for 1915 crop. Theirs is not the easiest of jobs this season. A good many who placed advance orders demand a discount because of present conditions; collections are tight; everybody who handles bulbs in quantity wants to clear what he has before going in deeper; 1915 is too far away and too uncertain to interest many people. Most of the travelers have considerable unsold stock in storage in New York or Baltimore and are willing to quote prices where it will not interfere with previous sales. For 1915 crops they want about the usual prices, but in most cases are glad to book wants subject to price confirmation at some later date.

INFRINGEMENTS UPON COPYRIGHTS.

The Stecher Lithographic Co. has had considerable difficulty with infringements upon their copyrighted Seed Bags and they have started a campaign to protect themselves against any further damage in this particular.

They have for a great many years made a specialty of furnishing Seed Packets and have invested a large amount of money in original designs and cuts representing the different flowers and vegetables, and their new designs are really of a very high order, and have obtained for them an extended trade.

They have special facilities for turning out such a product and their volume of business permits them to do so, upon terms very advantageous to the customers.

It has happened these designs which are copyrighted, have been appropriated by others, sometimes photographically, and the infringements are Chinese copies—at other times with some slight variations, in an attempt to create colorable distinctions. Sometimes this has been done by the lithographer, and sometimes it has been sought after by the seedsman.

The whole purpose of the infringement, of course, is to save the expense of the artist in making original designs.

The Stecher Lithographic Co. have started this campaign to protect their rights in these premises and as a consequence there have already been destroyed a great many thousand packets which have been delivered up as conceded infringements. This, of course, has entailed a large loss to both the lithographer involved and the seedsman involved.—Advt.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

Westgate, Cal.—Claude W. Smyth has disposed of his interest in the California Geranium Co., of Santa Monica, Cal., and has secured a location here in the frostless belt, where he will continue to grow geraniums for the trade, under the firm name of Smyth & Co.

San Francisco, Cal.—Fred C. Buss, formerly connected with the California Seed Co. and more recently with the Golden Gate park staff, has erected two greenhouses and put in several frames at 5318 Geary street. He is growing various kinds of house and garden stock.

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

"Everybody busy this week" is the best way to size up the situation. Not only has there been a lot of good funeral work, but the longer evenings seem to lead to various indoor functions for which flowers are needed. The wholesale houses in the mornings look as busy as in the middle of winter; should this keep up, the season is likely to prove a record one. Chrysanthemums, of course, are everywhere in evidence; there are lots of poor ones, as always, but a number of extra good ones too. There is much more variety in these than in former years, growers having apparently been spending money freely for novelties. Dahlias are still plentiful, but the quality is failing daily. Indoor roses are getting more plentiful and of better quality. Outdoor flowers are still good. Carnations are getting better every week and there is a big variety of outdoor stock to choose from.

Valley is good and just about equal to the demand, which has been much heavier in the last week. Orchids are on the short side, but are not much in demand. Greens are plentiful and good, but good flowering plants are scarce, with little demand. Cyclamens are the best offering now.

Various Notes.

Howard & Smith held a show of dahlias from their Montebello nursery in the store at Ninth and Olive streets, October 10 and 11. Owing to extensive advertising, crowds of people were present during both days and great interest was shown in the flowers exhibited. About 150 varieties were staged, including many novelties of merit. F. Howard has been working in the crossing and raising of seedlings for some time, choosing good types for the parents and naming the seedlings for his patrons, which seems to be satisfactory all around—everybody pleased.

M. L. Germain, of the Germain Seed & Plant Co., left the city October 11 for a business trip through Imperial valley, expecting to return by way of San Diego in time for the convention of the California Nurserymen's Association. Business at the big store has picked up with wonderful quickness this year and the arrival of the Dutch bulbs gave it another fillip.

A large number of the trade signified their intention of attending the San Diego convention last week, many making the trip in their automobiles. Among the latter were H. Turner, who drove J. Dieterich down in his Stoddart-Dayton, and C. Gutting, who drove his latest machine, of which I have forgotten the name.

John Morley, park superintendent at San Diego, has been in this city for a few days.

At Roeding & Wood's nursery, on Washington street, a lot of fine decorative stock is shown, the product of the Laguna Nursery, southeast of the city. All the roses above the smaller sizes are grown at this establishment in wooden boxes, instead of the tin cans which are frequently used, and which appear so ridiculous to the eastern visitor. Most of the novelties and all the standard kinds are included and the stock is in fine shape.

Fred Sperry reports a good shipping trade already.

At Wright's Flower Shop I noted an elegant lot of the old Mme. Chatenay rose, which Mr. Wright still grows largely. All the stock is good and, as "T. W." says, the good business days are coming now in twos, threes and bunches instead of singly.

A letter from Leon de Staute, from Belgium, states that he just managed to get his stock shipped to Rotterdam before the Germans got to Ghent and that he is coming home with the plants. He has been buying for Howard & Smith and the Germain Seed & Plant Co., of Los Angeles, and for Ed. Rust, of Pasadena.

H. R. Richards.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

The florists in San Francisco had a trying time last week, owing to a hot spell of three days. Warm days in San Francisco are never good for transient business and are certainly not good for any quantity of cut flowers that may be on hand.

This has been a week of chrysanthemums. There are some wonderful Queen and some excellent Robinson and Bertha among the whites. Among the yellows Bonnaffon is as good as any. The best pink of the week is Columbia. Possibly the warm weather has helped to bring on the stock of chrysanthemums, as there has been a great quantity available.

There are some good Beauties coming on. They are not in oversupply as yet, but it is still a little early in the season to expect the sale of any quantity of American Beauties. There are some excellent Mrs. Chas. Russell and Mrs. George Shawyer. Mrs. Shawyer is similar to Bridesmaid, but much more popular on the coast.

There are some fine gardenias and cattleyas available; also some wonderful sprays of Oncidium varicosum Rogersii. The cyclamens brought to the market thus far are not particularly well grown plants, although some of our local growers have some excellent specimen cyclamen stock and promise to bring forth some "eye-openers." The month of October thus far is normal from a business standpoint. Before the next two weeks are over a great deal of added activity is expected.

Horticultural Society.

A feature of general interest was a dahlia show given by the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society at Sachem hall, Redmen's building, Saturday night, October 10. The show was open to all. The competition was quite keen and the display was of unusual interest and merit. Among the leading exhibitors were Frank Pelicano, of Pelicano, Rossi & Co., William Kettlewell, William Munro and Richard Diener.

The Pacific Coast Horticultural Society, having considerable business of importance to transact, held a meeting while the show was in progress. At this meeting matters pertaining to the S. A. F. convention in San Francisco in 1915 were taken up. The committee on subscriptions made a gratifying report, as did also the committee for the president's reception and the committee on auditorium.

A reception and dance to be given by the members of the society November 14 was voted upon. Frank Thatcher was given full charge. The proceeds of this dance were promised as a part subscription to the entertainment fund, which is rapidly running into the thousands. E. James and Peter Ferrari will assist Mr. Thatcher in completing the arrangements for the reception and dance.

The following new members were admitted to the society: A. Podesta, E. Goep, M. Malice, H. Breen and Otto Eggers.

Various Notes.

Daniel MacRorie, of the MacRorie-McLaren Co., accompanied by Professor Gregg, of the University of California, W. B. Eberly, of the California Nursery Co., and J. Vallance, attended the convention of the California Nurserymen's Association, at San Diego last week. Mr. MacRorie is promoting the success of the 1915 S. A. F. convention with all his characteristic vigor.

E. H. Rust, of Los Angeles, has been looking about the bay for nursery stock. Mr. Rust reports excellent trade conditions in the southern part of the state and seems to be quite optimistic in regard to the coming season.

Podesta & Baldocchi report an excellent business week, their heaviest trade consisting of funeral work and some large decorations.

Mark Ebel, of Sacramento, who is visiting San Francisco, says that business has never been better. He has a great

The Market.

The bright weather of the last few days has brought the crop of blooms on earlier than usual, many of the growers being now in full crop. While business has been good, the stores have had some trouble in taking care of the extra cut. Mums are now in good supply; some of the midseason varieties are on the market. These have much better flowers and stems than the early varieties. Carnations are of excellent quality, as are roses; there is an oversupply of the latter at this writing. Some good gladioli are still seen, while dahlias are now at their best. Some fine specimens of this splendid fall flower are being shown.

Various Notes.

On a recent visit to the Northwestern Floral Co. I found things in excellent order. The manager, George Seaverns, reports business good. Some fine blooms of Unaka were just coming into flower. Potted stock is the specialty on this place.

Van Slyke & Seamons are showing some fine blooms of Unaka and Chrysolora.

The California Florist reports business good along all lines.

Louis Tschunko, Fred Smith and A. A. Hinz report a good catch on a recent fishing trip. J. L. S.

SEATTLE, WASH.

The Market.

There is a fair demand for cut flowers and business is showing a slight improvement. Chrysanthemums are now the chief flowers and there are quantities of them in all the stores. The supply so far has been coming principally from California, but now good home-grown flowers are seen in quantity and the importation of California mums is about finished. The California violets, however, are taking their place, for no violets are grown locally. Carnations are now fairly plentiful, but the unusually bright weather is telling on the quality. So far the price has been good. Roses are in good shape and, with the outside flowers almost finished, there is a fair demand. Some dahlias are occasionally seen, but the blooms of these do not meet with the popular demand they used to have. The dahlia is supposed to be the official flower of this city, but, aside from a few enthusiasts, no one cultivates it to any extent and as a cut flower it is no longer popular. There are few orchids. Valley also is scarce. Gladioli are here yet, but there is not much sale for them at this late season. Some weddings and other functions have caused a stir at some of the stores. Large quantities of autumn foliage have been used this year and the mild weather has protracted the season for it.

Various Notes.

There is a wonderful difference in the appearance of the greenhouses of the Capitol Hill Floral Co. since Victor Johnson took possession, about a year ago. Stock of all kinds is in good shape, especially the pot plants, and he reports that business is thriving, while indications point to a successful future.

J. De Groot, representing Driehuizen Bros., of Lisse, Holland, is visiting the trade here. He is accompanied by his wife and he states his intention of taking up his permanent abode in this neighborhood.

were resumed October 13. The election of officers resulted in all the old staff being reëlected, except that J. J. Bonnell took the place of vice-president, vacated by John Holze. An interesting discussion on coöperation occupied the rest of the time.

Growers of Dutch bulbs have just received their shipments for this season. While possibly there are not such large quantities received here this year, on account of the poor prices realized for the flowers in recent seasons, the bulbs are reported to be much superior to the ones received in the past. Shipments of Lilium giganteum were received from Japan last week. It seems that there is a shortage in the supply this season.

The Market.

The weather continues bright and warm, to the disadvantage of the trade, for it is a condition which induces many flower buyers to gather autumn foliage and wild ferns, which, together with home-grown roses, cosmos or dahlias, make a really presentable decoration, to the total exclusion of the services of the florist—a case of the good wind blowing someone ill. Carnations are now of prime quality, and though several social affairs have used some of the surplus stock, there is still a heavy oversupply. Roses have decreased in quantity and the supply is absorbed by the market at normal prices. Local-grown mums are more abundant and of better quality. White Ivory, Chrysolora and Comoleta are among the best local varieties shown, while Early Snow, Bonnaffon and Queen lead in the displays of California-grown stock. Dahlias are to be seen everywhere and are in the height of their glory. Callas and snapdragons are seen in limited quantity. Asparagus is in oversupply.

Various Notes.

The Floral Studio, on Alder street, furnished the bouquets and table decorations for the recent Baron-Fitzpatrick wedding. The bouquets were of gardenias and valley.

Howard E. Weed has received the contract for landscaping the Washelli cemetery, at Seattle. He has just planted 20,000 peonies, furnished by the Capitol Point Nursery, of Olympia.

E. R. Chappell has taken a position at S. G. Lubliner's store, in the Portland hotel block.

The Oregon Dahlia Society is making a strong effort to bring to Portland next year the show of the Northwest Dahlia Society.

Arthur L. Deal, representing W. W. Johnson & Son, seedsmen, of Boston, England, called on the trade here last week.

E. F. Hockaby, of Tacoma, won the sweepstakes prize at the Oregon dahlia show, where between 700 and 800 varieties were exhibited.

The Comoleta mums grown by August Zitzewitz at Mount Scott are considered excellent.

THE THIRD EDITION

Of the most successful book ever published for the trade

The original Album of Designs was published in response to many requests from florists who felt the need for an up-to-date book that could be used in taking orders for Funeral Designs, Wedding Decorations and Bouquets, Table Decorations and all cut flower work where it was not practicable to show the customer the finished article as it would be when ready for use. With the publication of this Album it became possible to show the finished work in beautifully printed pictures. The first edition sold like hot-cakes, and a second edition went quickly. The third edition is now ready. Everything is in it—all the standard designs and many new and heretofore unpublished pieces.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

THERE is a strong demand for privet this fall; at least, Review advertisers find it so.

GEORGE WIRT is erecting a large packing and storage house at his nursery, at Alpha, Ill.

TEXAS headquarters will be established at Port Arthur by the Griffing Bros. Co., of Jacksonville and Macclenny, Fla.

NOTICE of the death of James Jeffrey, of Kalamazoo, Mich., said to be the oldest member of the American Association of Nurserymen, appears in this week's obituary column.

PREPARATIONS for fall shipments and removal to a new office, coming both at the same time, are keeping the entire force of the Texas Nursery Co., at Sherman, Tex., on the jump.

THE Wade Nursery Co., of New Rochelle, N. Y., has filed incorporation papers. The capital stock is $2,500 and the directors are Thomas J. Wade and Susanna Wade, of New Rochelle, and Joseph J. Taylor, of Pelham.

KANSAS and Oklahoma stock is in first-class shape this year, according to W. F. Schell, for thirty years in business at Wichita, Kan. The abundance of moisture has been conducive to the production of the best stock in all lines.

MEET AT FORT WORTH.

Annual Meeting of Texas Nurserymen.

The fourteenth annual meeting of the Texas Nurserymen's Association was held at Fort Worth October 14 and 15 in the Chamber of Commerce building. The officers elected for the ensuing year were as follows:

President—Will B. Munson, of Denison.

Vice-president—J. M. Ramsey, of Austin.

Secretary-treasurer—H. I. Martin, of Port Arthur.

Publicity the Topic.

The most engrossing topic of the meeting was that of publicity. In his opening address President John S. Kerr declared the need of publicity work by, or on behalf of the nurserymen to counteract the erroneous statements of the public press in regard to business conditions and prospects. His opinion that there was no cause for anxiety on the part of nurserymen in regard to the business outlook was strengthened by those of a number of other speakers. The subject, "The Value of a Publicity Organization in the Education of the People in the Work of the Nurserymen," was treated by J. M. Ramsey, of Austin, and a paper on the subject was sent by H. E. Hall, of Sherman, who was kept at home by the pressure of business. Mr. Ramsey concluded his address with a motion for the appointment of a committee to take charge of the publicity work of the association. The motion was carried, but it was decided to await the installation of the new officers before making appointments.

Please cut out of my ad for Privet the 18 to 24-inch, as I am all sold out of that size. The Review certainly does bring the answers.

CHARLES L. SMITH,
Oct. 13, 1914. Pennsgrove, N. J.

The view of the business outlook held by those present was an optimistic one. H. I. Martin declared there is more money in southern banks at the present time than ever before. L. J. Tackett quoted prominent bankers to the effect that with a bumper grain crop and an average cotton crop business is bound to pick up shortly. He predicted that nurserymen would have their normal business in January and February. J. B. Baker said that cotton was only a third of the money source of the South. He suggested that cotton be taken in exchange for nursery stock, the nurserymen thus coöperating with the farmers. Will B. Munson believed that prices should be maintained as formerly.

Interesting Addresses.

At the closing session of the meeting C. L. Edwards, of Dallas, gave an address on the pecan industry in Texas, which proved of much value to the hearers. R. C. Kerr, of Houston, president of the Texas State Florists' Association, read a paper on "Coöperation Among Nurserymen and Florists in Carrying On the Work of Beautifying the Cities of the State," in which he suggested that a commitee be appointed to confer with Commissioner of Agriculture Davis on questions concerning the work and interests of the nurserymen and florists of the state. Other papers were read as follows:

"The Most Important Subjects Solved at the National Convention of Nurserymen in Cleveland Last June by Those Who Attended," J. B. Baker, C. C. Mayhew, Will B. Munson, John S. Kerr.

Special report of committee on state botanical garden for Texas, John S. Kerr, chairman.

"In What Ways Can Our Association Render a Better Service?" H. C. Locke, New Braunfels; G. A. Schattenberg, Boerne.

"The Benefits to the Citrus and Ornamental Industries Afforded by the New Freight Rate on Balled Evergreens," W. D. Griffing, Port Arthur.

"The Leading Classes and Varieties of Nursery Stock to Be Grown in the Lower Rio Grande Valley," Eltweed Pomeroy, Donna.

"In Case Burlap Becomes Prohibitive in Price, What Substitute or Method of Packing May Best Be Used?" John F. Sneed, Tyler; C. C. Mayhew, Sherman.

"The Value of a Publicity Organization in the Education of the People in the Work of the Nurserymen," J. M. Ramsey, Austin; E. W. Kirkpatrick, McKinney.

The committee on resolutions was composed of J. R. Mayhew, of Waxahachie; Will B. Munson, of Denison, and G. H. Blackmon. The auditing committee comprised H. I. Martin, of Port Arthur, and L. J. Tackett, of Fort Worth.

Following the closing session the nurserymen visited the nurseries of Fort Worth and went to see Niles City. Baker Bros., of Fort Worth, supplied the trans-

A SPECIES OF HAWTHORN.

In a separate package I am sending a cutting and some berries from a shrub which in this Oregon climate is practically an evergreen. I should like to know the name of the shrub, if I am not giving you too much trouble. J. S.

The specimen of shrub sent me with this query is a small, red-fruited species of hawthorn in leaf, somewhat like Cratægus spathulata. It also shows affinity to the Oxyacantha group of English hedge thorns, of which C. Oxyacantha præcox, the Glastonbury thorn, is famed as blooming at Christmas. It is mentioned in early English literature as the thorn of St. Joseph of Arimathea and a well known legend is associated with it from the ages of faith.

The fact noted in the inquiry, that this shrub is evergreen in Oregon, may be owing to someone having introduced some of the Glastonbury strain in that region of the country, or it may be merely the natural effect of the mild climate on allied species. In either case the fact is one of considerable horticultural interest. J. H.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

The last week has been a busy one for the florists, the numerous private and public social functions in connection with the celebration of the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of Brown University greatly accelerating the market. Chrysanthemums were in considerable demand, especially white and yellow, and prices advanced about one-third in consequence. Choice roses and orchids were also much in evidence. Several large funerals and a few weddings added to the demand.

Various Notes.

Mrs. S. J. Reuter and Miss Mary Reuter, wife and daughter of S. J. Reuter, of Westerly, who are making an extended stay in Germany, where they went last spring with Mr. Reuter for the benefit of his health, have joined the Red Cross Society there.

Patrick J. Neville, foreman for Michael Sweeney, 520 Pine street, has reported to the police that the greenhouse was broken into Friday night, October 16, and some money stolen from the counter.

Mrs. Robert Lamont, of Public street, has taken the flower stand at L. Dimond & Sons', Inc.

George L. Stillman, of Westerly, was an exhibitor of dahlias at the recent state fair at Trenton, N. J., where he took first prizes on collection of cactus dahlias, general collection and collection of singles.

A. E. Austin had the decorations for the big dinner at the Churchill House Thursday evening, October 15, in connection with the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary celebration of the founding of Brown University.

John Burke Cohen has severed his connection with Joseph Koppelman.

John Johnston, of Johnston Bros., is one of the most enthusiastic baseball fans in this city and attended the recent world's series games at Boston.

Winifred Seaman, for several years with M. J. Leach & Sons, has opened a retail store on Main street, near the railroad station, at Pawtucket.

A handsome new addition is being erected at the range of William Appleton & Sons, which will be used as a salesroom and office.

The large new greenhouse erected by the Hoxsie Nurseries, at Hoxsie Station, has been completed and is now being planted with bulbous stock.

Henry W. Pierce, for many years in business in Woonsocket, died recently at his home, 453 Transit street, death being due to a long illness from cancer of the liver. He leaves a widow and one daughter. W. H. M.

Let us quote you on Lilium Giganteum, Rubrum, Album and Auratum. Let the results convince you of the quality; the price will be right, too.

An Enormous Stock

Famous for Health and Vigor

We are overstocked with Palms. Owing to the war, Growers in France and Belgium, who usually purchase the bulk of our stock, are unable to do so this season. We have been large exporters for many years to all countries in the old and new worlds that use Palms. Probably you may have bought our Palms already from other Dealers.

We offer you direct supply now. Extra fine, vigorous young plants, splendid color, absolutely clean.

How Much Longer Will You Sleep?
How Much Longer Will You Worry?

Worry makes gray hair. Don't get old when you can prevent it. Don't let the war worry you. Wake up! Go right ahead into business. Look out for yourself, for nobody will give you anything if you have nothing. The European war has nothing to do with the florists' business—we don't ship plants to Europe. If business is bad, don't blame the war, but blame yourself.

Look here:—I will help you and give you a chance, but for one week only, at prices seldom offered. We need the room for our great importation of Azalea Indica, and have decided to make a big reduction on the following plants:

Our Ferns are all Pot Grown. Bench grown and lifted are no good, they will go back on you. 20% reduction is not included in this list.

A 7-inch $1.00 Boston Fern we shall reduce to only 50c.
A 6-inch 75c Boston Fern we shall reduce to only 40c.
A 6-inch 50c Boston Fern we shall reduce to only 35c.
A 5½-inch 40c Boston Fern we shall reduce to only 30c.
A 7-inch $1.00 Whitmani Fern we shall reduce to only 50c.
A 6½-inch 75c Whitmani Fern we shall reduce to only 40c.
A 6-inch 50c Whitmani Fern we shall reduce to only 40c.
A 5½-inch 40c Whitmani Fern we shall reduce to only 30c.

A beautiful 7-inch $1.00 Roosevelt Fern, now only 50c.
A beautiful 6½-inch 75c Roosevelt Fern, now only 40c.
A beautiful 6-inch 50c Roosevelt Fern, now only 35c.
A beautiful 5-inch 40c Roosevelt Fern, now only 30c.
A large 7-inch $1.00 Scottii Fern, reduced to 50c.
A large 6½-inch 75c Scottii Fern, reduced to 40c.
A large 6-inch 50c Scottii Fern, reduced to 35c.
A large 5½-inch 40c Scottii Fern, reduced to 30c.

And look, to give you an additional chance, we shall give a reduction of 20% on cash with order on everything we have advertised, with the exception of Araucarias.

AZALEA INDICA.

DON'T BE DECEIVED. We are the only reliable importers of Azalea Indica. Our 25 year reputation of importing, selling and shipping should be sufficient proof of our ability. Be up-to-date and go nowhere else for Azaleas but to Godfrey Aschmann.

Our new crop from Belgium is on the road now, and we are able to fill every order, subject to stock being in when orders arrive, and if the stock fails to arrive, we have a big stock of 1913 importation, just as good if not better than the new crop. We have only the leading varieties.

Force Now for Christmas. For Christmas forcing we have: Mme. Petrick, very double pink, one of the best, 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 to $2.00. Vervaeneana, double rose, 50c, 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 to $2.00. Deutsche Perle, double white, 75c, $1.00, $1.50 to $2.00. Simon Mardner, double pink, 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 to $2.00. Vervaeneana Alba, double white, 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 to $2.00.

For Easter Blooming we have: Mme. Vander Cruyssen, best double pink, E. Enckhaute, Hexe, Simon Mardner, Vervaeneana, Niobe, De Schryveriana, Princess of India and other well tested varieties, at 50c, 75c, $1.00, $1.50 to $2.00. We are known to give first-class goods for the money, and always full value without giving measurements. Don't forget that we are Azalea Importers who have no equal.

ARAUCARIA.
OUR SPECIALTY.

WAR ABROAD will make the Araucarias scarce this fall and winter. But look, it won't affect Godfrey Aschmann. Why? We were not afraid to invest thousands of dollars in importing the plants in the spring of 1914, hence we do not care for the war, and are prepared to fill all orders—4 houses are filled with the choice ARAUCARIA EXCELSA. We are again able to fill all orders. 5½ and 6-inch pots, 2, 3, 4, 5 years old, 14, 15, 20 to 25 in. high, well established, 50c, 60c, 75c, $1.00, $1.25 to $1.50. BRIDGETON, DEL.

During the convention of vegetable growers at Philadelphia a party of 250 came to Bridgeton to inspect Seabrook Farms as the guests of the Skinner Irrigation Co. They were brought to Bridgeton by special train, and were met at Bridgeton by seventy-five automobiles, furnished by the Bridgeton Board of Public Improvement. It seems that this Board of Trade felt the visit such an important one that it was widely advertised in advance. The town was decorated with flags and at all schoolhouses in the country round about in the 20-mile ride that we had, the scholars were lined up in front, to wave flags and show us their greetings.

At the Seabrook Farms we found eighty-five acres under irrigation, and twenty more in the process of installation. Spinach, lettuce and potato crops were in abundance and the cultivation is certainly being ideally handled. Last year Lord & Burnham built for them one of their iron-frame greenhouses, 60x400. Standing at one side, I was greatly impressed with the serious interest with which the growers scanned the L. & B. house. These vegetable growers certainly are coming along. Talking with the foreman, he said they sterilize their soil every year, as they do not care to take the risk that some of the growers do in sterilizing only once every three years. After the grounds and the greenhouse were thoroughly inspected, the Board of Trade took the party on a 20-mile ride, throughout the surrounding country, seeing the various other truck farms. We ended up in Bridgeton park, where a lunch was served, of apples and other fruit, crullers and delicious cider. T.

According to the assessors' list just filed at Middletown, Carl Jurgens is taxed on $25,500 and V. A. Vanicek on $20,900.

Jeremiah O'Connor, one of the oldest gardeners in Newport, died at his home on Chapel street a few days ago after a long illness. For many years, and until old age incapacitated him for work, he was head gardener on the Edgar place, on Old Beach road. He leaves one son and three daughters.

William Jurgens was a business visitor in Providence and Boston last week.

MILWAUKEE, WIS.

The Market.

There has been little change in general trade conditions during the week just past. The weather man decided that he had given us more than our share of sunshine and took his revenge by turning on the water faucet and then taking a week off. Not one day of sunshine did we see all the week and of course this shortened up stock to some extent. It did not create a scarcity, but kept the market from being glutted with an overabundant supply.

Carnations are with us in quantity and are selling well. The supply is much greater than the demand, however, and cleaned up.

Roses are also plentiful, but are moving exceptionally well. Mrs. Chas. Russell seems to be a prime favorite with the trade and is finding a ready sale. Of course, there is the usual demand for Killarney and White Killarney, and large quantities of Sunburst, Mrs. Taft, Ophelia, Ward and Hadley are being disposed of, although the prices realized are below normal.

Chrysanthemums are in fine shape and are moving readily. Some exceedingly fine stock is seen on the market and is being disposed of at prices which are not quite so good as last year. Violets are on the market in small quantities, but the quality is not good enough as yet to make this stock sell well. Valley is being sold as fast as it appears, but the sales of liles are not so good as they should be. Owing to the fact that we have had no frost so far, outdoor stock still clutters up the market.

Various Notes.

Last week there were a number of weddings, which helped the trade to a great extent. Prominent among them was that of Miss Gertrude Smith and Alfred L. Slocum, 2908 Highland boulevard. The bride carried a shower bouquet of sweet peas and valley, while the maid of honor and bridesmaids carried bouquets of Sunburst roses. In the decorations were used yellow dahlias, chrysanthemums, sweet peas, roses and larkspurs. M. A. McKenney & Co. had charge of the decorations.

Theodore Kienahs, of La Crosse, Wis., was in Milwaukee Saturday, October 17. H. E. Philpott, of Winnipeg, Canada, also visited the local trade on that day.

Currie Bros. Co. has leased the building formerly occupied by Zimmerman Bros., clothiers, on East Water street, and will move their seed store to this location as soon as alterations now under way are completed. The new location is a good one and the move should be profitable. H. J. S.

PANDANUS VEITCHII

I have about 10,000 pot-grown Pandanus Veitchii, well rooted, nicely variegated, no white ones; plants are grown only from small cuttings from 4 to 6 inches high. This is the best lot of such plants I ever had. Surplus over the requirements of my regular customers. Special low net price is $80.00 per 1000: 500 at 1000 rate.

For 18 years I have been growing Pandanus Veitchii on a large scale, having standing orders from the largest houses in the country. I have increased my acreage of stock plants so that I now have some surplus over the requirements of my regular customers.

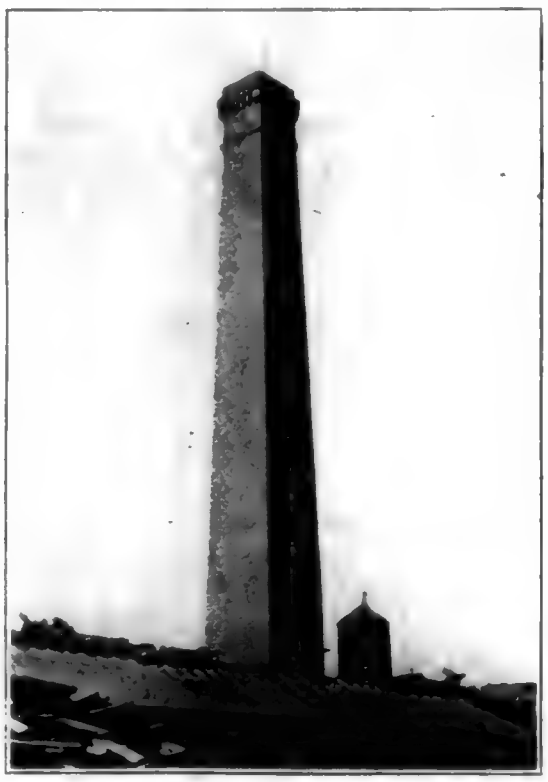
Greenhouse Heating.

Subscribers are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. But please do not ask The Review to make a choice of apparatus for you. The greenhouse heating equipment advertised in this paper is, we believe, the best for the trade to buy, and each article the best in the special field of its adaptation.

CHAPIN'S ADDITIONS.

This has been a busy season for Chapin Bros., who have been making large additions and improvements to their range, which lies in one of the prettiest suburbs of Lincoln, Neb. Two semi-iron houses, 30x150; and one, 10x150; a brick boiler room, an 85-foot smokestack, two large Kewanee boilers and an entirely new heating system are among the additions recently completed. An office and a garage are now being built.

To this firm the season now opening looks especially good. There is more money in circulation than ever before in the middle west, as a result of the big crops and high prices, which should make business good for everyone.



PIPING A WASHINGTON HOUSE.

We have installed a 20-horse-power steam boiler to heat two houses, 20x190 feet. We wish to keep up a temperature of 60 degrees in zero weather. We lead out of the dome with a 3-inch pipe rising nine feet from the floor, which is on a level with the top of the boiler, and branching into a 2½-inch and 3-inch header. From this we run six 2-inch pipes under the gutter, which has a fall of two feet. These pipes drop into headers of three 2-inch pipes. The latter lead back to the boiler with the same fall, connecting with a 4-inch header, which passes into a 4-inch hole at the bottom of the boiler. Is our top opening large enough? What steam pressure must we use? Is our boiler large enough connected on gravity? M. M. C.

About 1,500 square feet of steam radiation will be required to heat the two houses and this can be supplied by a 20-horse-power boiler, although a slightly larger one would be better for the purpose.

By using a 4-inch flow pipe the circulation will be improved, but if a pressure of thirty pounds is carried, the flow need not be larger than 3-inch, and a 2½-inch pipe will answer for each of the houses. I should prefer to run this as an overhead flow pipe about two feet below the ridge and put in nine 1¼-inch returns in each house. A 2-inch pipe will be sufficiently large to connect all of the returns in each house to the boiler.

As near as I can determine from the description of the present piping, there are twelve 2-inch returns in each house, which is nearly twice the number necessary.

New Brick Stack of Chapin Bros.

PIPING AN ELL-SHAPED HOUSE.

Enclosed you will find a rough drawing of a greenhouse which I wish to heat with hot water. My location is northwestern Pennsylvania. I have plenty of 3-inch pipe and about 1,200 feet of 1½-inch pipe. There will be a bench at each side of the house and a solid bed in the center. The walls are wood, covered with paper. There are four feet of glass in the east and west ends of the ell. The boiler is cast-iron and has two 3½-inch openings for flows and two openings of the same size for returns. It has a rating of 1,850 feet. Is it large enough to heat the house to 50 degrees when the outside temperature is 10 degrees below zero? A. E. H.

One section of the sketch apparently shows the main part of the house to be 14x72 feet, with an ell eighteen feet wide and thirty-four feet long, extending across the end of the house. The only glass in the walls is at the east and west ends of the ell. The boiler is located in a pit under the east end of the ell and at the south end of the main part of the house.

To heat such a house to 50 degrees with hot water will require only about 600 square feet of radiation, so that the boiler with a capacity of 1,850 square feet of radiation is considerably larger than is necessary. To heat the space 14x72 feet, run a 3-inch main under the ridge to the north end and connect it with eight 1½-inch returns, four of which should be placed under each of the side benches.

The location of the doors will perhaps have something to do with the arrangement of the piping in the other part of the house, but I would run a 2½-inch main to the west end and, after dropping it down, connect with coils running across the west end and down the side walls. About 400 lineal feet of 1½-inch pipe will be required to heat this part of the house. If there are no doors to prevent the carrying of the coils along the exposed walls of the four sides of the room, five lines of 1½-inch pipe will answer for each of the coils, but if only a portion of the walls can be utilized, the number of pipes in the coils should be proportionately increased.

If the boiler, as seems to be indicated by the sketch, can be placed only five feet in the ground, the use of 1½-inch pipe for the returns is not advisable without using some form of circulator or generator.

While one section of the sketch of the main part of the house shows five feet of space on one side of the ridge and nine feet on the other, making a width of fourteen feet, as already stated, yet the ground plan shows a width of twenty-two feet. For this width two additional return pipes will be required in each coil. I would prefer to use four 2-inch pipes or two 3-inch pipes where I have suggested using four 1½-inch returns.

SCARCELY ENOUGH PIPING.

We are building a greenhouse, 42½x150. It is of iron-frame construction, with concrete walls and with thirty-six inches of glass in each side. In this part of North Carolina the outside temperature rarely drops lower than 15 degrees above zero; perhaps once in a few years it falls to 5 or 6 degrees above zero. We are planning to heat the house with two 2-inch mains, one 2½-inch main and eight 1¼-inch returns. Would that be enough piping to heat the house to 60 degrees? J. L. O.

While it would be possible to maintain the temperature mentioned in ordinary winter weather with the radiation suggested, by carrying some pressure, I would prefer to use twelve returns, which would keep up the temperature even though it drops to 10 degrees above zero outside. There is no particular objection to using the 2½-inch main, but unless the pipe is on hand, I would have all of the mains 2-inch.

The Market.

Business is better, though not normal. The outdoor flowers were killed by frost last week and the supply of roses has become less plentiful than formerly, but still they exceed the demand, due to the warm weather we are having. Carnations are fine, but if the warm weather continues they will soon be in oversupply. Violets are coming in small lots. They are of poor quality, also due to the weather, which has caused leaf growth. Ferns are plentiful, all growers offering them so as to make room for bulbous stock. Some growers still have their lilies under the benches.

Various Notes.

Perl Bros., formerly with the park board, will open a landscape and florists' shop next to the Plaza hotel, where Hennepin, Lyndale and Kenwood parkway meet. It is near the armory and across from where the convention garden was located. They will cater to the best class of trade and we hope they will succeed.

We have welcomed to the city our old friend Mr. Evers, formerly of Seattle. He will design for Miss Whitted.

W. Vasatka, secretary of the Florists' Club, says he will resign at the next meeting, which will be held at Donaldson's greenhouses.

Miss Julia Ells, of the L. S. Donaldson Co., was in a runaway accident which nearly proved serious; her horse became frightened at an auto, but was stopped before anyone was hurt.

Oscar Carlson has just finished his new home.

Miss H. B. Whitted has had a window display of dahlias, the different varieties tastefully arranged, each with a neat card attached giving the name.

Donaldson is featuring two bulb windows, one of bulbs just as they arrive, each with a card attached giving the name and where it is grown. C. B. L.

The Market.

Trade has been only fair. The weather continues warm and balmy, with no frost in sight. Conditions will probably not change until we get a heavy frost. Stock is plentiful. Outdoor flowers, such as cosmos and dahlias, are to be had in any quantity. Chrysanthemums are becoming more plentiful. Some first-class carnations are coming in. Beauties and other varieties of roses are more than equal to the demand. Some first-class pot mums are finding a ready sale.

Various Notes.

Sprinkleproof Sam Seligman was a caller last week. He says business is good with him.

John Grande is bringing his usual line of pot mums into the market, and they are finding a good demand.

J. A. Peterson and wife spent a day in the city last week. They were on a motoring trip through Indiana, and incidentally talking begonias wherever the opportunity presented itself.

Hartje & Elder have been cutting cosmos and dahlias in large quantities.

Bertermann Bros. Co. was quite busy with wedding decorations last week.

Adolph Baur, secretary of the American Carnation Society, is busy getting out the premium list for the coming show and is also soliciting advertising for it. Any one desiring space will communicate with Mr. Baur at once.

The committee in charge of the autumn flower show reports satisfactory progress and indications point to a highly successful show. The public is showing unusual interest and many requests are being made for tickets already. It is expected that a large number of Illinois florists will attend and extra efforts will be made for their entertainment. The banquet has been arranged for Friday night, November 6, and a smoker for Saturday night, November 7. H. L. W.

The Market.

Trade is somewhat improved since last writing, but is still a little below what it should be with plenty of stock on hand. Beauties are coming in nicely at present, with good foliage and good blooms. Even the shorter-stemmed ones are of excellent quality and the demand is about equal to the supply. Other roses are doing nicely and there are plenty to go the rounds in all varieties except a few of the newer ones. Carnations are coming in finely and the quality was never better at this date. Stems are excellent and blooms are of good size. The demand as a rule cleans them up. Valley has been a little scarce and some orders were hard to fill on short notice. There is still a large quantity of outdoor stock, cosmos, dahlias, etc., which helps out on that line.

Mums are coming in heavily and are about cleaned up daily. The supply will increase right along and there is a big stock to care for. Some excellent Early Snow and Halliday are to be seen. Pacific and Estelle are right in their prime and will soon be out of the way, to make room for some later ones.

The demand for potted plants will soon be cared for, as potted mums are coming in and it will not be long till we have a good line of other blooming stock.

Various Notes.

The Wilson Seed Co. won a medal for the window display during the style show and made a display at the pure food show, at Memorial hall, of plants, bulbs, etc.

The Livingston Seed Co. reports business on the mend and looks for a good season.

The Fifth Avenue Floral Co. is cutting some good Early Snow mums, also some good roses and Beauties.

The Munk Floral Co. reports business picking up, with a good supply of stock coming in from the range.

E. Metzmaier reports business a little quiet, but looks for it to open up shortly.

Columbus Floral Co. is getting in some good stock now in mums, Beauties, roses and carnations. J. M.

ST. PAUL, MINN.

The Market.

Business is constantly improving and stock arrives in the best possible condition. Up to the present time we have had no killing frost this season; as a general rule our first frost appears about September 15. The weather is fine and people have flowers in their gardens, but receptions, weddings, debutante parties and funerals are plentiful.

Mums are fine and sell well. The first violets are appearing and prove good sellers.

Club Meeting.

October 13 was held the first annual meeting of the St. Paul Florists' Club. The club has experienced an extremely favorable year. The election of officers resulted as follows: President, A. Lauritzen; vice-president, Chas. Vogt; secretary, J. W. Hoffman; treasurer, N. C. Hanson; executive committee, Chas. R. Fuhlbruegge, Frank Gustavsen and Wm. Keeling.

The club is doing exceptional work in the development of a bowling team and will soon be ready to meet other teams, Minneapolis included.

Various Notes.

Holm & Olson have acquired the triangle on Duke and Pleasant avenues. On this triangle will be erected a storage house at a cost of $13,000, a greenhouse thirty feet wide the full length of their upper range and a dwelling for the foreman. A look around the greenhouses of this firm found the stock in the best of condition. Mums are the finest in the last few years. Christmas stock, such as poinsettias, cherries and peppers, are coming on finely.

Munich & Waller, the west side florists, are cutting a fine lot of Kaiserin. This firm just completed and planted to carnations a fine 200-foot house. Mums on this place are in fine condition.

Fred Topel, on East Seventh street, is remodeling the store. A new front and various other improvements are being installed.

E. J. Fancourt, of the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., Philadelphia, and Frank McCabe, of the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, were visitors last week.

Cast Iron Gutters Below Cost

I have just purchased 2650 feet of new cast iron gutters of a standard pattern (see cut). These gutters vary just a trifle in straightness, about ⅛ inch to ¼ inch in a length, and were refused at the foundry on account of a misunderstanding with the purchaser. They are brand new and the prices I am quoting are lower than actual cost at the foundry. The selling price of these gutters was 75 cents per foot. I can furnish them made up in runs as desired, with sash bar brackets for any pitch of roof. These gutters will sell like hot cakes, so hurry your order in today. Cash with order preferred, but will give time to responsible parties.

THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

POPULAR POMPONS PULL PROFITS

Take any inexpensive baskets in your stock; fill them with the bright and saucy little pompon mums; price them for the passers-by; fill your window with them and they'll pull the people in—make your cash register play ragtime these November afternoons—surest thing you know. Get busy. Start something. Do it now.

THERE are a few people who would rather buy strawberries in January than in June, but—ask any dealer—the bulk of the retailers' profits are made in the height of the season. Think it over.

Did you ever stop to consider that the flower of the season is the easiest flower to sell? And the one that turns in the real profits!

Every observant person has noted that certain retail florists have been able to double, perhaps triple or quadruple, their volume of business within a comparatively short time, say two or three or four years, while other retailers in the same cities, perhaps longer established, have been making slow progress.

Pushing the Easy Sellers.

But how many florists have stopped to analyze the methods by which sales have been built up so rapidly?

Think it over and it will be apparent that the selling has been only a part of the method, that its foundation lies in the buying—in pushing the flower that is in season.

The majority of florists lay in a general stock and wait for trade. Not so the retailer who is at present making the biggest stir in his community. This man buys heavily of some one item, the flower that at the moment is most plentiful and cheapest if taken in large quantities. He makes a show. And, he advertises. Today he is selling Beauties, tomorrow roses, the next day cattleyas, and so on from one year's end to another. He puts his whole selling energy into pushing the day's specialty—the flower that is in season.

Even the retailers who have not analyzed the situation do more or less the same thing, each according to the extent of his business. Haven't you heard wholesalers say time and again that there are comparatively few buyers for novelties, that the big business is done with the flower that's in season, so plentiful it can be sold at moderate prices? Of course you have.

Nobody can dispute that the tendency is to push the flower that can be sold for small money and still return a fair percentage of profit.

The Pompons Are Coming.

The purpose here is not to argue whether or not this trend toward featuring the abundant article is advantageous to the trade at large, but to call attention that the popular little mums soon will be more abundant and probably cheaper than they ever have been before.

It is three years since the little mums came into their own. Before that they had been considerably seen, to be sure, but it was in the autumn of 1911 that the supply in the markets became great enough to assume a place of large importance. The novelty had not worn off, the stock was fine and excellent returns were obtained by the growers. The returns were so good, in fact, that the production was greatly increased, with the result that the wholesalers have been hard put to it to make returns that would compare in any way favorably with the records of the earlier season. This year the pompons have been planted by the hundreds of thousands—everybody is growing them; a few weeks ago there were scores of growers offering the plants in the classified columns of The Review. The results will be apparent in the wholesale markets within a fortnight.

The retailers surely will have a chance to make good use of pompons this season.

Last spring there was a wonderful sale for small baskets filled with sweet peas, daffodils, jonquils, tulips, short-stemmed roses and other suitable flowers. Baskets that could be sold, filled and trimmed with ribbon, at anywhere from $1.25 to $2.50 had a tremendous run. Many retailers in good sized cities sold them at the rate of dozens per day, sometimes even hundreds on special sales days. An even better business will be done during November, using the pompon mums.

Baskets Bring Business.

The pompons, and this includes the so-called singles, never would have become as popular as they are if it were not that they are about as adaptable as any flower the retailers ever have had to work with. They can be used for almost any purpose for which flowers ordinarily are employed. Some of the double white varieties compete with the carnation as filling for funeral designs, you see other sorts in corsages, while graceful sprays of them are ideal for decorative purposes. But it is for table centerpieces and for basket work that they are so well adapted that they refuse to take second place to any flower available in their season. The supply dealers have not failed to appreciate this and there is an infinite variety of small baskets designed for use with the small mums. Baskets with or without liners can be used. The flowers can be put in water or the stems can be inserted in damp moss packed into the basket. Every retailer's natural aptitude for the business will lead him to a happy combination of basket, flowers and ribbon.

The Pompons are Comfortable in Any Kind of Small Basket.

The retailer who plans to make the pompon and single mums an important item of his sales during the next few weeks will see to it that he not only has a good supply of baskets, but an adequate stock of ribbons of the right character, widths and colors. The baskets of pompons and singles are incomplete without the use of ribbon. You cannot use wide, heavy satin taffeta ribbon for these baskets; the right article is the satin-edged gauze or a light ribbon that will be in harmony with the light, graceful character of flowers and receptacle. A wide range of colors is useful. Of course the width of the ribbon will depend more or less on the size of basket.

The filling of the baskets is a simple matter for any florist and the selling will be equally simple if the window and tables in the store make an attractive showing of them. But don't be content with catching the eyes of the people who pass the store—catch the eyes of those who usually turn off your street a block or two higher up. Do it by means of a neat ad in your leading daily paper. Not the paper, necessarily, that importunes you hardest, but the one that carries, month after month, the most ads for other merchants who are seeking the trade of the same class of people you want to reach.

RETAIL STORE MANAGEMENT

WHAT THE LEADERS IN THE TRADE ARE DOING

GUARANTEEING FLOWERS.

Time was when a sale was a sale the minute the flowers went out—now, with many retailers a sale is not a sale until the customer has been completely satisfied with the lasting qualities of the flowers. True, there still are retail florists who do not willingly make good on flowers they think are all right when sent out, but one by one the better class of stores have adopted the plan of adjusting complaints without a word except an expression of regret that a mishap should have occurred. They find it pays, for most of their trade is regular trade and any transient is apt to become a regular customer if treated well.

Penn, in Boston, long has followed the practice of replacing flowers without question in the few cases where stock goes wrong; the rule has been, "The customer always is right." But recently Penn's went a step farther than most florists as yet have cared to go in guaranteeing their work. A customer wanted flowers for a Saturday wedding in the Adirondacks. It was found that shipment of the bouquets would have to be made Thursday night to be in time. The customer was loath to chance it; he thought he would better order nearer to where the flowers were to be used. In order to get the business, Penn's agreed that the flowers need not be paid for unless perfectly satisfactory at the time of the ceremony. On this basis a shower bouquet of valley, a maid-of-honor bunch of roses and six bridesmaids' bouquets of roses were made up Thursday and shipped for a Saturday wedding. The customer's check came in Monday! And it was $90.

NO LOSS IN SUNDAY CLOSING.

In regard to Sunday closing, I should like to give you my experience. I have closed on Sunday now for nearly a year and find it a success, even though I am the only florist in my town to do so. The other fellows keep open. Financially I have lost nothing, having made possibly ten per cent more money, to say nothing of the one day I have had for recreation, etc.

I will tell you how I arranged it. Having decided to close, I advertised in the daily papers several times to that effect and had cards printed which read, "No delivery or sales on Sunday. Please do not ask it," and "Closed on Sunday," which I placed back of my counter and in the windows. I also had a number of little slips printed, duplicates of the newspaper advertisements, which I put into all boxes and packages of flowers for some time. Now it is quite rarely anyone wants flowers at my office on Sunday. I think others could also find a way to bring about Sunday closing.

ROSS BRAGG'S NEW STORE.

The need for better and increased facilities, brought about by the concern's growing business, which has led to the removal of the store of the Rochester Floral Co. from its old quarters in the Zumbro Hotel block to 119 South Main street. Both of these enterprises are under the control of Ross Bragg, at Rochester, Minn., who has found the hospital trade in that town a most profitable one. The store has been fitted up tastefully and presents a pleasing appearance. The white enameled trellis-work hung with smilax which covers the walls gives the place a distinctive touch. Back of the salesrooms are offices and workrooms, and in the cellar is a large storage refrigerator.

A Spray on an Easel.

A noteworthy feature is the display window and its fittings. The window is fitted with a moss pan bottom, in which moss and pot plants are growing. In one part of the window is a fountain surrounded with rocks, shells and moss, and containing several goldfish. The display attracted much attention at the opening of the store, at which a rose was presented to each visitor.

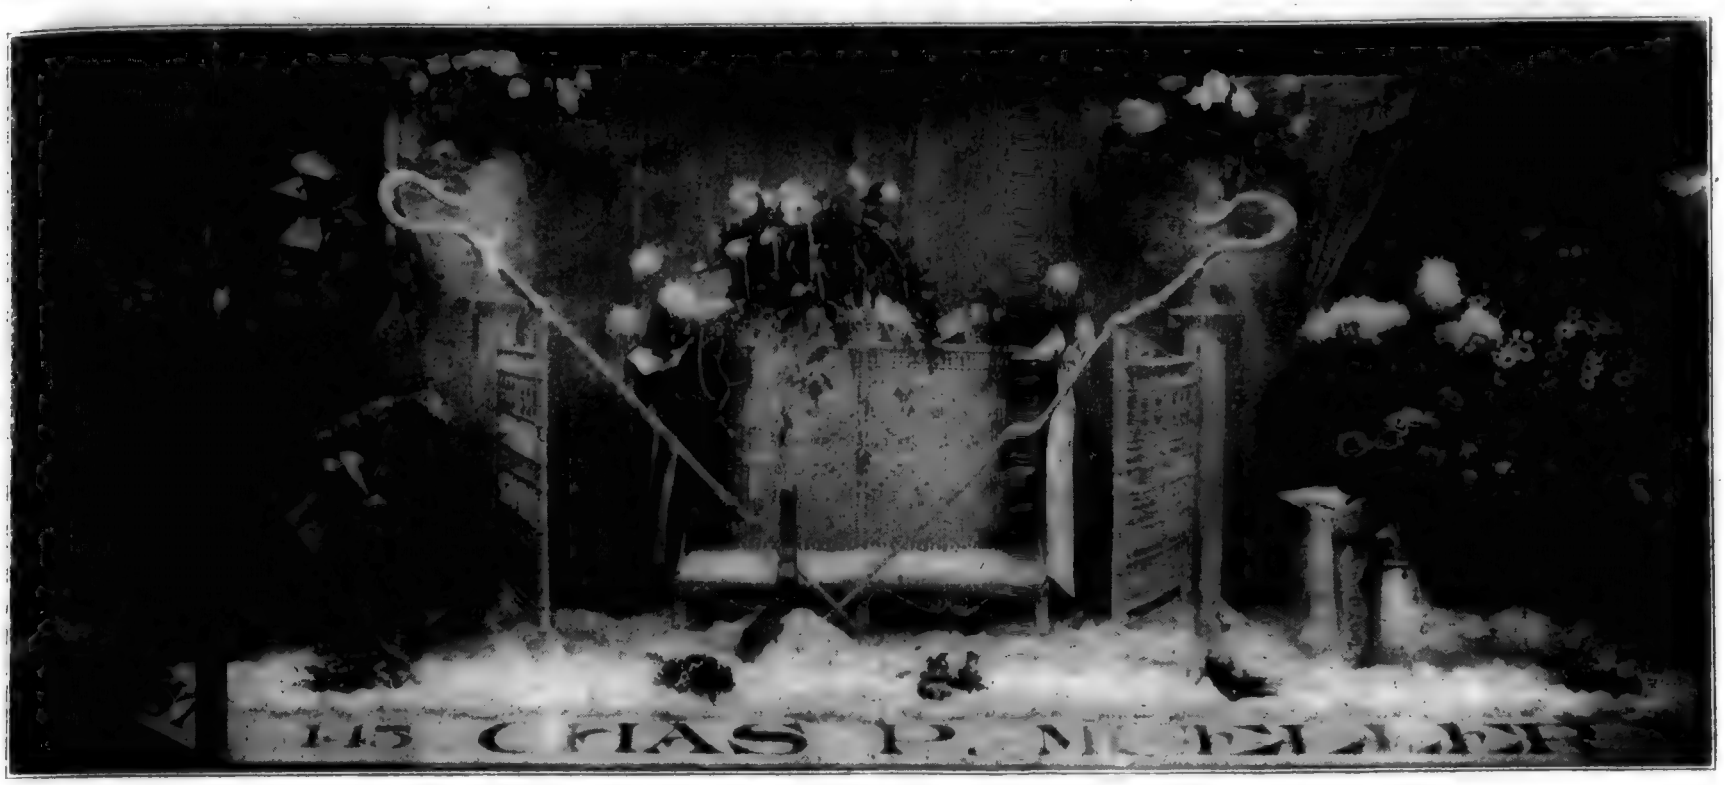
SO THEY CAN UNDERSTAND IT.

Too many florists who undertake to advertise their facilities for delivering flowers in distant places content themselves with a line: "Flowers telegraphed to all parts of the world," or some equally general statement. People don't understand how it can be done and the statement, being incomprehensible, falls flat—it's an ad that doesn't advertise.

But E. A. Richards, of Greenfield, Mass., does it better; he tells the whole story in his local newspaper, like this:

TELEGRAPH DELIVERY SUCCESSFUL.

The Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association, of which E. A. Richards, of the Sunny Dell Greenhouses, is a member, has been extremely successful for the short time it has been in existence. The object of the association is becoming known better all the time and as the people are becoming familiar with the benefits to be derived, members are receiving considerable business. The idea is to call up Mr. Richards when you want to have flowers delivered in any town or city in the United States, or, in fact, throughout the world. A member of the association is located in practically every town and city. After the receipt of the order by the local florist, he telegraphs to the member in the town where the flowers are to be delivered and the order is carried out promptly and in a satisfactory manner. Mr. Richards has been doing a good business in this way, but hopes to increase it during the coming year as the people become acquainted with the idea.



If every florist stated so clearly the way in which he "telegraphs" flowers the business would grow much faster than it ever has in the past, although The Review now is carrying the cards of nearly 300 florists who advertise that they make a specialty of filling these orders.

MUMS ON EASEL.

A spray does not show to the best advantage unless it is given proper display. The illustration is from a photograph of a bunch of white chrysanthemums, Asparagus Sprengeri and chiffon made by J. J. Beneke, St. Louis, the effect of which is vastly better because of its being staged on an easel.

RETAILING AT WICHITA.

The ten days from October 7 to 17 were the busiest for several months for the florists of Wichita, Kan. During that time the fourth annual Wichita Wedding Window of a Wichita Florist During the Recent Style Show Week.

Fair and Exposition was held in conjunction with the International Dry Farming Congress, the Soil Products Exposition, and the International Congress of Farm Women. All of these combined to form the largest agricultural exhibit held anywhere in the world. The paid attendance was over 103,000. The streets were gaily decorated. The decorative part of the exposition was under the direction of Charles P. Mueller, who had his hands full building mountains, lakes and Dutch scenery. The lobby of the building was laid out into formal gardens.

October 13 and 14 Wichita's first annual fashion show brought possibly 40,000 people into the space of five blocks to see the window displays that had been concealed by heavy curtains for two days. Mr. Mueller's wedding window attracted a great deal of attention and is shown in the accompanying illustration. R. H. F.

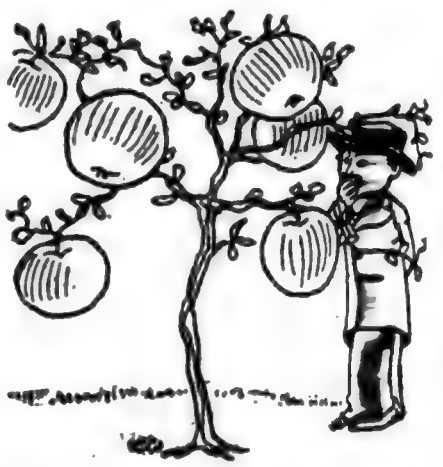
BUSINESS EMBARRASSMENTS.

Worland, Wyo.—R. G. Culbertson has been appointed receiver for the Buffum Pure Seed Co. It appears the company owes a considerable amount of money and has been unable to make payments. As a result several attachments were filed and business was stopped for several days, until Attorney C. F. Robertson appeared before Judge Metz at Cody to ask for a receiver. It is said that the stock on hand will more than pay the debts outstanding, and with proper management the business can be put on its feet and made a paying one.

TEMPERATURE FOR SWAINSONAS.

What is the best temperature in which to grow swainsonas? J. G.

From 50 to 55 degrees at night, with a corresponding rise in the daytime, is most suitable for swainsonas. C. W.



HINTS ON ASPARAGUS CULTURE.

In a range that I have just leased, seven of the houses are stocked with asparagus. The bunches seem to be heavy and are growing up to long shoots. Will you kindly inform me as to the best method of growing the crop? What is the best feed for it? What is the best way to cut asparagus? Is it best to keep the plants well cut out near the ground? F. C. H.

Warmth and moisture are two of the essentials in growing asparagus, and to these may be added liberal feeding. A night temperature of 60 degrees, enough water to keep the soil moist at all times, and syringing overhead on every bright day, combine to provide proper conditions for the growth of asparagus.

Feeding may be given either by means of mulching with good stable manure or by using liquid from the same source, applying the liquid at intervals of a week or ten days. Cow manure is one of the most satisfactory fertilizers for the purpose. In cutting asparagus, it is not advisable to cut out all the growth down to the ground, for this method weakens the plants too much and retards the growth. It is better to keep some of the lower growth, to encourage further action from the crowns of the plants. W. H. T.

Legislation and Legal Decisions

MARYLAND COMPENSATION LAW.

At the last session of the Maryland legislature a law was passed known as the workmen's compensation act, which becomes effective November 1, 1914, and which makes it compulsory for an employer to insure his or her employees against accidental disablement while in the discharge of their duties. The penalty for disobeying the law is a fine of $250 and if an accident should happen while an employee remains uninsured the penalty is a fine of $500. This law was passed in the interests of workmen engaged in factory work and other hazardous occupations, but none are excluded from its provisions except "farm laborers, domestic servants, country blacksmiths, wheelwrights and similar rural employment." It is questionable if employees of florists' and greenhouse establishments are excluded from the provisions of this act; in fact, the opinion a well known florist of Baltimore secured from one of the ablest lawyers of the state is that they are not. Consequently, it will be necessary for all florists to insure their employees according to the provisions of the law, which is a drastic one, to say the least. It is composed of parts of a number of similar laws of other states and was pronounced by a lawyer of national reputation to be invulnerable in the courts, as the majority of its provisions have stood through lengthy litigation in other states.

The law itself, couched in all its legal phrases, is too long to be reprinted here. All life insurance companies have copies of this law for distribution to their customers or persons interested. A brief synopsis of the law is as follows:

There are three ways in which an employer may insure: By the state mutual fund, which is created by a provision of the same act, by or through an authorized life insurance company, or by depositing with the state sufficient collateral to cover any losses he may become liable for. The majority of employers prefer the second way. The object of the law is to provide compensation for any employee who is injured during the discharge of his duties and physically or mentally incapacitated for work, and to provide funds for medical attendance and sustenance while an employee is so incapacitated, for himself and dependent family. The amount an employee may receive varies from $5 to $12 per week, and other than for medical attendance no funds are advanced for an employee disabled for less than two weeks. No person whose salary is more than $2,000 per year can receive any benefits under this act. Sickness from natural causes allows the employee no participation in the benefits unless such sickness be directly due to duties performed. An employer is defined by the law as "a person, partnership, association or corporation conducting or carrying on a business or trade for pecuniary gain or profit."

No business is exempt except those of an agricultural nature. It is an open question whether greenhouse employees come under this classification. The opinion of many of those interested is that they do not, but it is impossible to secure any definite official information on this subject, as the state industrial accident commission, to which the question was referred for an answer, positively refused to give any information other than that the law was plain and for any positive ruling it would be necessary to appeal to the courts. In the absence of definite information I believe it would be wise for florists and proprietors of greenhouse establishments to insure their employees in one of the ways described above. The rate for greenhouse workmen is 79 cents per $100 of their yearly wage; for store help, 36 cents; for drivers of horse vehicles, $1.63, and for automobile drivers (commercial), $1.79. This is cheaper than laying oneself open to the law and a possible fine of $250 or $500.

The writer is in possession of a complete copy of the law and its provisions and penalties, and would be pleased to supply any information in his power to anyone interested at any time.

William F. Ekas.

[In this connection attention should be called to the article published on page 78 of The Review for October 8, under the heading, "New Yorkers Need Not Worry," in which an informal expression of opinion was given by the secretary of the workmen's compensation commission of the state of New York. Under the New York law the greenhouse business as a whole is not regarded as a hazardous occupation. The informal opinion above referred to stated that "nurserymen and florists employ certain men who would have to be insured, although their enterprises as a whole are not covered by the act. Men driving teams, operating boilers or electrical appliances should be insured." Without a fuller knowledge of the Maryland law, the foregoing can only be presented as a suggestion; growing and selling flowers and plants may be considered a hazardous occupation in Maryland. —Ed.]

News from Abroad

Bruges, Belgium.—The Germans took possession of the big bay tree sheds, first for dormitories, then as hospitals.

Boskoop, Holland.—Alarmed at present conditions in the trade, a number of American houses have canceled or cut their orders for boxwoods both for fall and spring shipment. One of the results has been an increase in the quantities consigned to auctions.

London, England.—Theo. Hessels, one of the leading florists of Antwerp, says: "My wife and I just escaped with our lives. As we were getting on board boat for Flushing, shells were bursting over the boat. From one moment to another we did not know if our last hour had come. I had a fine business, but now, so far as I know, I am penniless."

London, England.—Horticultural traders who have drawn the attention of the Foreign Office to circulars from Denmark offering German valley pips have received an acknowledgment which concludes: "I am directed by Secretary Sir Ed. Grey to inform you that action is in contemplation by His Majesty's Government to prevent enemies' goods from reaching this country through neutral ports."

Ghent, Belgium.—Numerous letters have been received here by exporting houses, shipping both to England and America, complaining because orders for azaleas were not filled with the usual exactness. The fact was that shipments were dispatched with such haste, and conditions were such at the time, that exporters could not run around among the small growers or wait to pick up varieties and sizes as specified, but felt fortunate to be able to dispatch the order filled with the stock on hand at the moment.

Erfurt, Germany.—Every effort is being put forth to dispatch the seed orders for America via Copenhagen. English and French orders can not be sent.

Pinneberg, Germany.—Julius Hansen has a nursery in Denmark and offers to ship his various specialties, including valley pips, from there. The English are not likely to accept, but America is concerned only with the safe arrival of the stock wanted.

Rotterdam, Holland.—While war risk insurance rates are falling for most of the world, from Rotterdam, whence come a large part of the horticultural commodities for America, the rate is held up by presence of mines in the English channel.

Erfurt, Germany.—F. C. Heinemann & Co. have issued their annual novelty list in somewhat abbreviated form. It is expected shipments to America will go out promptly via Rotterdam and that the American orders will constitute the bulk of the foreign business this year.

Lisse, Holland.—Bulb growing is the main industry of central Holland and the trade is hard hit. There is no scarcity of unskilled labor, many thousands being out of employment, but a number of the experienced hands are with the army. Bulb planting is progressing, but it is too early to tell what the acreage will be; there is stock on hand to plant a large increase in spite of the apparent necessity for cutting down. A few shipments still are going out. The salesmen are leaving earlier than usual, many having started for America at the outbreak of the war, but their efforts to book orders for 1915 are not yet producing any result apparent here. It is feared the situation as regards gladioli will be similar to that with tulips and hyacinths.

Geraniums

CARRYING OVER IN HOTBED.

Do you think that I can carry over some geraniums in a hotbed that is well sheltered? I am in Massachusetts, not far from Boston. J. T. B.

You can successfully carry over the geraniums if you have a sunken frame, well protected at the sides and ends and absolutely frost-proof. I am acquainted with one prominent grower not thirty miles distant from you who carries over all his geraniums in this way. Your frame should face south and be in a protected location. Keep a good bed of coal ashes below the plants, and be sure your sashes are well glazed and will not leak. An important thing is to keep the plants considerably on the dry side through the cold winter months, to air them on every possible occasion, and to pick off decaying foliage, etc., frequently. The greatest danger comes when we get heavy snowfalls and severe cold. Do not leave the snow on the sashes longer than two or three days at a time, or the plants will mold badly. Yes, it is possible to winter geraniums in a frame even as far north as you are, but they need much more care than when in a greenhouse. C. W.

IVY-LEAVED GERANIUM SPORT.

I have had a good deal of stock of vining or ivy-leaved geraniums on hand the last few years, light pink in color, with red lines in the center of the florets. This spring from a good, sturdy plant I noticed an unusually thrifty and altogether better stalk shoot up. When it bloomed it was of a wine-red color, with fiery red lines in the florets. It is so different from the parent that I wish to know if it is a new variety. Is there a red ivy-leaved geranium on the market? Is this a sport? Will it be valuable to keep? I have seen none of this sort listed. Its characteristics are as follows: It will propagate more easily and quickly than the old, pink variety; color, wine-red, or American Beauty shade; leaf, triangular in shape, texture glossy and thick; stem, long and more sturdy than parent's; habit, upright; florets, large, flowering more marked; some florets have measured two inches across, about six to a group; slight odor. This plant was among a batch of S. A. Nutt geraniums, winter 1913-14. Kindly let me know what you think about it.

E. L. L.

There are several scarlet ivy-leaved geraniums on the market, but your sport may be different from any of these and should be worth propagating. From your description of it, I should almost take it to be one of the hybrids of the zonale and ivy geraniums, which have foliage similar to the ivy but a more sturdy and erect habit. Would be glad sometime to see a leaf and truss of flowers if you can pack them in a tin or light, wooden box. Do not send in a thin, pasteboard receptacle, as too many do. C. W.

WHITE AND PINK GERANIUMS.

Do you know of any white and pink geraniums which are the equals of red S. A. Nutt as bloomers? S. E. C.

You will find La Favorite, pure white; Jean Viaud, rose pink; Miss Langtry and Beaute Poitevine, salmon pink, all good and continuous bloomers. C. W.

MOVING THE SURPLUS.

We are sending you under separate cover a clipping from our city papers showing how we work off our surplus roses during a glut. Last week this market was simply snowed under with stock and every inducement was made to lighten the load. Nearly every store in town had a special sale of some kind and yet the stock would pile up in spite of all efforts to dispose of it. In this campaign and sale for the Christmas ship we donated thousands of Killarneys and they were all choice long-stemmed stock and not junk, such as usually goes to the dump. This week the weather is much cooler, so that the outlook is better and the demand is about normal for all good stock.

L. F. Darnell.

[The clippings give an account of a street sale of flowers for charity, by a party of theatrical ladies, operating along the lines of the ubiquitous tag day. The J. M. Gasser Co. is given credit for donating the flowers.—Ed.]

VALLEY PIPS IN COLD STORAGE.

Will you please tell me how long it is necessary to keep home-grown valley pips in cold storage before they can be successfully forced, and what is the proper cold storage temperature?

J. T. C.

I have had no experience with home-grown lily of the valley pips. A month in cold storage should suffice, but of course they can be kept there for a much longer period. A temperature of 26 to 28 degrees above zero will be found a suitable one while they are in storage. A fluctuating temperature is bad for them. C. W.

Lebanon, Pa.—C. D. Mish has the contract for beautifying the surroundings of the city disposal plant. He is planting a 1,200-foot hedge around the place and putting in a number of trees and shrubs.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Eucharis Amazonica.

The beautiful pure white bulbous plant, Eucharis Amazonica, is not seen as frequently on commercial places as one could wish. Its culture is not at all difficult and it is accommodating in its cultural needs. In a bench over heating pipes it does splendidly and produces wonderful spikes. It loves bottom heat. Two, or occasionally three, crops of flowers a year may be had by careful culture and drying off properly.

The eucharis loves a lumpy compost of coarse sod, cow manure, charcoal and lumps of sandstone, no matter whether in pots or benches. A Christmas crop is especially valuable. To secure this, it is necessary now to give the plants a few weeks' rest by gradually withholding the water supply, not to the extent of causing the leaves to die off, but so that they will lie rather limp on the soil. About five weeks before Christmas, commence watering again. The leaves will soon plump up and, if bottom heat is at command, a crop of spikes will soon appear. Mealy bug is partial to the eucharis, but is easily kept in check by using a good water pressure on the leaves from a spray nozzle.

Resting Bulbous Plants.

Such greenhouse plants as gloxinias, tuberous-rooted begonias, fancy caladiums, gesneras and achimenes are now passing out of flower and should be gradually rested. The fancy caladiums need a warm, dry location for the winter; a temperature of 60 degrees at night is about right. Gloxinias will come through all right 10 degrees cooler, and both achimenes and begonias 10 degrees lower still. The two latter winter well in dry sand and can also be carried over successfully in cocoanut fiber refuse. The achimenes can be left in the pans or baskets and shaken out during the winter when time permits.

Antirrhinums.

The earliest planting of antirrhinums will soon be giving some nice spikes. Keep the plants cool and freely ventilated. A temperature of 50 degrees at night should not be exceeded and later in the season 45 to 48 degrees will be found better. When heading plants back, it is not good policy to pinch back shoots as they are running up to flower. Allow a few flowers to open first; then, when cut back, the plants will break far more strongly than would be the case from softer wood. As the early chrysanthemums are cut out, snapdragons will be found a useful crop as succession. They like a good soil and the old mum soil should have cow manure and fine bone added to it before the snapdragons are planted.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS.

Oklahoma, the youngest state, bids fair to become one of the foremost horticulturally, judging by the showing already made by the Oklahoma State Florists' Society, of which J. W. Furrow, of Guthrie, is president and S. S. Butterfield, of Oklahoma City, secretary. S. S. Butterfield spoke on "Flowering and Other Shrubs" at a recent meeting at the Lee-Huckins hotel, Oklahoma City, of the state civic improvement department, which was organized and is conducted by several leading ladies of the state. The Sunday Oklahoman, October 11, devoted almost an entire page, with illustrations, to Mr. Butterfield's talk. A flower show was held recently, at which Mrs. W. M. Smith was awarded first prize on roses for some fine specimens of American Beauty, La France and Maman Cochet. The climate is ideal for many varieties and the enthusiasm shown by the public will undoubtedly benefit the trade.

C. E. Papworth, of Fort Worth, promises some surprises to those who attend the convention of the Texas State Florists' Association, to be held here next July. The date has not been set, but may be arranged so as to enable members of the S. A. F. from the north and middle west traveling to San Francisco to include this in their itinerary. As there are 450 members of the state organization and the majority expect to attend, it means profitable intercourse both from a social and business viewpoint. The Chamber of Commerce has offered the free use of the auditorium for the meetings. Mr. Papworth gave a talk on "Closer Relations" at the meeting of the State Nurserymen's Association October 15.

C. W. Robinson, president of the Texas Seed & Floral Co., of Dallas, Tex., expresses the opinion that the plethora of cotton will boom the seed business in the south, as undoubtedly a variety of crops will henceforth be grown. The newest fodder plant, teosinte, claimed to be a winner over other kinds, is one of them.

The Brown-Dawson Co., of Dallas, has taken over the retail flower department of the Texas Seed & Floral Co. and is making extensive improvements.

The Hardie Seed Co., of Dallas, after being undisturbed for nearly half a century, aside from one move, is having the front of the store torn out to allow the widening of the street. The company will put in a first-class show window.

The Green Floral Co., of Dallas, reports shipping trade increasing steadily. The company is making excellent use of what was expected at one time to be the largest range of glass in the south. It may yet come.

A. Millar is finishing a range of glass at Britton, near Dallas. He expects to sell this and accept one of several northern offers. Dreer's Cardinal Climber was noted en route, measuring fully twenty feet and blooming freely October 13.

Thomas J. Wolfe, of Waco, Tex., says the visit of the convention certainly boosted his business. At the time of my visit he was busy with funeral work and a mourner at three funerals.

At the Wichita exposition I had oral evidence of a yield of five crops of alfalfa in one season, which should be of interest to many seedsmen. The cuts were made May 24, June 18, July 28, September 21 and September 29, with an average of thirty inches. This was grown by James Brown, of Dog Creek Ranch, Sumner, Kan., and is believed to be a record for ordinary culture.

CLEVELAND.

The Market.

Market conditions are unchanged except for the flood of early mums, which increases day by day. Think of it, October 26 and not yet one touch of frost in this vicinity! Dahlias, cosmos, gladioli, etc., are piled high on the wholesalers' counters, a fine sight for Mr. Early Mum as he enters the store. Business is on the upward trend, all the retailers say, but there is still plenty of room for improvement. Valley and giganteum lilies have been scarce; good stock is cleaned up early at top prices. Carnations are not as yet a glut. The stock of roses is good and equal to all demands; shorts are plentiful.

Various Notes.

The industrial committee of the Florists' Club carried out its first club outing in a most successful manner October 21, when forty local florists met in the club rooms in the Hollenden hotel and in fourteen autos, belonging to various members, made a trip of inspection to the greenhouse establishments of the Naumann Co., the Cleveland Cut Flower Co. and the James Eadie Co. Stock at the three places was reported to be in first-class shape. Mums and carnations in the houses of the Cleveland Cut Flower Co. were in extra fine condition. The Naumann Co. has a fine lot of cyclamens and Cincinnati begonias. The Eadie Co. had a force busy potting up the last of the newly imported azaleas, which are to be a specialty of this place in a wholesale way. The trip was voted a success by all and the committee is arranging another one, to take place in the near future.

H. P. Knoble, Herbert Bate, Fred Brown, Geo. W. Smith, Frank Friedley and possibly a few more of the faithful are going to Indianapolis next week to attend the exhibition of the Chrysanthemum Society of America; also, to invite the society to come to Cleveland in 1915.

KANSAS CITY.

The Market.

Business is irregular, dull one day and busy the next, fine for several days and then slack, which makes it hard to know how much stock to handle for the day. Last week was horse show week, but it had little effect on the market one way or the other, except for the making of a few corsage bouquets. The retail stores expected to sell a great deal more stock for the show, especially of cut mums.

The supply of roses has fallen off, and the demand as well. Red roses and Beauties are the leaders, and there is hardly enough to supply the wants. The average price is lower now than a year ago. Most of the stock arriving is of medium quality. Carnations are in heavier supply, although the price remains as usual, about the same as last year. In quality they are a little better than at this time a year ago. Dahlias have become too plentiful and the public last week bought less than two weeks ago, yet those arriving last week were of better shape and size. Chrysanthemums are becoming plentiful; high prices cannot be obtained for these, as everyone seems to have a great many. The supply is larger than this market has ever known so early in the season. There is a fine lot of Robinson, Chrysolora and Pacific on the market, that are hard to beat. It seems as if all the mums are coming in at once. A good many places are cutting mums that last year were not able to cut them much before the mum show began. Pompons and singles are selling fast and are much better than those of last year, especially the singles. A few pot plants of mums are now on the market, and the demand for them is greater this year than ever before, especially in the 5-inch and 6-inch pots. The reports of the retailers differ considerably in regard to trade, which shows irregular business for this month in all lines.

Various Notes.

Business across the state line is quite uneven, although at the end of the week the report showed an increase over the week previous.

T. J. Noll & Co. have doubled their floor space, which relieves their cramped condition. They have added a new icebox, office fixtures, counters and shelves.

Greenhouses and Grounds of Bethlehem Steel Co., where Wm. J. Mangan is in Charge.

Mr. Noll has just received his supplies for Christmas, and he has a fine lot of them, including baskets, ruscus, ribbons and everything in the supply line.

Samuel Murray made up a number of corsage bouquets horse show week, but the demand was not up to his expectations.

A visit to the greenhouses of A. D. Mohr will well repay one, as he has a fine lot of stock, including poinsettias and Lorraine and Cincinnati begonias. His other plants also are in excellent shape.

Arthur Newell was busy all the week with plenty of funeral work; he sent a great deal of work out of town. He reports business good, considering conditions.

The greenhouses of the W. L. Rock Flower Co. are in fine shape. The company has the best mums that have been seen in the city; the roses and carnations also are in good shape.

The Alpha Floral Co. reports a run on corsage bouquets last week, but the demand was not up to expectations by any means, especially in cut mums.

Henry Kusik & Co. report business increasing, with a steady demand for stock.

W. J. Barnes was busy all last week with decorations. He has his greenhouses in excellent shape; all are filled up with pot plants. W. J. B.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

With carnations, roses and chrysanthemums coming in more plentifully and the social whirl not yet begun, there is a considerably larger supply of cut blooms in the market than there is demand for. In consequence, prices are barely up to normal. Funeral work continues brisk, but aside from this there is comparatively little movement.

Various Notes.

Samuel Kinder has just completed a fine new office building on Hope street, Bristol, that is entirely of concrete construction. He is making numerous improvements.

The Hampden Meadow Greenhouses, at Barrington, have several fine houses of chrysanthemums that are just coming on. They expect to cut several thousand blooms before Thanksgiving.

Neil Ward, of Lonsdale, has returned from a vacation trip to New York city and up the Hudson river.

William B. Hazard has been nominated by the Republicans as a member of the city council from the Tenth ward.

Everett & Frost, foresters, 441 Grosvenor building, Weybosset street, have dissolved partnership and will go out of business; H. L. Frost, of Arlington, Mass., is liquidating agent.

The annual chrysanthemum exhibition of the Rhode Island Horticultural Society will be held in the parlors of the Mathewson Street church, November 3 and 4.

Matthew Macnair has returned from Europe, where he has been since early last summer. W. H. M.

STEEL COMPANY'S GREENHOUSE.

The Bethlehem Steel Co. has erected a U-bar greenhouse, 40x250 feet, on the company's grounds at South Bethlehem, Pa. The idea is to beautify the grounds and the building. Fully an acre of lawn and garden has been laid out around the greenhouse, where ash heaps formerly dwelt. This is only the beginning. William J. Mangan, who is in charge, will grow palms, ferns, bedding plants and cut flowers, mainly his beloved carnation. Window boxes are to be filled, and in winter vases of flowers are to brighten the offices. The aim is to make attractive both outside and inside of the place where so many people spend their working hours. Phil.

LOUISVILLE, KY.

The Market.

The week ending October 24 was extremely warm, the sun shining brightly all the week. The warm weather brought out plenty of stock. Mums were a glut on the market, everybody having plenty of them, and the growers received only bottom prices. Chrysolora easily worth $1.50 on a good market sold as low as 50 cents per dozen. The blooms offered were not seconds, but fine, large flowers with long stems.

Various Notes.

Jacob Schulz's flower show was a huge success. This display was something out of the ordinary. The interior of the store was arranged as if for a wedding. In the rear was an exquisite wedding bower of southern smilax and palms. All of the flowers were arranged on tables, in baskets and bouquets, showing the different arrangements of wedding bouquets and flower baskets. Mr. Schulz had the event advertised in the local papers and each visitor was given a rose as he left the store.

Wm. Walker announces that the marriage of his daughter, Edith, to Louis Kirch, a local grower, will take place about December 1.

Beutel & Frederick are showing something new in the way of a miniature garden. The garden is about two feet square and made of zinc in the center. There is some water to represent a lake. Small flowers and grass are used as a border for the lake. The roots of carrots, parsley and various other vegetables are used, and when these begin to sprout, a pleasing effect is given to the whole, which has the appearance of a Japanese garden. It is got up to retail at $2. R. J. S.

BALTIMORE.

The Market.

Up to the present we have escaped the annual visit of Jack Frost; consequently outside stock is still on the market, and while not of the same quality as indoor stock, it considerably lowers the prices, especially of the better grades. Dahlias are on the wane, and if we do not have frost they will be completely bloomed out by another week. Quantities of outside mums have made their appearance and are of fairly good quality, but are meeting with a poor sale. Business has not been brisk, and as the supply of stock was large and had to be moved, the street boys were in their glory. Thousands of roses, carnations, mums and dahlias were sold to them at low figures. There is an oversupply of yellow mums, principally Chrysolora. White ones are not so plentiful, but are sufficient for all demands. The demand for good pink mums was the only redeeming feature of the week. As there was not a large supply of these, they were soon a scarce article. The stores, seemingly, are afraid to carry a large supply, as the wholesale houses report mostly small orders and not many of them. By the end of the week a better demand is in sight, and this, coupled with a diminishing supply of outdoor stock, will greatly improve business.

Club Meeting.

A real get-together meeting was held October 26, with President Johnston in the chair and an unusually large at-

Thomas J. Wolfe, of Waco, Tex., says the visit of the convention certainly boosted his business. At the time of my visit he was busy with funeral work and a mourner at three funerals.

At the Wichita exposition I had oral evidence of a yield of five crops of alfalfa in one season, which should be of interest to many seedsmen. The cuts were made May 24, June 18, July 28, September 21 and September 29, with an average of thirty inches. This was grown by James Brown, of Dog Creek Ranch, Sumner, Kan., and is believed to be a record for ordinary culture.

CLEVELAND.

The Market.

Market conditions are unchanged except for the flood of early mums, which increases day by day. Think of it, October 26 and not yet one touch of frost in this vicinity! Dahlias, cosmos, gladioli, etc., are piled high on the wholesalers' counters, a fine sight for Mr. Early Mum as he enters the store. Business is on the upward trend, all the retailers say, but there is still plenty of room for improvement. Valley and giganteum lilies have been scarce; good stock is cleaned up early at top prices. Carnations are not as yet a glut. The stock of roses is good and equal to all demands; shorts are plentiful.

Various Notes.

The industrial committee of the Florists' Club carried out its first club outing in a most successful manner October 21, when forty local florists met in the club rooms in the Hollenden hotel and in fourteen autos, belonging to various members, made a trip of inspection to the greenhouse establishments of the Naumann Co., the C[leve]land Cut Flower Co. and the J[ames] Eadie Co. Stock at the three p[laces] was reported to be in first-class sh[ape]. Mums and carnations in the house[s] the Cleveland Cut Flower Co. wer[e] extra fine condition. The Naumann [Co.] has a fine lot of cyclamens and [Cin]cinnati begonias. The Eadie Co. h[as a] force busy potting up the last of [the] newly imported azaleas, which ar[e to] be a specialty of this place in a wh[olesale] way. The trip was voted a suc[cess] by all and the committee is arrang[ing] another one, to take place in the [near] future.

H. P. Knoble, Herbert Bate, J[ames] Brown, Geo. W. Smith, Frank Frie[ndley] and possibly a few more of the faith[ful] are going to Indianapolis next week [to] attend the exhibition of the Chrys[anthe]mum Society of America; also, to invite the society to come to Cleve[land] in 1915.

KANSAS CITY.

The Market.

Business is irregular, dull one day a[nd] busy the next, fine for several days a[nd] then slack, which makes it hard [to] know how much stock to handle [for] the day. Last week was horse sho[w] week, but it had little effect on t[he] market one way or the other, except for the making of a few corsage bo[u]quets. The retail stores expected [to] sell a great deal more stock for th[e] show, especially of cut mums.

The supply of roses has fallen off and the demand as well. Red roses and Beauties are the leaders, and there is hardly enough to supply the wants. The average price is lower now than a year ago. Most of the stock arriving is of medium quality. Carnations are in heavier supply, although the price remains as usual, about the same as last year. In quality they are a little better than at this time a year ago. Dahlias have become too plentiful and the public last week bought less than two weeks ago, yet those arriving last week were of better shape and size. Chrysanthemums are becoming plentiful; high prices cannot be obtained for these, as everyone seems to have a great many. The supply is larger than this market has ever known so early in the season. There is a fine lot of Robinson, Chrysolora and Pacific on the market, that are hard to beat. It seems as if all the mums are coming in at once. A good many places are cutting mums that last year were not able to cut them much before the mum show began. Pompons and singles are selling fast and are much better than those of last year, especially the singles. A few pot plants of mums are now on the market, and the demand for them is greater this year than ever before, especially in the 5-inch and 6-inch pots. The reports of the retailers differ considerably in regard to trade, which shows irregular business for this month in all lines.

Various Notes.

Business across the state line is quite uneven, although at the end of the week the report showed an increase over the week previous.

STEEL COMPANY'S GREENHOUSE.

The Bethlehem Steel Co. has erected a U-bar greenhouse, 40x250 feet, on the company's grounds at South Bethlehem, Pa. The idea is to beautify the grounds and the building. Fully an acre of lawn and garden has been laid out around the greenhouse, where ash heaps formerly dwelt. This is only the beginning. William J. Mangan, who is in charge, will grow palms, ferns, bedding plants and cut flowers, mainly his beloved carnation. Window boxes are to be filled, and in winter vases of flowers are to brighten the offices. The aim is to make attractive both outside and inside of the place where so many people spend their working hours. Phil.

LOUISVILLE, KY.

The Market.

The week ending October 24 was extremely warm, the sun shining brightly all the week. The warm weather brought out plenty of stock. Mums were a glut on the market, everybody having plenty of them, and the growers received only bottom prices. Chrysolora easily worth $1.50 on a good market sold as low as 50 cents per dozen. The blooms offered were not seconds, but fine, large flowers with long stems.

Various Notes.

Jacob Schulz's flower show was a huge success. This display was something out of the ordinary. The interior of the store was arranged as if for a wedding. In the rear was an exquisite wedding bower of southern smilax and palms. All of the flowers were arranged on tables, in baskets and bouquets, showing the different arrangements of wedding bouquets and flower baskets. Mr. Schulz had the event advertised in the local papers and each visitor was given a rose as he left the store.

Wm. Walker announces that the marriage of his daughter, Edith, to Louis Kirch, a local grower, will take place about December 1.

Beutel & Frederick are showing something new in the way of a miniature garden. The garden is about two feet square and made of zinc in the center. There is some water to represent a lake. Small flowers and grass are used as a border for the lake. The roots of carrots, parsley and various other vegetables are used, and when these begin to sprout, a pleasing effect is given to the whole, which has the appearance of a Japanese garden. It is got up to retail at $2. R. J. S.

BALTIMORE.

The Market.

Up to the present we have escaped the annual visit of Jack Frost; consequently outside stock is still on the market, and while not of the same quality as indoor stock, it considerably lowers the prices, especially of the better grades. Dahlias are on the wane, and if we do not have frost they will be completely bloomed out by another week. Quantities of outside mums have made their appearance and are of fairly good quality, but are meeting with a poor sale. Business has not been brisk, and as the supply of stock was large and had to be moved, the street boys were in their glory. Thousands of roses, carnations, mums and dahlias were sold to them at low figures. There is an oversupply of yellow mums, principally Chrysolora. White ones are not so plentiful, but are sufficient for all demands. The demand for good pink mums was the only redeeming feature of the week. As there was not a large supply of these, they were soon a scarce article. The stores, seemingly, are afraid to carry a large supply, as the wholesale houses report mostly small orders and not many of them. By the end of the week a better demand is in sight, and this, coupled with a diminishing supply of outdoor stock, will greatly improve business.

Club Meeting.

A real get together meeting was held October 26, with President Johnston in the chair and an unusually large at tendance. A letter was read from the secretary of the S. A. F. in regard to affiliation according to the rule passed at the last convention. Action was deferred until next meeting.

Gustave Lotze had on exhibition a vase of Mrs. David Syme, Beatrice May and Chieftain mums which were much admired. R. Vincent, Jr., & Sons Co. had large vases of dahlias, Geisha, Souvenir de Gustave Doazon and Golden Gate. A variegated sport of Doazon also was shown. In addition to these exhibits, the clubroom was decorated with palms and other plants and presented a most pleasing appearance.

After the routine business was disposed of, R. Brooks Maxwell, city forester, gave an interesting talk on tree planting, pruning, the enemies of trees and the best methods to use to combat them. After the lecture refreshments were served, cigars lighted and business resumed. Quite a number of questions of interest were brought up and discussed, chief among which was the workmen's compensation act which becomes effective November 1. A number of members claimed florists are exempt, but opinions varied.

Mrs. Chas. H. Cook, of Catonsville, has been confined to her home with an attack of nervous trouble, but is recovering and expects to be about again shortly.

Forthuber Bros. have applied, through their attorney, for the benefit of the bankruptcy law. A receiver was recently applied for by their creditors, but their assets were so small that it was deemed inadvisable to appoint any; consequently, the bankruptcy proceedings were the only course left open. It is stated the liabilities of the firm are in the neighborhood of $1,200.

Gus Lotze, of Glenburnie, is cutting some good Beatrice May and Mrs. David Syme mums.

J. M. Rider is sending some fine Gorgeous carnations to the Leo Niessen Co.

Wm. C. McKissick, manager of the local branch of the Leo Niessen Co., recently discovered a pool in the vicinity of the city in which were some fine bass. He decided to try to lure some of them to bite a temptingly baited hook, and to this end devoted the better part of a day. He reported a catch of thirty-six, but says that in order to conform to the game laws of the state it was necessary to throw thirty-five of them back again. But think of the fun he had!

The exhibition committee of the Maryland Horticultural Society recently sent out a circular letter to growers, inviting them to exhibit at the annual fall show of the society, and through Chairman Wm. Feast they report a good response on the part of the growers, indicating that a lively interest is being shown in this affair, which promises to exceed in size and beauty anything ever before held by the society. This is one of the best opportunities for growers to advertise their products and should receive the support of all those interested in the advancement of the trade. W. F. E.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

Indian summer weather continues. The market is waiting patiently for the first good frost of the season. The dahlia growers, however, are quite satisfied, and the best stock that has reached this city has been shipped here during the last two weeks. Some fine flowers have been sent from White Marsh, Md.

The whole week has been far below normal, as the quotations indicate. Prices have not been much lower even during the hottest days of summer. The chrysanthemum's reign has begun. Already there seems but little room for any other flower.

In roses, from American Beauties down all the way through twenty-five of the new and old varieties, the reduction in values was marked, and even with the vanloads that went to the department stores, and the shipments out of the city, many thousands were thrown away. I saw one western merchant who was visiting the wholesale market sending home a good many boxes of roses, for which he paid only $10 per thousand. I often wonder why the trade in cities at a distance does not, during these bargain days, arrange for continuous shipments from New York of roses and other flowers which sell at so much less than the printed quotations from these places.

Carnations dropped last week from $3 per hundred to $1 and at times even to 50 cents. No one can find any fault with the quality. Cattleyas, the best of them, could be had at $20 per hundred, and thousands were sold at $15 and even $10. Lilies are back again to "cut rates," selling at times as low as $2 per hundred. I presume one may blame the host of white mums for this unexpected setback. Valley is steady, sweet peas are back, but violets never should have shown their heads until November.

The street is full of oak leaves, and there are great quantities of Florida asparagus.

Various Notes.

Now begin the mum shows in earnest in this city and vicinity. Friday, October 30, the great exhibition of the Horticultural Society of New York begins, continuing until November 3. The show of the American Institute follows this, at the Engineers' building. The Mt. Kisco exhibition is to be held from October 30 to November 1; that of the Elberon Horticultural Society, at Asbury Park, N. J., November 3 to 5; of the Westchester and Fairfield Horticultural Society, at New Rochelle, November 4 to 6; of the Tarrytown Horticultural Society, November 4 to 6, and of the Dobbs Ferry Horticultural Society, November 6 to 7.

Among the visitors last week were W. P. Craig and Paul Berkowitz, of Philadelphia, and B. Hammond Tracy, of Wenham, Mass.

Mrs. Paul Meconi, who has been visiting relatives for several months in Germany, is expected back this week.

Russin & Hanfling have been receiving many cases of their importations during the last week. It looks now as if all the supply men will have their orders filled in time for the fall trade. Business in this department of the florists' industry is generally satisfactory.

J. K. Allen says Supreme is the supreme mum of his shipments.

Guttman & Raynor announce that they will be in their new store by the middle of November.

The S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co. now occupies the second floor of its building with the basket, ribbon and supply department.

A judgment for $492 was entered in favor of Thomas F. Galvin against the Duke of Manchester in the Municipal court October 20. The suit was brought on account of $725, of which the duke had paid $250.

Metropolitan papers October 23 gave an account of the death the day before of the wife of Edwin Van Aken, stated to be a well-to-do nurseryman of Port Ewen. Her husband returned home about an hour after her death and found her with her skull crushed by some blunt instrument and marks on her throat indicating that she had been choked. About $200 in jewels and money was missing. No clue to the murderer was found.

Letters to advance the work of securing contributions to the Prince of Wales' national relief fund are being sent out to a large number of British-Americans by Arthur T. Boddington.

The firm of Armstrong & Mackay has leased the south store at 671 Eighth avenue and will open a flower shop there.

CINCINNATI.

The Market.

The receipts of flowers still are heavy in spite of cooler weather. Business last week was somewhat lighter than that of the preceding week. Prices in most lines are rather low.

Chrysanthemum receipts are heavy. The bulk of the offerings comprise small and medium grades. Fancy grades are not plentiful and do not seem to have any particular call. All colors are available. Practically all roses are in large supply. The average quality is high. The carnation crops are increasing steadily and find a fair market. Easter lilies are sufficient for present requirements. While dahlias and cosmos still are to be had, their quantity is rather limited and for practical purposes they are out of the market for the season. Lily of the valley meets with a fair call. Cattleyas may be had. Green goods are abundant.

Various Notes.

A good sized delegation is expected to go from this city to Indianapolis for the mum show November 6 and 7.

C. E. Critchell has received his first shipments of new boxwood and was the first in town to offer it this season.

E. G. Gillett's wire department has been unusually busy for several weeks.

Wm. Schumann, of Newport, Ky., has been sending excellent pompons to the Cincinnati Cut Flower Exchange.

Geo. Klotter, of Price Hill, has been sending some fine Halliday mums to L. H. Kyrk.

Visitors include Henry A. Mollers, representing American Foil Co.; E. E. Schaefer, of the Advance Floral Co., Dayton; Jos. Hill, Richmond, Ind.; W. E. Leganger, representing A. L. Randall Co., Chicago; J. R. Johnston, Middletown, O.; Jos. P. Keller, Lexington, Ky.; H. Ehrhardt, Sidney, O.; Frank S. Miller, Columbus; Chas. P. Brunner, Springfield, O.; Mr. and Mrs. Wm. T. LANCASTER, PA.

Club Meeting.

October 15, the Lancaster County Florists' Club held its monthly meeting with a fair attendance of members. Elmer J. Weaver, of Ronks, Pa., read a paper on "Modern Greenhouse Construction," which was one of the best ever presented before our club. D. T. Connor, of Lord & Burnham Co., was present and gave some valuable information as to building. G. W. Marshall, representing the McCallum Co., Pittsburgh, was another visitor.

A general discussion on the coming flower show was held. We have a fine hall in which to hold the exhibition, and all indications point to a successful affair. We have plenty of room for exhibits and any out-of-town florist who would like to exhibit any novelty he may have should write at once to Albert M. Herr, Lancaster, Pa. The show will be held November 6 and 7, in the Hiemenz auditorium.

Prior to the meeting fifteen of the members of the club visited Willis B. Girvin, of Leola, Pa., who recently erected a King house, 50x180, and planted it to White Perfection carnations, which look most promising. A house of Matchless was a fine sight. Bonnaffon and Jeanne Nonin mums looked well. A bench of 30,000 Asparagus plumosus were in fine order.

Various Notes.

H. D. Rohrer showed a vase of Heston White, an English variety, which seems to have all the requirements of a good commercial mum. He also has some fine white, globular blooms of the Mary E. Meyers variety. A house of Chrysolora at the same establishment are fine.

A recent call at M. J. Brinton's, at Christiana, Pa., found his large carnation houses filled with stock of fine quality, promising a heavy cut through the winter months. Houses of Formosa lilies and of Lilium magnificum give blooms for a daily cut the year around at this place. Nephrolepis Scholzeli in 6-inch and 8-inch pans were superb.

At Ira H. Landis', Paradise, Pa., Matchless, Philadelphia, Eureka and Mrs. Ward carnations are grown, all in fine condition. Benches of freesias and yellow marguerites looked fine.

Lord & Burnham Co. offers a prize to the value of $25 at the flower show, which will be awarded to the local grower making the best display. This is the only prize that will be awarded in the florists' classes outside of a blue ribbon for especially meritorious displays, but there will be a number of prizes for the amateurs. H. K. R.

NASHVILLE, TENN.

The Market.

Everyone in the trade is hoping for frost, as that is what is needed to give tone to the market. Still, things have moved as well as one could expect under existing conditions; not quite up to last year at this time, but almost so.

There is an abundance of good stock of almost every kind, roses and carnations being especially plentiful. Mums are coming freely in all colors and the size is good for the varieties. The pot plants are coming in. Bulbs are not selling so well as they were a few days ago. A good frost will doubtless restore things. The demand has been heavier for tulips than we have ever seen it before. Tulips never have been popular here for bedding. Darwins do even better here than elsewhere and as they are becoming known the demand increases.

Various Notes.

The Joy Floral Co. has had a tasteful window of Christmas peppers. We had not supposed that these plants would sell at this season, but they do.

J. F. Corbett has pretty well cleaned up on everything salable, having had to cut his mums as soon as possible. At his place we saw some excellent seedling gloxinias in full bloom in 2½-inch pots, some of the plants carrying three and four flowers at a time.

After redecorating, the Geny store looks spick-and-span. The many improvements should add greatly to their trade.

Hillcrest School Farm has bought an auto for deliveries. It is said it about doubles the work that can be done.

McIntyre Bros. are using chrysanthemums freely in their windows this week.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

Almost everyone is beginning to realize that the only thing that would help along business would be a few good, hard frosts. Summer weather continues, and is remarkable for this time of year. Large quantities of outdoor stock are pouring into the market, which consequently is glutted. Poor, wretched, uneven business is what we are facing. All kinds of inducements, such as sales of roses, carnations and violets at ridiculous prices, are offered, but even these are not helping much. Money is a scarce article these days, and, judging from what the various florists say, about every day there have been more credit sales than cash customers during October.

Beautiful stock is arriving daily and is offered at low figures as inducements. There is a glut of carnations, especially in the colored varieties, and these can be purchased on the street at 10 cents per dozen. The outdoor stock is arriving in large shipments, but does not move fast. Dahlias, mignonette and cornflowers probably sell as well as anything along that line. Thousands of roses are arriving in good condition. The Richmonds and Aaron Wards are of fine quality, as also are the Shawyers. Violets are not moving rapidly. Easter lilies are arriving in good consignments. Callas are somewhat scarce. Valley is good and meets with the usual demand. Chrysanthemums are increasing in quantity each day. Golden Glow seems to be slackening up some, but Touset, October Frost and Smith's Advance move slowly. They are all of good quality. Pink Garzas are welcomed greatly and are effective and pretty for decorative purposes. A fair quantity of tuberoses is on the market. Large numbers of cattleyas and oncidiums are selling at low figures. Small offerings of potted plants are seen; these consist mainly of chrysanthemums, cyclamens, begonias and primulas. All kinds of greens are plentiful.

Various Notes.

N. A. James, of Driving Park avenue, is away on a two weeks' trip, visiting relatives in southwest Kansas. His greenhouses during his absence are being well cared for. He is growing and also cutting good quantities of smilax.

Milton Selinka, of Schloss Bros., New York, was in town last week, offering chiffons and ribbons and other holiday novelties. He says he is doing fairly good business.

Hugo Teute is growing some good cyclamens and disposes of them freely. He is also cutting good quantities of Pink Garzas, which find ready sales.

At Crosman Bros.' seed store the bulb sales are good. They are also handling a lot of bulb glasses this year.

Recent visitors include Julius Berg, of Lion & Co., New York, and Morris Cohen, of Wertheimer Bros., New York.

The improvements are still progressing at H. E. Wilson's, 88 East Main street. The chrysanthemum houses at Hudson avenue and Avenue B are in fine shape. The good, sturdy plants are well budded and will blossom soon. At present they are cutting some fine Tousets.

The Lady Florists' Association will meet for a business meeting on the second Tuesday in November.

FORT WAYNE, IND.

The Market.

Trade is showing a slight improvement. In view of the present low temperature, a killing frost is expected soon. This will clear the market of all outdoor stock, which has been extremely abundant this fall, and greenhouse stock will be in greater demand. Stock has improved in quality since the lower temperatures have prevailed and prices have been better in proportion to the quality of the flowers. The chrysanthemum now reigns supreme and brings good returns for the labor expended. Pompons have made their appearance. Of the larger varieties, some extra fine Halliday and Chrysolora were noted last week. The single varieties are arriving and are welcomed because of the lovely effects gained by their use for decorative purposes. Some exquisite dahlias are in the market.

Roses continue to improve in quality, but do not meet with so great a demand as the chrysanthemums. Russell, Ward and Sunburst roses clean up better than other varieties. Killarney Brilliant is fine for so early in the season. Carnations have stiffer stems and show improvement generally, although the dark weather of last week did not favor prolific blooming. Greens are plentiful.

Weddings have been numerous during the last two weeks of October and funeral work has been plentiful. With the bulbs and imported stock arriving in fairly good quantities, it is believed that the chances for a good holiday season are promising.

Various Notes.

Many Fort Wayne florists are planning to attend the annual exhibition of the Chrysanthemum Society of America, which is to be held at Indianapolis November 6 to 8, under the auspices of the State Florists' Association of Indiana. The officers of this latter association report that no effort is being spared to make the show a great success. Will J. Vesey, Jr., of this city, is one of the committee in charge of the arrangements for the exhibition.

Miss Helen Patten, of Toledo, O., was a visitor at the Flick residence last week. She was called to this city by the serious illness of her mother, Mrs. M. Patten, who is a patient at St. Joseph hospital, and who is improving slowly, although still in a serious condition.

A. J. Lanternier reports business as good, considering the continued moderate weather and the tied-up money problem. His chrysanthemums are fine and made a good showing in his store rooms, which were remodeled during the summer. A large plate glass window was installed instead of two smaller ones and the entrance was placed at one side, which makes an attractive store front.

The Bradley Flower Shop reports that business is extra good and consists mostly of weddings and funeral work.

The Flick Floral Co. has received large shipments of art-craft baskets and imported Japanese baskets.

The Orpheum Floral Co. is the name of a new firm that has opened a store in the Orpheum Theater building, at the corner of Calhoun and Montgomery streets. The location is an excellent one for transient trade, and the show windows are especially large and fine.

The New Haven Floral Co. is sending some splendid Halliday chrysanthemums to this market. R. R. F.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

The Market.

The market is still badly overstocked with flowers of all varieties, and there has been little increase in the demand. There have been a few good decorations, but aside from these there has been but little business. Carnations are now good, but, due to the large quantities of chrysanthemums and dahlias that are daily being offered, they are to be had at a low price. Cosmos is still to be had in huge bunches at whatever one wishes to pay for it, but the public has tired of this flower and it cannot be moved to advantage. Valley is to be had at as low a figure as $3, but the main call is on the $4 and $5 quality. Sunburst, Radiance and Hadley roses are among the best of the week's offerings, the two former ranging in price from $2 to $8 per hundred, while the latter brings from $6 to $12. Among the chrysanthemums, October Frost and October Yellow are practically off the market and Pacific is also on the wane. To take their place, there are some excellent Touset and Halliday and plenty of good bunch mums, the latter at $1.50 per dozen bunches. Easter lilies are being offered at $8 per hundred, but can be had at a much lower price in quantities. Cattleya orchids are good, but are affected in much the same manner as the other indoor flowers and move slowly at $5 per dozen. The snapdragon now in the market is not of good quality.

Various Notes.

Leapley & Meyer are showing some excellent ferns of their own production. They are also bringing in some good dahlias and chrysanthemums.

Among the week's visitors were Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Doyle, of Lockport, N. Y.; Milton Alexander, of Lion & Co., New York; Sidney H. Bayersdorfer, of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia; C. L. Robey, of Purcellville, Va.; Charles D. Ball, of Philadelphia, and Mrs. M. Rice, of Philadelphia.

The members of the stock company playing at Poli's theater held a reception at the store of O. A. C. Oehmler between 5 and 6 o'clock Wednesday, October 21. During this hour the ladies of the company sold flowers for the benefit of the Red Cross fund, while the men acted as bundle and errand boys. Mr. Oehmler furnished about 2,000 roses for this purpose.

Fred H. Kramer is given considerable credit in the report of Maurice Otterback, chairman of the Anacostia Citizens' Association, in charge of the town flower garden, for his aid in making this garden a success, as he donated several thousand plants for that purpose. This gift was augmented by a collection of plants from the propagating gardens, supplied through the efforts of Colonel W. W. Harts, superintendent of public buildings and grounds of the District of Columbia. T. A. Lucas, landscape gardener, has been deeply interested in the care of this garden since it was begun.

Gude Bros. Co. furnished the roses and carnations which were given to the guests at the banquet of the American Bar Association, which has been in convention here. This is the first year that ladies have been allowed to attend such an affair and, to mark this precedent, more than 2,000 fine American Beauty roses were procured for their adornment. Each male guest was supplied with a carnation boutonniere.

The Washington Florists' Co. has a neat looking "bargain" counter at the store at 1408 H street, northwest, at which specials are sold at reduced prices. At present the offerings are roses and carnations.

George C. Shaffer has just completed the redecorating of his store, at Fourteenth and I streets, northwest, and has had built a new cashier's office at the front. This is white enameled, to match the other fixtures of the store. The old cashier's desk is to be removed to make room for an extension of the icebox, work on which is to be commenced following the holidays. C. L. L.

Knoxville, Ia.—Bittenbender & Son are finishing a large greenhouse at their place in the west part of Knoxville.

Streator, Ill.—A fire of unknown origin threatened to destroy the greenhouse establishment of the Hill Floral Co. Thursday morning, October 22. The boiler house was wiped out and about half of three of the greenhouses was destroyed. The other four houses were unharmed. The fire had gained considerable headway before F. C. Thornton, the proprietor, was notified by some merrymakers returning late from a wedding, and much damage was done before his telephone call brought the fire department.

OBITUARY

Michael Barrett.

Michael Barrett, for many years well known in Boston's retail trade, died October 23 after some months of sickness from cancer. The deceased was at one time with the firm of Siebrecht & Wadley, New Rochelle, N. Y. After removing to Boston he was for some time with W. E. Doyle. He later went with T. F. Galvin, being in charge of the plant department there for about fifteen years. When MacMulkin opened his store on Boylston street Mr. Barrett went there as manager, a position he retained until serious illness incapacitated him. Mr. Barrett was popular in the Boston retail trade and had a wide acquaintance among the growers. He was admitted to be one of the best judges and buyers of plants Boston ever had.

Funeral services were held from the residence, 30 Hopedale street, Allston, October 26. There was a large gathering of sorrowing friends at the services in the church, many in the trade attending, and the floral tributes from his former confreres, organizations, relatives and other friends were numerous and beautiful.

Robert Turpie.

Robert Turpie, until recently gardener for C. A. Hass, of Milton, Mass., died at Quincy, October 20. He was a native of Forfarshire, Scotland, and came to America eight years ago. He had worked in Pomfret, Conn., Braintree, Mass., and other places and was of a genial and kindly disposition. His death at the age of 34 years brings sorrow to many friends. The deceased leaves a widow and three children, to whom much sympathy is extended. W. J. Collins, of Carter's Tested Seeds, Inc., is a brother-in-law. Funeral services, in charge of the Masonic fraternity, of which he was a member, were held at Quincy October 23. Among the floral tributes was one from the Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston, to which organization the deceased had belonged for several years.

Luke Mahan.

Luke Mahan, for nineteen years in charge of the Lee estate, Brookline, Mass., died October 2 at his residence, 809 Boylston street, Brooklyn, at the age of 73 years. The deceased was genial and popular with many of the craft in Massachusetts and was one of the good old school, growing rapidly less. He had for many years been a member of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston, a delegation from which attended the funeral services October 5, a handsome floral design also being sent.

Edgar McConnell.

Edgar McConnell, a brief notice of whose death appeared in this column last week, passed away at his sister's home, in Washington, N. J., October 12, at the age of 73. He was born in Oxford, N. J., and was a carpenter by trade until 1878, when he started in the market garden business. After two years he embarked in the flower business in Brookfield, O. In 1905 he sold his place there, going to Wilkes-Barre, Pa. He was head carnation grower for Ira G. Marvin there for two or three years. Then he resigned and started with Wm. McDonald, of Moosic, Pa., leaving there about two years ago, when he accepted a position as propagator for T. B. McClintock, at Scranton, where he remained until his death.

Mr. McConnell was a member of the Scranton Florists' Club, in which he was much interested. He is survived by one son, Charles, and one grandson, Harold McConnell, of Sharon, Pa., and one sister, Mrs. Joseph Fisher, of Washington, N. J. The funeral was held in Scranton, Friday, October 16, and burial was at Forest Hill cemetery.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

The annual Special Autumn Number of The Review will appear November 12.

The date is chosen because it is the week most advertisers choose to start their heavy Christmas campaign, and because it is the week for advertising Thanksgiving specialties, and the week of the autumn shows. With all these features The Review will be one of the most important of the year.

In spite of the great increase in the value of Review space this season, the rate is not changed.

Advertisements should be sent as early as possible. Nothing ever is lost by giving the printers a little time for their part of the work.

Vegetable Forcing

FORCING WHITE ONION SETS.

Kindly advise me in regard to forcing white onion sets. C. S. F.

You can plant white onion sets in any of your benches. They succeed well in the same temperature as lettuce, 45 to 50 degrees at night, but will endure a considerably lower temperature. The cooler they are grown the better will their flavor be. The warmer you keep them the stronger flavored they will be. They need rich soil, containing one-third manure. Use sets of uniform size and plant 3x4 inches apart. Potato or Multiplier onions do well inside and make a quick and profitable crop for benching. C. W.

CYANIDE AND LETTUCE.

I would like to use hydrocyanic acid gas to fumigate my lettuce. I have always used tobacco stems and find that they are not a success. Will you tell me how this gas is used and about the amount it will take for a house 50x140, and how often to fumigate? I am bothered every winter with aphis. A. L. P.

First ascertain the cubic contents of your house. You can get this by multiplying the length by the breadth and the result by the height to the eave plus half the height from eave to ridge. Thus: length by breadth is 7,000; if your average height is ten feet, your cubic contents is 70,000 feet.

Fumigation with gas should be done at night and there always is more danger of injury in a high than in a low temperature. Only earthenware jars should be used for this fumigant; wood and metal ones soon would be eaten away. Most of the growers arrange to open the ventilators from outdoors half an hour or so after fumigation is given. All ventilators must be tightly closed before fumigation starts, and any broken glass should be replaced. Doors should all be securely locked, except the one used by the operator as an exit; it also must be locked immediately after he has finished his work, and be sure that no one enters under any consideration, as this gas is a most deadly one, its inhalation causing almost instant death. Operators, therefore, cannot be too careful.

In your house, which is a wide one, two rows of jars would be advantageous, but two operators are needed to do the work. For your house, I would use eight jars in two rows, or one row down the center. Assuming that your house contains 75,000 cubic feet, you would need for each fumigation thirty-two ounces of potassium cyanide of ninety-eight per cent quality, and sixty-four ounces of sulphuric acid; also eighty-eight ounces of water. First pour eleven ounces of water into each jar, then eight ounces of sulphuric acid into each. Last, having carefully weighed the cyanide and wrapped it in small paper parcels, start at one end and drop the cyanide in the first jar, walking toward the other end and dropping the parcels of cyanide as each jar is passed. Do not on any account make any pause. Walk quickly toward the door when all are dropped, lock it and keep outside. If you have no facilities for opening the ventilators from the outside, an all-night exposure will do no harm, but be sure that no one enters the house. Open the doors early in the morning and leave them open some time before entering if the weather is not too cool.

Fumigation should be done in a dry atmosphere. In breaking up lumps of cyanide crystals lay them in a cloth bag. The writer knows of one case where a man lost the sight of an eye from a cyanide crystal striking the ball. Be sure also to keep this deadly poison securely locked up. Also, remember that the sulphuric acid is poison. Once in two weeks will keep lettuce clean.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

Incorporated by Act of Congress, March 4, 1901.

Officers for 1914: President, Theodore Wirth, Minneapolis; vice-president, Patrick Welch, Boston; secretary, John Young, 53 W. 28th St., New York City; treasurer, W. F. Kasting, Buffalo.

Officers for 1915: President, Patrick Welch, Boston; vice-president, Daniel MacRorie, San Francisco; secretary, John Young, 53 W. 28th St., New York City; treasurer, W. F. Kasting, Buffalo.

Thirty-first annual convention, San Francisco, Cal., August 17 to 20, 1915.

THE finest indoor sport in the world is selling flowers so satisfactorily to the people that they will come back for more.

THE trade heartily approves of "Buy a bale of cotton" and hopes somebody soon will start a "Buy a dozen mums" movement.

THE florist who retails from the greenhouse, or who has a patch of ground at the store, should not neglect to plant a lot of bulbs this autumn. They will make a fine show in the spring and be a big advertisement. Bulbs are not only moderate in price this autumn, but are of exceptionally good quality.

IF anyone has been hit harder than the florist this warm October, it has been the coal man. He has been making every effort to unload every possible car on his contract customers, to keep from sacrificing it on an uninterested open market. The result is about every grower has his bunkers as full as they will hold, and a larger lot of coal bills than usual coming due in November.

A. M. KIRCHER, of Garden City, is perturbed because The Review adapted a heading that appeared in the Garden Magazine. He demands the publication of this statement: "The decorative design on page 13 of the September 24 issue was reproduced from the Garden Magazine, August, 1914, issue, copyright by Doubleday, Page & Co." Gladly, Mr. Kircher, so don't get excited; rather feel complimented that your work was enough liked to be used as a pattern.

RESULTS.

We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

DON'T relax your efforts to sell—quite the opposite, put extra pressure on the selling end and make another gain in business this season.

ON the whole, it never was easier to get into a row than it is today. Business conditions have been upset so long that everybody's nerves are on edge.

NEWS notes from the middle west show that florists in the grain states are having good trade and preparing for a record winter business. The big crops are back of their prosperity.

PSYCHOLOGY is an important factor in the rise and fall in the demand for flowers. With all outdoors green, the desire for flowers is least apparent; it comes with the sear and yellow leaf. And then as the cold begins to strengthen the wish is for warmer colors—reds in roses and carnations. There is a wealth of material here for the inspired ad writer.

RECORD EXPORTS AT NEW YORK.

Record-breaking exports of merchandise from the port of New York were made last week. The increase over the corresponding week in 1913 is twenty-seven per cent and the total of $21,397,000 exceeds any previous single week's record by fourteen per cent.

With the exporters busy and the great grain crops pulling money into the middle west, the revival of general business activity should not be delayed for long. A little increase in general business will be sufficient to make the florists' business hum.

SYRACUSE TO HAVE SHOW.

After a lapse of sixteen years the florists and private gardeners of Syracuse, N. Y., will hold their show of mums and other flowers November 5 to 7. Great enthusiasm is being manifested, although the project has only just been taken up. There is every indication that the show will prove a great success, as only two firms are undecided about exhibiting.

Those having new mums, roses or carnations they would like to exhibit should correspond at once with the chairman, Henry Youell, 538 Cedar street.

PLANT IMPORTS STILL STRONG.

For the third successive week the plant receipts from abroad have maintained an average of practically 1,000 cases per week. The shippers at Rotterdam are doing a heavy business, as that is about the only continental port of importance that has kept up its connection with American ports. The boats from this shipping center of Holland are, as a result, more numerous, and the Rotterdam shippers seem to be sending along to this country whatever the producers and manufacturers of the neighboring territory are able to get to them for reconsignment. It seems unnecessary to affirm, therefore, that the supply of azaleas from Belgium will be as strong as usual this year, provided, of course, that the reports that they were unharmed by the martial disturbances in the neighborhood of the places of their production are true. On the several Rotterdam steamers that arrived during the last week at the port of New York were the following consignments:

THE WAR REVENUE TAXES.

Just before its adjournment last week Congress put through the emergency taxation bill said to have been made necessary by the European war. In some of its provisions it will hit every man, woman and child in America. Certain industries are particularly affected, but florists will be affected only by the general provisions—among these the ones relating to taxes on express receipts and on telegrams and telephone calls.

Each express receipt or bill of lading must bear a 1-cent stamp, to be affixed by the shipper. Effective December 1.

Telegraph and telephone companies must add to their charges, and pay over to the government, 1 cent on each message or conversation on which the rate is 15 cents or over. Effective December 1.

Promissory notes must carry a 2-cent stamp for each $100 or fraction thereof. Applies to renewals. Effective December 1.

Practically every legal or negotiable paper is similarly taxed.

Wholesale commission cut flower dealers are taxed $20 annually, effective November 1. Coöperative commission houses are exempt. But a far greater tax will result should it be ruled that commission house reports of sales are subject to the following paragraph of the law:

Contract: Broker's note, or memorandum of sale of any goods or merchandise, stocks, bonds, exchange, notes of hand, real estate, or property of any kind or description issued by brokers or persons acting as such, for each note or memorandum of sale, not otherwise provided for in this Act, 10 cents.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

At last, the frost! Six weeks later than last year, the outdoor stock has been practically finished off. The temperature fell to 29 degrees on the night of October 26. The change has been too recent to yet be apparent in the market, but a far more cheerful tone prevails.

Some improvement began to be manifest last week, although it was by no means general. City trade, except for a little special funeral work, was quiet, but from certain quarters shipping orders came that enabled a few houses to equal last year's record. Scarcely anyone has been able to say as much for any other week since the middle of September, when we had frost last year.

The principal feature of the supply is the increase in the receipts of chrysanthemums. The height of the season is not far away. Nearly all growers now are cutting and the receipts are ahead of the market's requirements. Prices continue below normal. Most of the stock is of the medium grade.

Yellow is far more abundant than white, or any other color. Indeed, this week there is some shortage of large white mums. There are enough big, fancy flowers in other colors, but more first size white could be sold. There is, however, opposition to any advance in price; buyers have made their own prices to such an extent that they surrender the privilege with reluctance. Pompons have come in heavily. Everything in this line now is abundant. They are selling well.

This is the week of the All Saints' day shipments south. A few houses report good orders, but the mums in the south are better than usual this year and many have a home supply.

The supply of American Beauties is shortening up and conditions seem to justify an advance in price. Rose receipts are not heavy and if the normal November demand develops within the next few days it will be found difficult to fill orders. Last week, however, there were more roses than the demand called for. The low price of mums undoubtedly has affected the rose market. Mrs. Ward is more abundant, and more in request, than heretofore this season. It is being largely used for corsage work.

All last week the receipts of carnations were ahead of the requirements, with the result that the accumulation could only be cleaned up at prices heretofore unknown in late October. Callas have come to reinforce the only moderate supplies of Easter lilies. Orchids in more than the usual variety are plentiful. It has been too warm for violets, but the cooler weather should improve their status. Valley is equal to all requirements and prices have receded to normal. Cosmos has been abundant. There have been more dahlias in the market in the last week than at any other time this season, and more asters than ever before have been seen at this date. Other outdoor flowers also have been plentiful, but they now also are out of the running.

The wholesalers have felt pretty blue because of the low prices that have prevailed in the six weeks of abnormally warm weather, but retailers feel much more cheerful; while their business in most cases has not come to last year's exceptionally good record, still they feel that probably the flower business has not suffered so much as has been the case with stores selling wearing apparel and other seasonable articles. There have been a good many people besides florists who were waiting anxiously for frost.

The Rural Aspect.

William Swinbank, of Sycamore, Ill., visited Kyle & Foerster October 26. He was in a contented frame of mind, for he needed just that one day's sales to make his total for 1914 to date equal the sales for the entire year of 1913. Whatever he does in the last sixty-six days of the year will be clear gain.

"Sales have been running along the last few weeks at about the same pace as usual," said Mr. Swinbank. "The lack of frost may have hurt a little, but in the smaller towns the business is far steadier than it is in the big cities; we don't have the rushes, but we skip times of depression. We can count on about so much business right along, with an increase each year because of the growing wealth of the town and the increasing appreciation of flowers. I am looking for this winter to show the usual gain, and for next spring's trade to be considerably the heaviest we ever have had."

Mr. Swinbank has this season overhauled his heating apparatus for the purpose of economizing fuel, so he is gaining in both directions.

Ernest Oechslin Hurt.

In a head-on collision October 23, between a street car and an automobile, Ernest Oechslin, of River Forest, was thrown through the windshield of his car and on through the front glass window of the street car. The accident happened at Fifty-second street and Cottage Grove avenue. Mr. Oechslin's car was being driven by Michael Damma. Mr. Oechslin was taken to the Washington Park hospital, where it is said he is improving steadily. His left collar bone is broken and there are other injuries. Mr. Damma received a number of cuts.

Various Notes.

The Review's new telephone call is Wabash 8195.

Joseph Imber now has charge of C. W. McKellar's office work and can lend a hand in the store as needed.

Peter Reinberg says that it was stated in error that rose cuts are less than last year. He says stock is in better condition than it ever has been.

August Poehlmann states that his company has ordered 525,000 English Manetti stocks for this season's rose grafting and adds that nearly if not quite half this quantity will be used for Mrs. Russell.

According to A. T. Pyfer, Aviator looks better at the Wilmette establishment of Pyfer & Olsem than Mr. Olsem ever had it at Joliet. He says the growers around Wilmette all are much interested in the showing it makes.

The Chicago committee of the American Chrysanthemum Society consists of N. J. Wietor, Guy French and George Asmus. Sessions are held every Saturday. October 24 Messrs. Wietor and French passed on a pompon from E. D. Smith & Co., Adrian, Mich., and on two exhibition varieties from C. H. Totty, Madison, N. J.

The finest dahlias of the season reached Erne & Klingel October 26, an unprecedentedly late date. They sold well.

E. E. Pieser visited the store of Kennicott Bros. Co., October 26, for the first time in ten days. He is feeling much better.

A. Iralson, formerly in business at 588 Forty-third street, has returned from Idaho and is looking for a store, preferably in his old neighborhood.

October 26 was the best business day so far this season, according to A. L. Vaughan.

E. Wienhoeber, who was designated to raise funds among florists for the German red cross, states that the collections amounted to $602. He had valuable assistance from H. N. Bruns.

Edwin W. Sedgwick, president of the Wilks Mfg. Co., well known in connection with greenhouse boilers, is a candidate for trustee of the sanitary district at next Tuesday's election. He is on the progressive ticket.

Arthur Blome, of Paul Blome & Co., says flowers are not a luxury to the people who have acquired the habit. He thinks the flower business has been fully as good as the underwear business so far this autumn.

The Randall forces now are mobilized for the winter campaign. Last week Carl Thomas was reported as having rejoined the colors. This week it is A. L. Randall, whose family are home from Michigan. Mr. Randall has engaged in growing gladiolus bulbs on his fruit farm. He specializes on America, King and Augusta.

will respond promptly to the arrival of seasonable weather. P. C. Schupp is reported as improving.

There now is an unfailing water supply at the Des Plaines range of Hoerber Bros. Many people told them there was no water under their property, but they found it at a depth of 1,100 feet. There is a 4-inch flow, with the level standing only thirty feet below the surface.

"Chippy" Herr reappeared on the market this week. He was the original pick-up man for the American express when there was only one wholesale florist. He has been in the west for a dozen years and only the old-timers knew him.

A. E. Hunt & Co., Evanston, cut excellent pink asters as late as October 26.

W. H. Amling, Maywood, is preparing to plant sweet peas, the winter Spencer varieties, as fast as the mums are cleared. His mums are specially good this year.

Paul R. Klingsporn, who is this week completing his eleventh month as manager for the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, says he feels more than pleased with the treatment he has received since coming to Chicago from Philadelphia.

October 20, has almost decided to make his home permanently at Pasadena. He enjoys perfect health there, whereas the climate at Chicago never has agreed with him. He is considering starting a small greenhouse business in the outskirts of Pasadena and will make a trip to Philadelphia and New York within the next few days to visit plantsmen, his idea being to specialize on a few varieties exceptionally popular in the vicinity of Los Angeles.

Did you ever hear of field-grown daisies bringing better money than 12-inch to 14-inch greenhouse roses? Ask A. T. Hey. His new Heyii seedling of Shasta in September, he says, averaged better prices than he got for his roses. He has worked up a stock of several thousand plants of the daisy. It is almost ironclad in its hardiness.

F. F. Scheel is putting in an auxiliary boiler at his establishment at Shermerville. It is a second-hand horizontal tubular boiler picked up at a bargain by watching the For Sale ads in The Review. In a few days he will be free from the fear of a breakdown that always goes with a range that has only one boiler.

Fred Ronsley's new store makes a bright spot on Dearborn street, in a locality that heretofore has had about everything but flower stores. Business has opened well.

After having visited a number of growers John Michelsen, of the E. C. Amling Co., says that if the rose men accomplish their evident purpose there will be no scarcity at Christmas. It looks as though all the plants that gave the big summer cut were being brought into an even heavier crop for the holidays.

One of the most noticeable trucks on the street is that of W. H. Kidwell & Son. It is gray, with bright lettering that catches the eye and advertises the two stores.

Prince E. C. d'Arenberg, on trial at the Evanston establishment of Weiland & Risch, is said not to give evidence of adaptability to greenhouse conditions.

Nate Lewis, manager of Charlie White, American lightweight champion boxer, is reported to be associated with Samuel Graff in the Art Floral Co., recently opened at 7 West Monroe street. Mr. Graff is a brother-in-law of the original "Kid" Herman.

Mons Olson is no longer in the flower business; he gets a living out of the 12-apartment building he owns on the south side. But pretty steadily his old customers call him up for flowers, so he comes down to the market and buys the material to fill the orders he takes.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

The entire market, both plants and cut flowers, has been so badly overstocked that it has been possible only to make the best of the unfavorable condition. There has been no frost as far northwest as Detroit, an unusual thing for so late in the season. The supplies of dahlias and of really fine cosmos have been enormous. Last, and most important of all, the mild weather has brought a tremendous crop of early chrysanthemums into bloom at once. These conditions have thoroughly demoralized the cut flower market, to a degree that lowers prices and makes impossible the disposal of all the receipts.

Yellow chrysanthemums are most in evidence. The prices for fine yellows have receded from $2 per dozen to $1.50, and now $1 per dozen often will buy them. White chrysanthemums are much fewer in number than yellow. The arrival of William Turner has for that reason been welcome. Pink has been strengthened by Pacific Supreme and Chieftain, a Bonnaffon-like flower of excellent color. Pompons are mostly outdoor stock so far, but the indoor stock is commencing and proves welcome.

Dahlias have outlived their usefulness in many stores. With chrysanthemums so good and so cheap, the dahlia is more and more neglected. The quantity continued large until frost killed them October 28.

Carnations have suffered more than any other staple flowers. Prices have declined to a point that is maddening to the growers. Good stock averages about one-half of the price realized at this time last year. It is only fair, however, to say that the conditions are quite different, as the plants then were small and the crops late. Roses are in rather smaller supply than they have been for the last few weeks, but this is hardly noticed with the heavy crops of other flowers. Orchids are coming in heavily and can be had at low prices. Violets, both Marie Louise and Lady Hume Campbell, are plentiful, almost as much so as the singles. Pansies are blooming freely. Sweet peas and snapdragon are hardly in form yet. There is more valley than the market requires just now.

tor, things are possible that were not then dreamed of.

Thursday, October 22, a party of four, consisting of Frank P. Myers, Martin Samtman, Joseph S. Myers and Clarence Upton, visited seven of the largest rose growing places near here, covering something over sixty miles. They called at Hillside, where they inspected the ranges of Victor Groshens, Edward Towill and Adolph Farenwald. At the last named place they secured a recruit in the person of the Great Affiliator himself, who went along on the condition that the speed should not make it likely he would return in a pine box. The next place was ten miles or so away, Stephen Mortensen's, at Southampton. Then came lunch, with the followers of the oyster stew and of pork nearly evenly divided, at Langhorn. Then the great houses of the Joseph Heacock Co., at Roelofs, were quickly followed by the greenhouse of Malcolm Franklin at Yardley. Last, but by no means least, came the great place of the Florex Gardens at North Wales, with its mammoth house in fine condition. The visitors found that Killarney Brilliant had made tremendous inroads on four of the seven places and that while a greater variety of roses is being generally grown than last season, Killarney and White Killarney are still the leading varieties.

Various Notes.

G. P. Weaklen, of Pittsburgh, Pa., came to this city October 23 to make a pall for a casket cover to be used at a funeral in Chester on the following day. He used over 25,000 double violets, besides some lily of the valley and orchids, making up his handsome floral piece at the store of the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., with the assistance of some of that company's young men, and impressed its motor car into service for delivery.

G. R. Clark, of Scranton, was here recently. Mr. Clark says that this is the first season that he has ever seen late blooming cosmos in flower outdoors at home.

Clarence J. Watson, with the Leo Niessen Co., who has been ill for the last fortnight, has returned to work.

Raymond Brunswick, secretary and treasurer of the M. Rice Co., makes the following statement: "When the war broke out we had booked a large number of orders for goods that we expected to receive from abroad. These orders were filled as far as possible from the stock on hand, the balance being left unfilled until the goods arrived. J. G. Neidinger is pleased with the interest shown in his original Christmas wreaths. Heavy importations now are arriving from Europe.

BOSTON.

The Market.

There is no improvement in the cut flower business, thanks in considerable measure to continued warm weather. A tremendous quantity of stock is arriving, with only a moderate call. There is an unusually heavy surplus each day, nor is the outlook encouraging. Many wealthy families will stay in their country homes this winter and social activity will be less pronounced than usual. I may be wrong, but it looks as though channels of distribution which have proved adequate in the past will not suffice to make clearances and some means should be devised to bring flowers within the reach of the thousands of families who rarely purchase them.

Chrysanthemums are seen on every hand and their value was never less, although the quality is splendid. A few Bonnaffon are already in, also Ivory, while Chrysolora, Pacific Supreme, Ramapo, Polly Rose, Unaka and Pacific are most prominent among the others. A good many pompons are seen. Roses are of excellent quality and it seems almost cruel to see them selling at such low prices, and even then large numbers are unsold. Carnations are also something of a glut. Few reach $2 per hundred, many not half that price. The hot weather has been hard on violets, which are selling at $3 to $5 per thousand. Some nice Lady Lenox cosmos sells fairly well, also yellow marguerites. Easter lilies are good, but are too numerous. Even Bouvardia Humboldtii hangs fire. Cattleyas are low in price; so, in fact, are all orchids. Some nice gardenias are coming in. Valley, if of good quality, sells well. Quite a little second-rate valley is hard to sell. For greens, the call has been a little better.

Flower Market Dinner.

The annual meeting and dinner of the Boston Flower Exchange was held at Young's hotel October 24. Over 100 stockholders, salesmen and guests were present. A fine vase of Carnation Alice graced the directors' table. After a first-class menu had been served, a business session was held. The treasurer's report showed total receipts for the year and cash balance for 1913 amounting to $21,624.08; total payments, $20,445.38, of which $1,101.50 was dividends to stockholders, leaving a balance of $1,178.70.

Messrs. E. J. Rogean, J. L. Miller, Geo. H. Noyes and Wm. Spillsbury were appointed tellers to sort and count ballots for a board of nine directors. The following were chosen: S. J. Goddard, W. C. Stickel, A. S. Parker, Eber Holmes, George Cartwright, L. W. Mann, A. Christensen, C. L. Paine and A. A. Pembroke. Messrs. William Nicholson and Alex. Montgomery, who had served faithfully on the board for many years, retired. They were given a rising vote of thanks, accompanied by a salvo of cheers.

The regular business being disposed of, the balance of the evening was given up to speechmaking and music. W. J. Stewart and W. N. Craig spoke for the press. W. R. Pierson described some of his hunting experiences in the New Brunswick woods, where he has been since September 12, working in some good stories. Charles E. Robinson said his firm's business was equal to that of 1913. W. H. Elliott spoke interestingly, as he always does. Everett E. Cummings strongly advocated cash sales for flowers, stating that vegetable growers go back with cash for each day's sales, and he sees no reason why florists could not do the same. W. H. Elliott and others dissented from these views. W. R. Pierson spoke on the New York credit system and thought Boston should adopt a similar one, which we came near doing a couple of years ago. C. J. Sloan and P. J. Donahoe spoke of the iniquities of the present system.

Nathan Lerner sang a couple of solos, which were warmly applauded. Various other popular songs, including "It's a Long, Long Road to Tipperary," were rendered, and the meeting closed with the singing of Auld Lang Syne and America, the evening proving one of real pleasure and benefit.

Various Notes.

Penn had the decorations, which were quite extensive, for the Houghton & Dutton opening October 24. American Beauties were the leading flowers used.

Samuel Bernstein has opened a fine, up-to-date flower store at 112 Canal his big house this year to yellow marguerites, of which he already has a large daily cut. He has a good collection of mums, while carnations are still his leading specialty. He had 3,200 fine flowers October 24.

Peirce Bros., of Waltham, have a good cut of Chrysolora, Polly Rose and Unaka mums. They are doing well with roses this season, Taft, Ward, Killarney and White Killarney all being fine.

William Sim finished housing his big lot of violets October 27. Mr. Sim says he fears that the intense heat we have had through October is going to seriously harm the plants and that they will bloom sparsely again, as they did last season.

Galvin had a beautiful window October 24. A high basket of cattleyas and Oncidium varicosum Rogersii stood in the center, the balance of the window being somewhat loosely filled with yellow mums arranged with red oak foliage, with a good green background.

Littlefield & Wyman, of North Abington, have batches of several promising seedling carnations. One is a shade deeper than Enchantress and larger, another is of a peach-blossom color, while a third is a little deeper than Winsor, and wonderfully free. Benora, Beacon, Pink Delight and White Enchantress are their favorites among the standard sorts.

The Budlong establishment at Auburn, R. I., handles from 10,000 to 15,000 roses daily at the Boston Coöperative Market. Specially fine October 24 were Ophelia, Stanley, Mock, Sunburst and Shawyer. They also have excellent mums.

Wax Bros. report many wedding orders. October 20 they had a beautiful casket cover of 2,500 white carnations with a cross of Cattleya labiata low down on one side.

Patrick Welch says that, while business cannot be called good, he is hopeful for the future. Stock is of excellent quality.

The annual chrysanthemum show of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society will open November 5. There are a number of classes for roses and carnations which growers should take advantage of, particularly now, when prices in the markets are so low.

Arthur Griffin, for some years a prominent carnation grower in Woburn, Mass., who sold out his place last year,

The death of Michael Barrett, well known for many years in the retail trade of Boston, will be found reported in the obituary column.

Andrew Christensen, of Stoneham, says that Matchless and Champion carnations are both doing finely with him. Yellowstone and Yellow Prince are also much better than a year ago.

Some of the best cosmos I have seen this season comes from P. S. Brown, of Scituate. He also has good Halliday mums.

Chrysanthemum Antigone, from C. H. Totty, was well shown before the local C. S. A. committee October 17, and scored ninety points commercial and eighty-seven points exhibition scale.

A letter received this week from H. P. Werdmuller, lately of Boston and now with Wilhelm Pfitzer, Stuttgart, Germany, says that the seed and nursery business there is practically dead. Mr. Werdmuller had offered his services, but had not been sent to the front.

I regret to report the illness of James Nicol, of Quincy. Mr. Nicol is a veteran grower of mums and his big vases of Mrs. Jerome Jones always are a feature at the Boston shows. This year the flowers are finer than ever, and we all hope the popular grower will be able to show them in person.

The Market.

Business conditions in general have improved somewhat during the last month. The supply of locally grown cut flowers is limited. Most of the chrysanthemums are held back for All Saints' day, November 1. Greenhouse-grown roses are cut only in small number, but the stock grown here gives promise for fine crops later on. The first Cattleya Trianæ are making their appearance.

In outdoor-grown cut flowers, aside from chrysanthemums and cosmos, there is hardly anything in the market. Everything suffered heavily during the latter part of the summer and the early fall on account of the incessant rains.

The stock of all kinds of foliage and flowering plants grown by local wholesalers and retailers for the coming season is not only a large one, but, in many instances, better than ever before. The imported plants, especially the azaleas, are the best that have come to New Orleans for many years.

Various Notes.

Abele Bros. have grown a fine crop of Mrs. Robinson, using new land. The nursery is heavily stocked with all kinds of foliage and flowering plants for winter and spring. Their wholesale and retail trade is picking up.

A. Alost has grown his usual large quantity of white mums. He has about 25,000 Phœnix Canariensis and Washingtonia filifera in 6-inch pots for the automobile road to be planted next spring.

P. A. Chopin has an attractive bed of Robinsons planted in the greenhouse at his St. Charles avenue store. He reports a steady increase in business this month and heavy bookings for All Saints' day.

H. Cook's place is well stocked with plants for the retail trade. Business reports are fair.

Herman Doescher's place is constantly improving. The stock of all kinds of market plants is immense, notably his own grown Hydrangea Otaksa. A house of Mrs. Robinson and one of Chrysolora is praiseworthy. H. Illenberger, his foreman, is surely a hustler.

C. Eble is still maintaining his success in growing fine Cocos plumosa and Phœnix Roebelenii. Having charge of the plants and flower decorations for the Grunewald hotel, he was busy at this place during the international convention of fire chiefs, who selected it as their headquarters.

C. W. Eichling had fine exhibits of grafted pecan trees from his Lacombe nursery at the Donaldsonville and Hammond fairs.

E. A. Farley has a fine stock of Mrs. Robinson, which wholesale at good figures.

Peter Kaul has his usual big stock of market plants, including some nice Nephrolepis exaltata furcans. He is well satisfied with the All Saints' day orders.

The Metairie Ridge Nursery Co. has about 8,000 Robinsons and 2,000 Appletons in fine shape. The rose houses are in good condition. A small house of Gardenia Veitchii is beginning to bloom.

J. A. Newsham's house of Robinsons is surely fine. The orchid stock is enormous. Mr. Newsham is starting to cut Cattleya Trianæ. His crotons are among the best in town.

H. Kraak's extensive landscape work keeps him busy.

W. Nelson has about 8,000 Mrs. Robinson. Nearly all of them have been sold at wholesale.

Verlinde & Vandereeken are bound to have success with their established methods of growing stock for the wholesale trade. Their nephrolepis in four leading varieties, Latania Borbonica and Araucaria excelsa, as well as the stock plants for about 20,000 young Ficus elastica, are perfect. The firm is delighted with the orders received already for spring delivery of Ficus elastica.

U. J. Virgin's Areca lutescens are the finest in town, and the plants are all clean and strong.

H. Rehfeld is one of the busiest cemetery gardeners in town. He has several thousand Robinsons, and judging from the orders coming in, all will be sold at retail.

Max Scheinuk had big success with his Mrs. Robinson this year. They can be classed among the best in town.

inferior in quality. We must have cooler weather in order to get good, crisp mums. Pompons in orange, yellow and white are now on hand and are finding ready sale. Dahlias are still arriving in pink, yellow, red, orange and white, and are fairly good. Cosmos, snapdragons and mignonette are in demand.

Roses are excellent, considering the warm weather. Killarney, Francis Scott Key, Russell and Mrs. Aaron Ward are among the best varieties, although Sunburst, Taft, Bulgarie, Maryland and Mock are all good. American Beauties are in splendid condition.

Carnations are much improved and the supply is greatly increased, and so the prices have dropped just a little. Debutante baskets are selling, and corsage hampers are finding favor with the flower buyers this season. Boston ferns and table ferneries are in demand, as are Dutch bulbs for fall planting and house blooming. Bronze and green galax are in fine condition and form the foundation of nearly all design work.

Various Notes.

Fire broke out in the boiler room of John Schweichler's greenhouses, at North Tonawanda, October 20, and did $2,000 worth of damage, in loss of stock, partial destruction of greenhouses, broken glass, etc. The loss was partly covered by $1,500 insurance, and Mr. Schweichler will begin repairs at once.

Anderson and now of Philadelphia, was a visitor last week.

The Business League Bowling Club has begun activities once more. There is a change in the florists' team, which now consists of Joseph Streit, captain; L. H. Neubeck, Chas. Sandiford, Joseph Speidel and Messrs. Stuntz and Greever. They won four points last week.

A heavy rain which lasted all day Sunday, October 18, prevented many from joining the party of florists from Buffalo and vicinity who were the guests of the King Construction Co., at North Tonawanda, on that day for a tour of inspection of the company's plant. In spite of the inclement weather, there were about fifty present. Fifteen automobiles carried them to North Tonawanda, where they enjoyed looking over the King establishment. Refreshments were served and all had an excellent time. Barney Myers and Jerry Brookins, of Lancaster and Orchard Park respectively, braved the rain to come with the party.

David Scott, of Corfu, N. Y., is sending some fine Niveus and Golden Glow chrysanthemums to this market. They are good blooms, but small in size.

Dahlias are still arriving from New Jersey. They show the effects of warm weather.

White Bros., of Medina, N. Y., are cutting some fine carnations. The white ones are especially good and have long, firm stems.

There were many fancy baskets used for the Douglas debutante reception October 23. It was the first reception of the season of any note. The table decoration, of cattleyas and oncidiums, was done by S. A. Anderson.

The Lenox Flower Shop had an effective window display last week, con-

The Market.

Complaints as to business are heard from all sides among the retailers, and they are buying little stock at the wholesale markets. The wholesalers say they never saw a season in which stock piled up as it does daily, with so little demand that in order to move it prices have to suffer greatly. This is the chrysanthemum season, and chrysanthemums are about all the retailers call for. These are coming in heavily. Fancy blooms of such varieties as Clementine Touset, Appleton, Yellow Queen and Robinson sell well. White, pink and yellow pompons also sell well. The wholesale markets are crowded with such late varieties as Kelley, Bonnaffon and Chadwick.

Roses are so plentiful and there is so little call that much of the stock has to be dumped in order to make room for fresh consignments. The same may be said of carnations. These are coming in fine, but the small demand for them has caused a slump in the prices of the fancy grades. These conditions will prevail as long as the mum season lasts. As we have had no frost, dahlias, cosmos, tuberoses and a few gladioli still are coming in heavily. Valley and lilies hold their own in price and demand. All greens are plentiful and asparagus has an excellent demand.

Various Notes.

The meeting of the Retail Florists' Association took place October 19 at the Washington hotel and was one of the best the association has ever held. The association was on the verge of disbanding, but on account of the renewed interest displayed at the meeting, it was decided to continue. A banquet will be held November 11 at the Washington hotel. The officers are much pleased with the turn of affairs. All retailers are urged to join and make it strong enough to carry out all its teachings.

The St. Louis County Growers' Association will hold its regular monthly meeting, Wednesday night, November 4. The officers say there is much important business to transact and that members should not fail to attend.

L. Baumann, Chas. Fullgraf, Muskopf & Irish and Wm. Mehl, landscape architects, say they are having a busy fall season. The fine weather of late helped them to finish their work before the cold weather set in.

The majority of the Kirkwood growers have taken to growing chrysanthemums and are at present flooding the market with them. Most of them have cut out violets. After the mum season, carnations, sweet peas and bulbous stock will be their specialties.

Along Delmar boulevard, from Taylor avenue west, the attractive spots are the establishments of Kalisch Bros. Floral Co. and J. W. Boerm. Their show houses are filled with a fine assortment of cut chrysanthemums and pot plants.

The Bentzen Floral Co., the Mullanphy Florists and the Tower Florist are trying to compete with each other in making displays of chrysanthemums. All are close neighbors on North Grand avenue.

William Mehl, superintendent, and George Schmidt, rose grower, have resigned their positions at the Milliken greenhouse plant, at Crescent, Mo. The stock from that establishment is now being consigned to C. A. Kuehn.

W. A. Rowe, of Kirkwood, is consigning to the Windler Wholesale Floral Co. a fancy lot of pink pompons, which have a good demand. His yellow Smith's Advance, too, have a good call.

Alexander P. Geranios, proprietor of the Metropolitan Floral Co., did the unexpected last week and got married. The bride was Miss Anna Wittmann, who has been in his employ for the last year. Mr. Geranios is daily receiving congratulations from his friends in the

R. J. Windler, at 2300 South Grand avenue, has made an attractive addition to his large electric sign. Panels of a large bunch of flowers on each side of the sign can be seen at some distance at night.

Seed Trade News.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, Lester L. Morse, San Francisco, Cal.; Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.
Thirty-third annual convention, San Francisco, Cal., 1915.

F. W. BRUGGERHOF, of J. M. Thorburn & Co., celebrated his eighty-fourth birthday anniversary October 15.

BULB salesmen from Holland are said to be more numerous on the Pacific coast than ever before.

THE seed firm of Condon Bros., at Rockford, Ill., has been incorporated for $10,000. The incorporators are L. R. Condon, A. E. Fisher and Blanche Partridge.

ROSZELL J. BOWEN, with J. Bolgiano & Son, Baltimore, has spent three weeks in Chicago. He is motoring home through Indiana, Ohio and Pennsylvania, expecting to reach Baltimore about November 15.

THE Dutch houses that have shipped a part of their surplus to New York are getting nervous. They are no longer content to make personal offers, but are mailing circulars that list many popular varieties at sharp reductions.

IN issuing their annual advance price list, a volume of 128 pages, under date of October 12, Sluis & Groot, Enkhuizen, say: "The Holland-America line has been obliged to advance ocean freight. This amounts now for garden and flower seeds to New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Newport News to $9 per ton, minimum freight $5."

BECAUSE the seeds had been in the depot more than forty-eight hours and were therefore at the risk of the consignee, the Dunkirk Seed Co., of Dunkirk, N. Y., was unable to collect between $2,000 and $3,000 damages for a consignment of seeds which was destroyed when the Missouri-Pacific depot at Carthage, Mo., burned several years ago. A long suit ended with this decision in a New York court a few days ago.

C. S. CLARK & SON'S new seed corn warehouse at Wakeman, O., is nearly completed. This building has been equipped with four new ear corn driers and one new steam shelled corn drier, new power cleaners, new boiler, new sheller, new engine, etc. The plant will be lighted by electricity. Seven carloads of corn can be loaded from their warehouse at one time. This firm reports crops fair to good and of fine quality.

THE Haven Seed Co., of Santa Ana, Cal., recently was incorporated with a capital stock of $25,000. Tomato seed growing is the principal business. The incorporators are E. M. Haven, A. B. Haven and L. H. Haven. The business was established in Michigan by E. M. Haven in 1875 and the tomato has always been the specialty. The business

Now you can get freesias from: Bermuda, California, France, Azores and Japan, with other places still to hear from.

Under the head of "Business Embarrassments" this week is recorded the appointment of a receiver for the Buffum Pure Seed Co., of Worland, Wyo.

Early in the year a good many mail-order houses figured on pricing their 1915 catalogues on some sort of a zone system to conform to the parcel post, but as they get to figuring out the details the method seems too complicated and too bewildering for the buyer. As a result most of the 1915 books will continue to quote on the old flat rate basis of delivery anywhere, including postage at about 8 cents per pound.

CHARGES COLLECT?

Anent the article in The Review for October 1 in regard to catalogue-makers' problems, why would it not be perfectly feasible for the Post-office Department to permit the forwarding of packages postage to be paid by the recipient, under cash guarantee by the forwarder that forwarding charges would be paid by recipient, or forwarding and return charges by the forwarder in case the goods were refused by consignee?

As nearly all packages sent in the retail seed trade are paid for in advance, practically none would be refused, so that the government would run almost no risk, while a cash deposit of $25 to $100 would make the government perfectly safe, and its requirement would do away with extending such accommodations to solitary shipments by individuals under such a plan.

Under such an arrangement a catalogue-maker could print the lowest price at which he could deliver the goods at his own post-office, and his customers would get the benefit, and pay the costs of transportation according to the weight of the package and the distance from the shipping point, an arrangement that would be fair and advantageous to all concerned.

After receiving its deposit from any firm, the government could forward its packages under postage-due stamps and return the packages, if uncalled for, under additional stamps of the same nature, thus getting payment for transportation both ways without any bookkeeping or formality beyond the record of the guarantee deposit in the shipping office, and the collection of the stamps upon delivery of the packages.

MORE DUTCH BULBS.

A number of small consignments and one large one, 699 cases for Maltus & Ware, helped to add over another thousand cases to the receipts of Dutch bulbs last week. Consignments are small and few on each boat, but nearly every boat from Rotterdam—and they are coming frequently—brings a few cases, and in the course of a week they add respectably to the total to date. During the course of the week the Rotterdam steamers Emdyk, Callisto, Leto and Veendyk arrived at the port of New York with bulbs on board. The combined consignments were as follows:

YOU ARE LOSING MONEY

If you have any waste space in your greenhouses. Look and See. If you find you have room either under or on the benches, fill it with something at once. Greenhouse room is greenhouse waste. No florist can afford to have "room" in his greenhouses. A good thing to plant is a few cases of the new crop Giganteum. You can pot them up and put them under the benches until you have room on top later on. They will flower and be very useful and profitable to you in due time. Horseshoe Brand

GIGANTEUM 7 to 9 are $18.00 per case of 300 bulbs—and worth it.

Not only that, but you can get a delivery from any of the following cities if you order now: New York, Chicago, Omaha, Cincinnati, Pittsburgh, Boston, Philadelphia, Buffalo, Minneapolis, Grand Rapids, Galveston and Toronto. This is a saving in freight to you worth while, besides helping business in your locality. In each of the above cities there are good Cold Storage Plants where the bulbs may be stored for deliveries during 1915, if you wish it. Other sizes of Giganteum from New York, Pittsburgh, Boston and Toronto.

LILIUM FORMOSUM

We still have a few Formosum left, in fine condition, at New York. A COMMERCIAL SNAP

If you grow snaps principally for show, you will not be particularly interested in this ad. But if you grow for profit and want a commercial variety, you will need to take notice. We have just had a verbal report from a commercial test made by a large New York State commercial grower. Our seedling Silver Pink stood FIVE to ONE alongside of some of the muchly advertised varieties. In plain words, our Silver Pink produced five flower spikes to their one. We have always claimed two to one, but this is simply putting it up where it belongs. Our seedling Silver Pink is the one COMMERCIAL SNAPDRAGON. It is a business variety and means profit to every grower.

Fine, healthy, well branched plants, only $4.00 per 100, $35.00 per 1000. New crop seed of same, $1.00 per pkt., 3 for $2.50, 7 for $5.00. Cultural directions free. All orders cash.

WAR may or may not affect the Gladiolus Business of this Country this year, but will the effect be any worse than the war on legitimate prices last year?

Extremely low prices for any stock is detrimental to GOOD business.

For instance, more money was made by the FLORIST when "AMERICA" bulbs were worth $50.00 per thousand, than last year when imported bulbs were sold for $5.00 per thousand.

Our prices are never CHEAP, but they are consistent with the quality and purity of stock that we grow.

You will do well to get our prices before buying.

GLADIOLI

I am digging my Glads and they are the "best ever." Please notice that all my big bulbs are YOUNG—grown from bulblets and yearlings; no old flat ones with big scars on the bottom. Besides a good general assortment I offer the following specialties:—

MINNESOTA

One of the best florists' lights, well opened flowers of good substance, pale cream with small dark spot, well placed on long stem which is never crooked. Two to three weeks earlier than America and so brings good price. Ships and handles well and harmonizes with anything. 1½ in. up, $12.00 per 1000; 1¼ to 1½ in., $10.00 per 1000; 1 to 1¼ in., $8.00 per 1000.

AMERICA—1½ in. and all up, $12.00 per 1000; 1¼ to 1½ in., $10.00 per 1000; 1 to 1¼ in., $8.00 per 1000.
MRS. FRANCIS KING—same prices, but bulbs run larger in first size.
BLUE HYBRIDS—known as "Section 3," clematis, lilac and heliotrope shades. Sizes 1, 2 and 3 (run ¼ in smaller than other sorts). $15.00, $12.00 and $10.00 per 1000. Cheap.
CRACKER JACK—$20.00 per 1000. FLORISTS' LIGHT—in fine mixture and 50 named sorts. Prices on application. Don't wait.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

SAN DIEGO, CAL.

The Market.

Business was rather quiet up to a few weeks ago, but has now picked up considerably. The stock now offered is better and more plentiful than formerly and this naturally leads to a better demand. Cut roses, carnations and outside stock generally are well displayed.

Various Notes.

Geo. Otto is settled in his new location and likes the change. Business is coming his way, he says. A visit to his nursery and growing grounds showed everything in first-class shape. The big lath house is full of all classes of plants, that deserved more than the passing glance we were able to give them, the "we" in this case being J. Dieterich, H. W. Turner and the writer, of Montebello; H. Bockman, representing the Bauer Pottery Co., of Los Angeles, and John Morley, who drove us out in his new Buick.

Mr. Rolleri, of the California Evergreen Co., Los Angeles, was here last week on a business trip.

Business was fine at Boyle & Darnaud's, several large wedding orders having been taken. They now grow nearly all their own stock and the roses were particularly good, several of the new ones being included. I noticed some fine Cattleya labiata and Mr. Darnaud is highly satisfied with the way his orchids are doing. H. R. Richards.

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

Possibly never before, in the history of the flower business here, has there been so fine a display of chrysanthemums as during the last week and it must be confessed that a good deal of the finest of the stock has come from the north. Not but that there were plenty of good flowers from the local growers, but there was more variety in the shipped-in stock and the northern packers seem to be doing better work, so that the flowers arrive without a blemish. The roses are good, with plenty of color, better foliage and more substance. Shawyer is taking well here; so are the newer forms of Killarney, such as Killarney Brilliant and Killarney Queen. Carnations are about as last reported. Centaureas of various kinds are proving themselves useful. The small baby roses, as the flowers of Cecile Brunner are called hereabouts, are coming again in quantity and they help out finely for wedding bouquets and similar work. Valley is plentiful and of excellent quality, and the demand is increasing weekly.

Dahlias are past their best and outdoor flowers in general are not so good. Sweet peas from the summer crops are about over, but there will be plenty again when the fall-sown rows come in. There is a lot of aphis and mildew this year and much of the outdoor winter stock will be ruined. In greens there are abundant stocks of huckleberry, Mexican ivy, Asparagus plumosus and Sprengeri, and maidenhair ferns. Plants are scarce, but the demand is not great.

Various Notes.

M. L. Germain, president of the Germain Seed & Plant Co., has purchased a new seven-passenger Studebaker. Mr. Germain had the car delivered to him at San Diego, when attending the meeting of the California Nurserymen's Association, and used it there, driving back in it to Los Angeles over the coast route.

Among the visitors to the San Diego convention was A. H. Post, recently of The Review office. Mr. Post appears to have quite regained his health and looks in fine condition.

John Vallance, of Oakland, and Mrs. Vallance were among the visitors last week.

Howard & Smith's store has been wonderfully attractive all through the dahlia season and is even more so now with the mums. Mr. Howard says that business has been away above his expectations and he is not built along pessimistic lines either.

J. Ferrari, of Ferrari Bros., San Francisco, and E. Gill, of Oakland, were among our northern visitors last week.

The chrysanthemum show at the establishment of Murata & Co. continues to be one of the attractions of town.

As I write, the preparations for the Pasadena show are in a forward condition. The trade groups are being put up and the private gardeners are bringing in their plants and flowers. W. Hutchison, president of the society, says that the entries are larger this year than ever before and that the chrysanthemums will be the finest ever seen here or at any other show. They will have to "go some" to beat last year's record. Of the trade groups, those of Howard & Smith and the Germain Seed & Plant Co., of Los Angeles, and the Campbell Seed Store and the Dorman-Shaw Seed Co., of Pasadena, were the most forward. H. R. Richards.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

The weather continues favorable for outdoor flowers and is bringing in such quantities of carnations and mums that the market is badly demoralized, though the growers are dumping a large part of their cut. Roses are less generally grown and the supply of them, though plentiful, is not excessive. A few California mums are still shown; of these, Bonnaffon, Yellow Eaton and Maud Jeffries are the favorites. Of the home-grown mums the best now in are Early Snow and Chrysolora. A fair trade in ferns and decorative plants continues. The sale of bulbs is specially brisk, due to good weather. Potted mums in bloom and Cincinnati begonias are just appearing. The bulk of the business consists of small orders.

BAKER FLORAL & SEED CO., Baker, Oregon

Scott was appointed to have charge of arrangements.

The president was authorized to appoint a committee of five to take up the question of increasing the use of flowers in decorating the business districts and the parkings in the residence districts, and establishing a floral center somewhere on public property, to be maintained during the entire outdoor plant season. The commissioner of public parks and the committee on street decorations of the Rose Festival Association will be urged to coöperate.

A resolution was adopted inviting the Northwest National Dahlia Society to hold its 1915 meeting at Portland. R. W. Gill, president of the Oregon Dahlia Society, stated that the dahlia shows held at Portland and Seattle had been highly successful both in attendance and in quantity and quality of blooms shown.

The standing committee on publicity, consisting of Chairman Ralph R. Routledge, A. J. Clark, Max M. Smith, J. J. Butzer, A. Bowman, J. B. Pilkington and E. T. Mische, will have charge of the campaign to induce the attendants at the 1915 S. A. F. convention to take one of the northern routes either going to or returning from San Francisco. Any of these routes will pass them through Portland. Arrangements for entertaining the visitors are already being planned.

Various Notes.

H. E. Weed has been appointed by the school board as director of school gardens. He will not abandon his landscaping and nursery business. He is landscaping the grounds of the Oregon building at the Panama-Pacific exposition with Oregon native shrubs. The building and its surroundings are unique, from the fact that they are composed, with the exception of the glass and hardware, entirely of materials produced in Oregon.

Ralph R. Routledge, president of the Routledge Seed & Floral Co., was married at Seattle, October 15, to Miss Melina Le Blanc, of Vancouver, B. C.

E. J. Steele, the pansy grower, plans to increase his output of pansy seed. He thinks it will become necessary or desirable to use home-grown seed in the United States.

The nurserymen are lifting some of the hard-wooded roses and evergreens. The soft-wooded and deciduous stock is still too green to be handled to advantage.

S. H. Forshaw, the Pendleton florist, was a visitor here last week. His stay was made interesting for him when his friends discovered that he was on his wedding trip.

A few Czar violets are to be seen at the stores. They have been off the market for many years, having been superseded by an improved variety called the Giant, which in turn was followed by Princess of Wales, introduced by Clarke Bros. about fifteen years ago, and later by the greatest favorite of all, Baroness Rothschild. The Czar is a good keeper and has excellent fragrance, but its small flower and short stem are a serious handicap to its popularity.

J. H. Reock, representing Ralph M. Ward & Co., of New York; Martin D. Reukauf, of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, and F. Rynveld, of F. Rynveld & Sons, Hillegom, Holland, caled on the trade last week.

The Market.

The bright weather of the last two weeks has increased the cut of all blooms to such an extent that some of the growers are experiencing difficulty in moving their stock. Business has been none too brisk, although the sales would possibly compare favorably with former years. Everyone is busy with bulbs and a greater effort than ever before is being made to push this class of stock. Business in the nursery line has not been up to former years, the bright weather causing many to delay planting.

Various Notes.

The bowling club has been rolling up some heavy scores of late. The social meeting was rather poorly attended. Meetings in future will be on the first and third Thursdays of each month.

The Evergreen Florists have moved to the old stand formerly known as the La Jardiniere, from which place they will carry on their retail business.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

STARK LITIGATION SETTLED.

At a meeting held at the office of Judge Elijah Robinson in Kansas City October 16 the various suits and business differences existing between W. P. Stark and the Stark Bros. Nurseries & Orchards Co. were settled.

According to the terms of the settlement W. P. Stark agreed to dismiss the receivership suit now pending and pay all court costs; also to repurchase the Rolla, Mo., orchard, paying $10,000 in cash and other considerations according to the original agreement. He also agreed to pay a $9,000 note, on which the company had brought suit at Neosho, together with costs, and to settle open accounts according to the books of the company.

Stark Bros. Nurseries & Orchards Co. agreed to purchase from W. P. Stark his one-third interest in the eighty acres of land near Louisiana, Mo., in regard to which partition suits are pending, for $3,100, to pay the costs of the suits, and to declare accrued dividends to the stockholders, the dividends having been withheld the last two years; also to declare the regular dividend in December.

There was also a controversy in regard to the exclusive rights in the Stark Delicious apple tree and W. P. Stark agreed to discontinue advertising the exclusive rights.

The settlement in no wise affects W. P. Stark's stock in the Stark Bros. Nurseries & Orchards Co. A meeting of the stockholders was held at the office of the company, at Louisiana, Mo., October 20, at which the accrued dividends above referred to were declared. These amounted to $75,000.

Annual Meeting at San Diego.

One of the most enjoyable conventions ever held by the California Association of Nurserymen, and a most successful one from both the educational and business points of view, was opened by President D. W. Coolidge at midday, October 15, in the fine convention hall of the U. S. Grant hotel at San Diego. The hall was finely decorated with palms, ferns, fruit and cut flowers. Some were simply for decoration, while others were exhibits by various members of the trade. All were skillfully arranged by E. Benard, Miss Kate Sessions and Walter Birch, of the Harris Seed Co., all of whom exerted themselves to the utmost. There were over 200 present when the convention opened and many more arrived on later trains and also the next day.

Calling the convention to order, Mr. Coolidge introduced Mayor O'Neall, who in a most happy vein welcomed the visitors to San Diego. His references to "grafters" and the suggestions for useful (?) plants that could be raised by grafting called forth much hilarity, but through the fun the true note of welcome was struck and this was followed out all through the convention by the open-handed hospitality everywhere prevailing.

The President's Address.

President Coolidge, in his opening address, went briefly into the exposition preparations that were going on and paid a well deserved tribute to those who are preparing this great and unique show, that even at this early date is wonderfully interesting. Mr. Coolidge's quaint humor and ready wit would have made him a lecturer or writer of fame had he not elected instead to be a successful nurseryman. Ernest Braunton followed with his response to the address of welcome and praised highly the splendid work done in the parks by John Morley. This paved the way for the energetic and genial secretary-treasurer, Henry Kruckeberg. His report, besides showing a healthy condition of affairs, was brimming over with optimism and good cheer.

Space would not allow reference to all the excellent papers read. Geo. Roeding, of the Fancher Creek Nurseries, Fresno, in his report as chairman of the legislative committee, laid considerable stress on the need for uniform state laws, and F. H. Wilson, of Dinuba, gave an interesting report as chairman of the committee on transportation. G. A. Dennison sent a telegram from San Francisco which was read by the secretary and contained a pressing invitation to the nurserymen and others of the southern part of the state to visit the northern city next year during the exposition. He also expressed regret at not being able to be present. In the evening Geo. Roeding spoke on his pet hobby, the Smyrna fig, illustrating his most interesting lecture with colored lantern slides.

The second day of the convention was almost entirely devoted to papers and reports, all of which were of great interest. One of the most interesting of all was John Morley's, on "Treating Our Refractory Soils with Dynamite," and he explained his methods quite clearly. Ladies' night was under the auspices of the San Diego Floral Association and consisted of music and a splendid paper by the editor of the California Garden, Alfred D. Robinson. His colored slides of plants and flowers were magnificent. He was followed by Miss Kate Sessions and Theodore Payne, of Los Angeles, the evening terminating with a dance.

Saturday was given up entirely to pleasure. In the morning the visitors were all taken to the grounds and buildings of the Panama-California exposition, where a rich treat awaited them. There never was a more magnificent site for a big show and the grounds and buildings are in an advanced state of preparation. The lovely park vistas, with the ocean and historic old town and Point Loma in the near distance, form a setting that could not be matched anywhere. At noon a picnic lunch was given at the Mission Cliff park. Automobile rides to points of interest in the afternoon and a fine banquet at night wound up the finest convention the association has ever held. H. R. R.

NURSERY IMPORTS HEAVY.

Exporters at the port of Rotterdam are busily forwarding to this country consignments of nursery stock. It seems to be fairly certain that the stock from the warring countries is being sent to this port—practically the only one of importance on the continent now communicating with this country with any degree of frequency and regularity—and there reconsigned to the United States. The size of the shipments now coming would at least bear this out. The steamer Veendyk, from Rotterdam, which arrived at the port of New York October 21, brought the following consignments of trees and shrubs:

EXHIBITED BY

HERMAN BROS. CO. Council Bluffs, Iowa

MEMPHIS, TENN.

The decorations at the formal opening of the new Grand Central station, held October 21, were exceedingly elaborate and attracted much notice on the part of the visitors. The work was executed by C. F. Swayger, chief gardener for the Illinois Central railroad, and three division gardeners, John Rinck, of New Orleans, La.; H. S. Fulton, of Fulton, Ky., and J. Dinkins, of Norwood, La. Hundreds of palms and plants, furnished by the Idlewild Greenhouses, were used. Great quantities of Florida gray moss, wild smilax, palm leaves, etc., as well as hundreds of Beauties, orchids, carnations and roses were used in the decorations. A carload of ferns, palms and Louisiana moss was sent up from New Orleans. Large numbers of roses and carnations were presented to the ladies among the visitors as souvenirs, and cigars were distributed freely among the gentlemen. This station is one of the best and largest in the south—the finest on the Illinois Central road south of Chicago, it is said—and the opening was in accordance with its importance. Many railroad officials of prominence were in attendance, and Mr. Swayger and his assistants put in their best work on the decorations.

How Much Longer Will You Sleep? How Much Longer Will You Worry?

Worry makes gray hair. Don't get old when you can prevent it. Don't let the war worry you. Wake up! Go right ahead into business. Look out for yourself, for nobody will give you anything if you have nothing. The European war has nothing to do with the florists' business—we don't ship plants to Europe. If business is bad, don't blame the war, but blame yourself.

Look here:—I will help you and give you a chance, but for one week only, at prices seldom offered. We need the room for our great importation of Azalea Indica, and have decided to make a big reduction on the following plants:

Our Ferns are all Pot Grown. Bench grown and lifted are no good, they will go back on you. 20% reduction is not included in this list.

A 7-inch $1.00 Boston Fern we shall reduce to only 50c.
A 6-inch 75c Boston Fern we shall reduce to only 40c.
A 6-inch 50c Boston Fern we shall reduce to only 35c.
A 5½-inch 40c Boston Fern we shall reduce to only 30c.
A 7-inch $1.00 Whitmani Fern we shall reduce to only 50c.
A 6½-inch 75c Whitmani Fern we shall reduce to only 40c.
A 6-inch 50c Whitmani Fern we shall reduce to only 40c.
A 5½-inch 40c Whitmani Fern we shall reduce to only 30c.
A beautiful 7-inch $1.00 Roosevelt Fern, now only 50c.
A beautiful 6½-inch 75c Roosevelt Fern, now only 40c.
A beautiful 6-inch 50c Roosevelt Fern, now only 35c.
A beautiful 5-inch 40c Roosevelt Fern, now only 30c.
A large 7-inch $1.00 Scottii Fern, reduced to 50c.
A large 6½-inch 75c Scottii Fern, reduced to 40c.
A large 6-inch 50c Scottii Fern, reduced to 35c.
A large 5½-inch 40c Scottii Fern, reduced to 30c.

And look, to give you an additional chance, we shall give a reduction of 20% on cash with order on everything we have advertised, with the exception of Araucarias.

AZALEA INDICA.

DON'T BE DECEIVED. We are the only reliable importers of Azalea Indica. Our 25 year reputation of importing, selling and shipping should be sufficient proof of our ability. Be up-to-date and go nowhere else for Azaleas but to Godfrey Aschmann.

Our new crop from Belgium is on the road now, and we are able to fill every order, subject to stock being in when orders arrive, and if the stock fails to arrive, we have a big stock of 1913 importation, just as good if not better than the new crop. We have only the leading varieties.

Force Now for Christmas. For Christmas forcing we have: Mme. Petrick, very double pink, one of the best, 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 to $2.00. Vervaeneana, double rose, 50c, 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 to $2.00. Deutsche Perle, double white, 75c, $1.00, $1.50 to $2.00. Simon Mardner, double pink, 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 to $2.00. Vervaeneana Alba, double white, 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 to $2.00.

For Easter Blooming we have: Mme. Vander Cruyssen, best double pink, E. Enckhaute, Hexe, Simon Mardner, Vervaeneana, Niobe, De Schryveriana, Princess of India and other well tested varieties, at 50c, 75c, $1.00, $1.50 to $2.00. We are known to give first-class goods for the money, and always full value without giving measurements. Don't forget that we are Azalea Importers who have no equal.

ARAUCARIA.
OUR SPECIALTY.

WAR ABROAD will make the Araucarias scarce this fall and winter. But look, it won't affect Godfrey Aschmann. Why? We were not afraid to invest thousands of dollars in importing the plants in the spring of 1914, hence we do not care for the war, and are prepared to fill all orders—4 houses are filled with the choice ARAUCARIA EXCELSA. We are again able to fill all orders. 5½ and 6-inch pots, 2, 3, 4, 5 years old, 14, 15, 20 to 25 in. high, well established, 50c, 60c, 75c, $1.00, $1.25 to $1.50. EXCELSA GLAUCA and ROBUSTA COMPACTA, large plants, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 to $2.00.

The Market.

Trade has been fairly steady for the last week. Stock is plentiful and more than enough to go around. The recent warm weather is going to make a glut in chrysanthemums, from all indications. The change in the weather this week will, no doubt, stimulate business. Beauties, roses and carnations are more than enough for the demand. Dahlias and outdoor flowers were available last week.

Illinois Florists Invited.

The members of the Illinois State Florists' Association have been invited to visit the flower show of the Chrysanthemum Society of America and meet with the State Florists' Association of Indiana at Indianapolis, November 6 to 8. The flower show and meetings are to be held at the German House, corner of Massachusetts avenue and Michigan street. Indications point to the best show ever held in Indianapolis. A banquet has been arranged at the Claypool hotel for Friday night, November 6, and a smoker has been arranged for Saturday night. It is earnestly hoped that a large number of our Illinois brothers will meet with us at that time.

Various Notes.

August Grande is showing a fine lot of pot mums, which are finding a good market.

Bertermann Bros. Co. has been quite busy with wedding decorations during the last week.

Hartje & Elder have been cutting large quantities of pompons.

Oliver Steinkamp, secretary of the flower show committee, has been engaged day and night in this work. He says the subscriptions are coming in nicely and indications point to the "best show ever." H. L. W.

The Market.

As a result of the unseasonably warm weather and lack of frost, business has not been of the best. There have been a number of funerals and these always cause a demand for flowers. The decorations for weddings and social functions have not been elaborate and mostly outdoor stock has been used. Dahlias, cosmos, etc., are plentiful.

Various Notes.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Elspermann are expected home soon from several weeks' stay in Chicago. Mrs. Elspermann's sister in Chicago has been quite sick, and she has been at her bedside. The daughter and sons have been busy since their parents have been away.

Louis Fritsch says the demand for cut flowers is getting better each week.

Miss Nellie Goodge has been busy getting her large stock of plants stored in the houses. She has cut large quantities of fine dahlias, etc.

The Wm. Blackman Floral Co. is in splendid shape for anything that comes along. The company is cutting fine mums and roses, and a good number of carnations.

Julius Niednagel & Sons have a nice supply of roses, carnations and mums, for which there is a good demand.

Karl Zeidler goes soon as chef for the hunting party which leaves for the annual trip to Mississippi.

Royston & Fenton are working up a large stock of coleus for wholesale. They have all the best varieties.

Theodore Kuebler is bringing in a large number of mums of fine quality.

W. D. Macer is using a good many mums and carnations. He keeps a good supply on hand at all times.

Paul Schultz, of Vincennes, Ind., was a visitor one day last week and was shown around by C. L. Niednagel, making the trip around to the florists in Mr. Niednagel's car. E. L. F.

PANDANUS VEITCHII

I have about 10,000 pot-grown Pandanus Veitchii, well rooted, nicely variegated, no white ones; plants are grown only from small cuttings from 4 to 6 inches high. This is the best lot of such plants I ever had. Surplus over the requirements of my regular customers.

Special low net price is $80.00 per 1000; 500 at 1000 rate.

For 18 years I have been growing Pandanus Veitchii on a large scale, having standing orders from the largest houses in the country. I have increased my acreage of stock plants so that I now have some surplus over the requirements of my regular customers.

Greenhouse Heating.

A SMALL ILLINOIS HOUSE.

I am about to build a small greenhouse, 21x25, for the purpose of growing bedding plants. The house will run north and south. The south end will be glass and there will be three feet of glass in the sides. The height to the ridge will be about thirteen feet. There will be three benches. Please give me some idea of how to pipe the house so as to maintain a temperature of 65 degrees in this Illinois climate.

J. G. W.

To heat the house described, I would run two 2½-inch flow pipes about two feet under the ridge, to the farther end of the house, where they should drop down and each of them should feed a coil of six 2-inch pipes, running from the middle of the south end to the corners of the house and then along the sides back to the boiler. By using a generator it would be possible to supply both of the coils with one 2½-inch flow pipe, but I would not make any other change.

BOILER CAPACITY UNCERTAIN.

Please let me know how much greenhouse area can be heated by a Henderson Thermo boiler, the fire-box of which is 28x40 inches. I have three greenhouses. Two of them are each 20x80 and the other is 30x100. The two smaller houses are twelve feet high in the center and the larger one is fifteen feet high in the center. The houses run north and south. The smaller houses are south of the boiler shed and the other house is north of the shed. Let me know whether the boiler mentioned will heat the three houses to 50 degrees at night in zero weather. At present I grow only sweet peas, but next August I shall want to plant the houses with carnations. I am located in northeastern New Jersey. How many pipes will be required and of what size? J. G.

Since only the grate area of the boiler is stated, it is not possible to give a definite answer to the question regarding its efficiency for heating the three houses described. I am not familiar with the construction of the boiler mentioned and

Morehead Back to Boiler SYSTEM

The Morehead System does more than drain your steam plant. It feeds the condensation back into the boilers—hot—with the boilers placed on a level with the rest of the steam system in the greenhouse. Feeds the boilers from open or closed heaters, thereby effecting a marked saving in the amount of new feed water required, and at less heating expense. Simple in construction and operation, it requires practically no attention. Our engineers will tell you all the whys—and show how the Morehead way saves you money. The information is free—write for it today.

LET US TELL YOU ABOUT THEM

Mention The Review when you write.

a great deal depends, of course, upon the amount of fire surface and its arrangement. I can only say, therefore, that a boiler with a grate area of 1,120 square inches, and with the usual amount of fire surface, should heat 2,000 square feet of radiating surface, and that some boilers with that grate area have sufficient fire surface to enable them to heat 3,000 feet of radiation economically. The houses 20x80 feet can be heated to 50 degrees with 500 square feet of radiation each, provided the walls are not over five feet high and contain no glass. For the larger house, 30x100, about 900 square feet will be needed, under the same conditions. This makes a total of 1,900 square feet in the three houses, and although it can probably be heated economically with the boiler described, the margin is a rather small one.

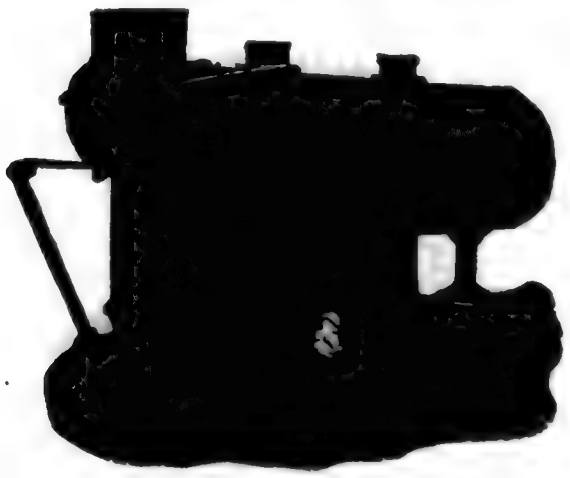
To heat the smaller houses, I would suggest the use either of three 2½-inch flows and six 2-inch returns, or two 2½-inch flows and eight 2-inch returns. For the house 30x100 I would use three 2½-inch flows and ten 2-inch returns. One of the flow pipes should be upon each wall plate, and when three are used the third flow should be two or three feet below the ridge. The returns should be placed on the walls or under the benches. Or, when solid beds are used, the returns may be either in the walks or on the purlin and ridge posts over the beds.

PRESENT PIPING INADEQUATE.



Some time ago I sent to you an inquiry in regard to the piping of my houses, but I did not supply sufficient details and so your reply did not cover the ground just as I wished. The two houses I referred to, each 12x21x110 feet, are enclosed as one; that is, there is no partition between them. The side walls are eight feet high, and the upper half of them is glass. The temperature desired is 65 to 70 degrees in this Pennsylvania climate. I heat with hot water. In one of the houses there are eight 2-inch pipes for the flows and eight pipes of the same diameter for the returns. In the other house there are six flows and six returns, all 2-inch. Will this piping be sufficient to heat the two houses? M. J. C.

In heating the houses described, the use of eight 2-inch returns and the same number of flow pipes should maintain a temperature of 65 degrees in zero weather, but you would not be likely to secure more than 55 degrees with six flows and six returns, unless a circulator of some kind is used or heavy and wasteful firing is practiced.

Instead of piping the houses in the way mentioned, I would advise the use of five 2½-inch flow pipes and twelve 2-inch returns in each house. Place one flow pipe upon each plate, another under the ridge and the others under the purlins. About three of the returns should be on each wall and the others distributed under the benches, or in the walks in case solid beds are used.

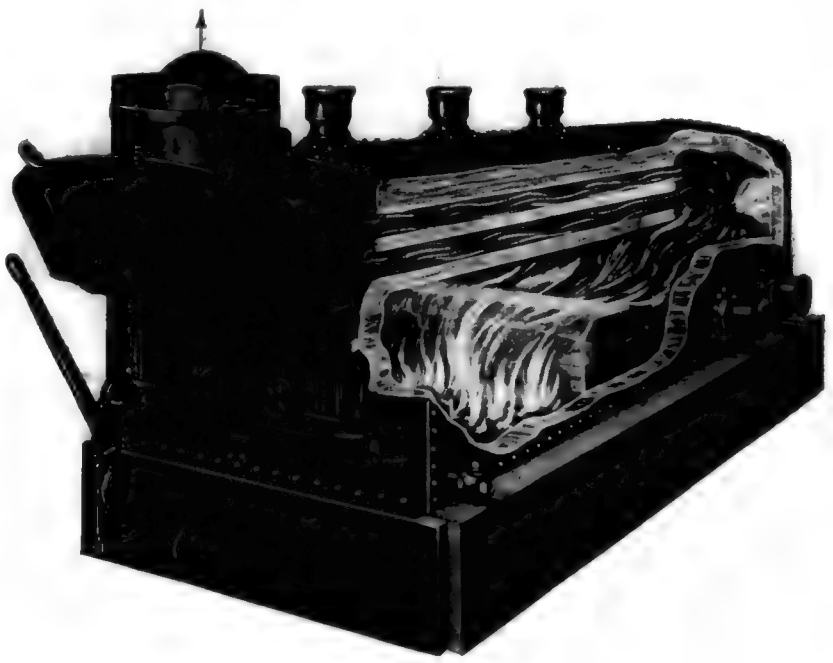
WHEN YOU BUY—GET A KROESCHELL—THE BOILER OF GENUINE EFFICIENCY

Do you want true heating values for your money? Many florists, to their sorrow, have made the mistake of buying cast iron boilers, which, because of their ratings, appeared to be cheaper than the Kroeschell boiler.



The extravagant ratings of cast iron boilers are misleading, and have been the cause of much disappointment and serious trouble to many growers. The fuel waste is enormous when cast iron boilers are used for commercial purposes, such as greenhouse heating.

THE CUSTOMERS' INTEREST FIRST

The customers' interest first—is the basis of the Kroeschell standard, and this principle makes the Kroeschell policy the most liberal of all in the greenhouse boiler business.

The great variety of boilers that we make places us in a commanding position. We make every type of boiler that is used, from the smallest house heater to the largest water tube steam boiler (600 horsepower). For the above reason we can furnish the most efficient boiler unit in every case.

It is the Kroeschell principle to supply only that type of boiler which is best suited to the conditions, and under no circumstances do we take any other stand.

BUY DIRECT—FACTORY TO USER PRICES

Probably you have wondered why the Kroeschell Greenhouse Boiler is not sold by any of the greenhouse construction companies. In justice to all concerned we feel it is our duty to state that the Kroeschell Boiler is never sold by any one but—The KROESCHELL BROS. CO.—We have no agents, and as our prices are based on sales direct from factory to user, we do not quote anyone dealing in boilers special resale prices. Our stand in this matter has brought out a lot of competition; nevertheless, the great efficiency of the Kroeschell Greenhouse Boiler cannot be disputed, and in spite of such competition the Kroeschell Greenhouse Boiler is heating more glass than any other make.

Purlin and Header Used in Our Reconstructed Construction

SPACING the rafters four feet wider apart than in our old standard construction necessitated making the purlins a bit larger. This larger purlin, however, when secured to the rafter by the usual short steel knee, might have a tendency to sag a bit. To prevent even the possibility of such a thing, we designed a special fitting which extends several inches along both under faces of the purlin.

It serves the purposes of both a lug and a brace.

You might think that the larger purlin, with this lug brace, might make the frame look rather heavy. But it doesn't. You see you have a third less rafters, posts and columns, which gives so much lighter an effect that the purlins and lug brace are in perfect proportion to the rest.

The ventilation sash header is placed on top of the purlin and screwed securely to it. The header is grooved to receive the end of the glass, making a tight joint. Drip from the sash is carried off by the header gutter.

The next ad will take up the ridge and truss in our Reconstructed Construction.

The Market.

There was little change in conditions either of the market or weather until the beginning of this week, when cooler weather set in. Last week was a buyers' market. Stock of all kinds was arriving in such quantities that the wholesalers could not afford to lose a sale at any price.

Various Notes.

Tuesday, November 3, will be the next club night. It will be chrysanthemum night, which is always one of the best meetings of the year. There will be some speakers on hand to help entertain the members, and the meeting will close in time to get the election returns.

G. P. Weaklen & Co. last week had a fine lot of work to be delivered in Chester, Pa., including a blanket, which contained 30,000 violets, 150 cattleyas and 500 valley, and a number of wreaths of valley, orchids and roses. Mr. Weaklen made the delivery and then went to Philadelphia and New York looking up novelties for this winter.

The A. W. Smith Co. has taken advantage of the immense quantities of flowers to offer customers extraordinary values in special dollar boxes. The company reports that the sales were phenomenal for this season.

Ray Daschbach has been making special shows of cattleyas in his window during the last week. His new store is most attractive, and as it is in a new flower district, it will be watched with some interest. It is in the office and banking district.

The McCallum Co. put a Ford truck on the street last week.

The Ludwig Floral Co. had a truckload of funeral designs for one funeral in East Liverpool, O., last week. The company delivered them with its own truck.

Charles Peterson, of East Liverpool, O., had a number of large designs for the funeral of Col. Taylor last week.

The Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co. is cutting immense quantities of fine long-stemmed roses and the carnation houses are in finer shape than ever before at this season of the year. Clarke.

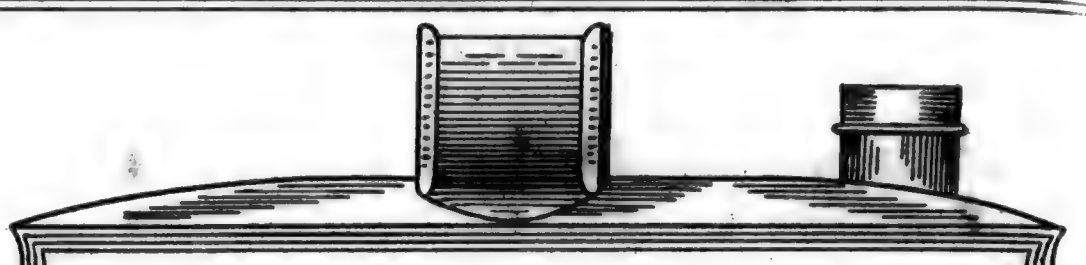
The Market.

Trade on the whole is not quite as brisk as many of us would like to see it. Still, with the advent of cooler weather, which has at last come, no doubt business will pick up. There have been numerous weddings so far this month, which called for considerable stock. A heavy frost Saturday night, October 24, put a crimp in the dahlia crop, and with these out of the way and all outdoor stock practically at an end, mums will move better. Plenty of good quality mums are available, both in large and medium varieties and in pompons. Many fine mum plants in pots are now appearing, the pompon kinds being the most popular for this purpose. Carnations have been a drug and any number of good blooms are available at $1 per hundred or less. Many of the stores featured carnation sales the latter part of last week, especially on Saturday, when J. Breitmeyer's Sons and J. F. Sullivan advertised them at 25 cents per dozen.

Various Notes.



J. Breitmeyer's Sons have been having week-end exhibits, the one advertised for last Saturday, October 24, being a carnation exhibit. The week before ferns were shown.

J. F. Sullivan left for New York Tuesday, October 20, to be absent about ten days. While east he will make arrangements with the violet growers along the Hudson for this season's violets.

The Flower Shop, on East Grand River avenue, conducted by the two Herman Klagges, put in a handsome new refrigerator last week and made other minor improvements.

The Delray Flower Shop, at 2270 Jefferson avenue, west, which is owned by Mrs. George H. Andrews, has been reopened for business. Mrs. Andrews recently met with an accident to her arm and had to close her place of business temporarily, but all is running smoothly now, and with a nice stock on hand, she will no doubt do a good business. H. S.

Eau Claire, Wis.—A. Lauritzen will open a salesroom at 110 Grand avenue, west.

BRAMPTON, ONT.

Abnormal weather conditions still prevail, and up to the present we have had no sign of frost. It is many years since we have had such a mild October in this locality, and the quantity of outdoor flowers still coming makes it difficult for florists to settle down to solid business of a really profitable nature.

The annual horticultural exhibition was due to be held in Toronto, beginning November 10, but the latest information is to the effect that, owing to the Canadian exhibition buildings being occupied by the different regiments that are to go to the war, there will be no room for the show this year. Despite the fact that no prizes were to be given at this season's show, growers were all looking forward to exhibiting their stock, which, generally speaking, is somewhat ahead of last year.

W. E. Calvert is still busy on the extensions to his premises. In addition to the 400-foot house, which already has been planted with violets, he is building a most convenient boiler room, packing shed, store room and office.

A. A. Elliott is now established in his new greenhouse, with a well advanced crop of sweet peas. He intends to specialize in these flowers during the coming season.

R. Jennings is growing some extra fine violets.

Mark Henderson has some excellent carnations and mums on the market.

At the Dale Estate everything is in good shape, especially in the coal shed, where an appreciable saving is being felt; in fact, through this weather practically a whole month's coal has been saved. Unfortunately, this saving is offset somewhat by the fact that the winter's shipment of immortelles was entirely lost in the fire on the steamer in New York harbor early in the month. The water case, Norfolk vs. Dale Estate, which has been dragging through the courts during the last three years and has been appealed for the fourth time, has finally been decided by the Supreme court, which has ordered the appeal made by Norfolk's counsel to be dismissed, and the costs, amounting to nearly $3,000, to be paid by the appellant. E. Dale is gradually recovering from an operation for appendicitis, performed a fortnight ago. W. G. P.

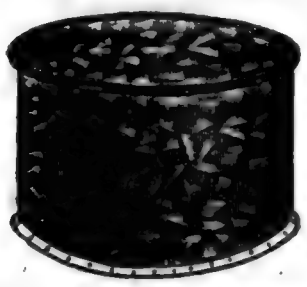
MILWAUKEE.

The Market.

Business in general is little better than it was last week. The weather has been warm, with an abundance of sunshine. Toward the end of the week it was a little cooler and this encouraged the trade to buy more heavily. The first frost of the season is yet to come and outdoor stock is still keeping good greenhouse-grown flowers below normal for this time of year. The formal opening of the large new Northwestern Life Insurance building, which took place last week, created a market for a large quantity of chrysanthemums and Beauties. Such occurrences as this help the trade to withstand the general business depression.

Roses are in excellent supply and the quality is exceptionally good. The demand is steady and the entire cut is selling well. Some fine Russells are being disposed of at attractive prices. Carnations are of excellent quality and are in good supply, but they are not bringing the prices they should at this season of the year. Mums are plentiful, owing to the warm days of last week, and the quality and growth have improved wonderfully since bright weather set in. Violets are steadily improving and they are coming in more heavily every day. Lilies are not so plentiful as heretofore. This is largely due to the mum season, as growers are not forcing this stock as much as usual while the mums are with us. Valley is about equal to the demand. Some of the cut is good and there is plenty to go around. Dahlias are still seen in the market and they are beautiful, but every legitimate florist is praying that the frost will get in its good work on them soon.



Various Notes.

C. Andrews, of the Boston Candy Co., St. Paul, Minn., visited the trade here October 21. He was returning from Chicago, where he had been on business.

F. Choles, of the New York Florists, Madison, Wis., was in this city October 22 and 23.

Emil Buettner, of Park Ridge, Ill., visited Milwaukee October 23 and 24. In the course of his visit he inspected the establishments of the C. C. Pollworth Co. and the Holton & Hunkel Co.

ASSOCIATION OF GARDENERS.

The national coöperative committee, appointed at the meeting of the National Association of Gardeners held in Philadelphia in April, 1914, to devise ways and means to make the proposed coöperative movement between the national association and local gardeners' clubs and societies operative, submits to the local coöperative committees, appointed to work in conjunction with the national coöperative committee, the prime objects of the movement, which are as follows:

To establish gardening as a profession on a more firm foundation in America.

To develop a closer fraternity between those engaged in the profession of gardening and those interested in it.

To make known that the vocation of gardening is not acquired through one or two seasons of work in the garden, but through a thorough training, which demands both a practical and scientific knowledge gained only through years of study.

To provide an educational course whereby those ambitious to gain a general knowledge of the different departments of their profession, and not in circumstances to secure it at college, may obtain it through their national association.

To make the service bureau of the National Association of Gardeners an institution to which those requiring the service of gardeners in their various capacities will turn with confidence for their requirements.

To encourage an exchange of views and the disseminating of reports of the doings and activities of the various local societies, whereby the experience of one society may aid in the development of the other societies.

To bring about more uniform conditions to govern flower shows, through the adoption of rules and regulations and an official scale of points for judging flowers, fruits and vegetables by the various horticultural societies; which could be applied to all shows conducted by clubs and societies participating in the coöperative movement.

To arouse the interest of estate owners, and others interested in gardening, in the activities of the local societies and the national association.

The foregoing are a few suggestions of what the plan contemplates. The national committee recommends that the local committees submit these suggestions as a subject for general discussion at a meeting of their society, with a view of bringing out some thoughts which may aid the cause. It especially solicits suggestions and expressions of sentiment respecting the proposed establishment of flower shows on a uniform basis by the adoption of standard rules and regulations and a schedule of points for judging, to govern them.

It seeks advice on the establishment of an educational department for the benefit of those who may want to avail themselves of study courses, and suggestions on how the service bureau may be conducted to provide opportunities for the many rather than for the few. It should be national in scope, yet local in operation, in that the local societies shall have a voice in the filling of positions in their communities.

The national committee asks that the local coöperative committees report to it any recommendations their societies may have to offer; also any suggestions the local committees may deem will further the movement. Make such reports not later than the middle of November to M. C. Ebel, secretary, Madison, N. J., so that the national committee may submit its plans at the annual convention to be held in Philadelphia the first week in December.

J. W. Everitt,
James Stuart,

That Turning Union

MORE ABOUT ITS ADVANTAGES

LET'S see; it was just before the Boston Convention that we told you about our improvements on the Turning Union and how we had entirely overcome any tendency of leaks, at the point where the short piece of brass pipe is connected from the supply pipe into the shoulder of the union. We told you then how we had made the shoulder considerably longer, so no matter what sags there might be in the line, this brass pipe with its flanged end would always fit snug and tight against the packing, allowing the union to turn freely, but not leak.

We also told you that we are now making this shoulder with six square faces so you can get a grip on it with monkey wrench when you want to disconnect it.

Now a word of explanation about our strainer in this same Union. It is shaped like a finely perforated funnel with the point extending directly toward the supply pipe. This conical shaped strainer not only gives a much larger straining surface than a flat one, but it is much less likely to clog. The force of the water strikes the strainer at a decided angle which keeps washing clogging materials from the point and sides toward the back of the union, where they are held. The globe of the union is sometimes filled completely up to the level of the strainer before the strainer is clogged, while if the force of the water struck at a less angle, the tendency would be to hold sediment tight against its face or drive it through. A strainer that clogs easily soon becomes a clogger instead of a strainer.

This Skinner System strainer strains more and clogs less than any strainer we know anything about.

We will send you a 50-foot complete Portable Line all ready, with nozzles in pipe, Quick Detachable Connections, and Turning Union for so little a price as $11.75. Freight paid east of the Mississippi. State whether you want greenhouse or outdoor nozzles—or both.

SKINNER SYSTEM OF IRRIGATION.
THE SKINNER IRRIGATION CO., TROY, OHIO

Weilersville, O.—John Yoder is erecting an addition, 80x125 feet, at his range southwest of town. This will make the establishment a third larger than it is at present.

Scottdale, Pa.—W. C. Myers & Sons are building an additional house, seventy-two feet long, in which they will grow carnations. This firm expects also to devote more space to rooted cuttings, in order to meet the demands of their increasing trade.

Uniontown, Pa.—Stenson & McGrail have opened a downtown store, at 11 West Main street, where they will retail the stock from their greenhouses.

North Milwaukee, Wis.—The Kamp & Spinti Floral Co. is growing pot plants in its two new 150-foot greenhouses on Hampton road. Both members of the firm are experienced in their line, and with the firm's up-to-date equipment and excellent shipping facilities, they should meet with success.

THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

THE AUTUMN SHOWS HAVE BEGUN

The fall flower shows are on and are showing continued advance in quality of stock and attractiveness of arrangement. The season is one of abundance in cut flower markets, so that commercial growers can well afford to make the most of this best of all opportunities to attract the favorable attention of the flower-buying public.

NEW YORK.

Horticultural Society's Exhibition.

Friday evening, October 30, was held the opening of the 5-day chrysanthemum exhibition of the Horticultural Society of New York. The attendance gave promise of a record, as 3,500 more were present than on the opening night a year ago, when the total visitors for the entire show aggregated nearly 150,000. The show itself, in quantity, was below that of a year ago, but in quality it could not be surpassed.

The beautiful arrangement of the large bush mums and the rose novelties at the grand entrance of the museum was the first attractive feature to greet the eyes of the visitors. The immense mum plants were perfect, and the grower, John Canning, was the recipient of many congratulations. The plants were purchased by C. C. Trepel for exhibition at his various headquarters in the department stores.

Prominent Exhibits.

The orchid display was exceptionally attractive and complete. Lager & Hurrell, in their artistic bank, used 112 plants in sixty-eight varieties, and their Vanda Arachnarite, from Borneo, was the crowning novelty. The Julius Roehrs Co., Jos. Manda and J. P. Mossman exhibits were also magnificent, including many valuable novelties.

A. N. Pierson's exhibits of the new roses, Mrs. Moorfield Storey and Francis Scott Key, were much admired. The varieties of the bush mums were Graystone, which won the sweepstake prize, Wells' Late, R. F. Felton and Lady Lydia. F. R. Pierson's fern display was as diversified and perfect as usual. Bobbink & Atkins added greatly to the artistic completeness of the decorations, with fine bay trees, evergreens and English ivy.

John Lewis Childs showed his new celosia, Wool Flower, from China, a decided novelty. Max Schneider's Glory of Seven Oaks display, in pots, was equal to that of 1913. Wm. Tricker exhibited his new hybrid perpetual flowering water lilies and his hardy mum seedling, Arlington. Chas. H. Totty's many exhibits were grand, varied and in keeping with his national reputation.

Dahlia novelties were shown by the Manetto Hill Nurseries, of Hicksville, N. Y. Ophelia, as shown by A. A. McDonald, of Duke's Farm, was superb. Head's Bergenfield Nurseries had a large and fine assortment of pompons, as did P. W. Popp, of Mamaroneck, N. Y.

Max Schling had an exhibit, consisting of several fine baskets of chrysanthemums.

John Young was the efficient manager of the exhibition.

The Awards.

All of the prizes for chrysanthemum plants, except in the class for plants in less than 14-inch pots, were taken by John Canning, gardener for Adolph Lewisohn, Ardsley, N. Y., including the sweepstakes cup. The awards to commercial growers for cut blooms were:

Twelve white—C. H. Totty, Madison, N. J., first; Thos. W. Head, Bergenfield, N. J., second

PHILADELPHIA.

The annual fall show of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society opened in Horticultural hall November 3. It is a fine display, especially of chrysanthemum plants and cut blooms. A curious feature is the predominance of white. Possibly the variety William Turner has something to do with this. The Turners are fine, but there are lots of other good whites, so that it is a show of silver and green, with relieving bunches of color everywhere.

The show piece in the center of the hall is a wonderful cork bark tree arranged by William Kleinheinz, with heavily flowered oncidiums above and gorgeous cattleyas beneath, with choice ferns and electric lights galore. It reaches to the chandelier and is, indeed, the center of attraction.

The stage was filled by Henry A. Dreer, with a choice selection of stove and foliage plants beautifully arranged. Phœnix Roebelenii, Cocos Weddelliana, Pandanus Veitchii and many more are there in perfect form. Louis Burke brought his case of rare orchids and his orchid picture. Opposite him W. Atlee Burpee & Co. have a display of gladioli, about 150 blooms in a dozen varieties, and pompon chrysanthemums. Just think of it! Gladioli from seed sown this year and one week after a killing frost! They do things at Fordhook.

Dracæna Lowgii, a green and white stemmed and foliaged plant of extraordinary marking, is the foliage plant sensation of the show, while in chrysanthemums D. B. Crane is shown in great form; two plants in perhaps 15-inch pots, not over three feet high, six feet spread and carrying over 100 good sized blooms, are a treat to see.

Downstairs Philip Freud staged an elaborate display for Henry F. Michell Co. It included an arbor, with plants, flowers, bulbs and an aquarium. Opposite him John S. Hay had a novel exhibit for Henry A. Dreer, Inc. Hosea Waterer and Thomas Meehan & Sons also have attractive displays.

The stairway is extremely handsome, with groups of showy blooms and autumn foliage.

H. E. Michell Co. also has a fine collection of choice pompons. Last but far from least in this brief description, Edward A. Stroud, of Strafford Flower Farms, staged a Japanese garden of pompon, single and anemone-flowered chrysanthemums. The gem of the collection is a novelty, Strafford, a cross between Old Gold and Charles Razer. Phil.

MADISON, N. J.

Flower Show.

The nineteenth annual flower show of the Morris County Gardeners' and Florists' Society was held in the Assembly hall, October 28 and 29. The heavy wind and cold weather of the day previous to the opening of the show interfered with the exhibits somewhat, but, taken on the whole, it was equal to, if not a little better than, other years in the quality of stock displayed. The rose entries were particularly good, as were also the mum classes. The stage was, as usual, beautifully decorated by Charles H. Totty, of Madison, N. J., with a large collection of pompons and single mums.

In mums the spectacular vase of the exhibition was Bob Pulling, a magnificent deep yellow, staged by Wm. Duckham, Madison, N. J. This variety, which is evidently "the variety of the year," captivated everyone and will undoubtedly be heard of in future exhibitions. He also had splendid flowers of Mrs. R. C. Pulling and Mrs. G. Lloyd Wigg. The twenty-four flowers of twenty-four varieties staged by Wm. Duckham were as follows: Onunda, Mrs. Lopes, Bob Pulling, Hopetoun, Rowland Hill, Nakota, Mrs. D. Syme, F. S. Vallis, Mrs. R. C. Pulling, Pres. Viger, Jas. Fraser, Beatrice May, Mrs. G. C. Kelly, Wm. Trafford, Master Rex, Mrs. H. Stevens, Loiseau Rousseau, Daily Mail, Mrs. H. J. Jones, Mrs. G. Lloyd Wigg, Pockett's Crimson, H. E. Converse, J. Lock and Joan Stratton.

Robt. Spiers, superintendent of the Model Farm Gardens, at Dalton, Mass., who captured the Hitchings silver cup, had as his twelve flowers: Wm. Turner, Harry Converse, Mrs. H. Stevens, Mrs. Lopes, Beatrice May, Mrs. J. C. Neill, Mrs. G. Drexel, Mrs. G. Lloyd Wigg, Mary Mason, Gladys Blackburn, Pockett's Crimson and Mrs. Crane.

John Downing, superintendent for Dr. McAlpin, Morris Plains, N. J., staged excellent flowers of Reginald Vallis, Wm. Turner, Beatrice May, Pockett's Crimson and Harry Converse. It was a little early for Wm. Turner to be at its best, but John Downing and Percy Whitney certainly had it in excellent condition.

In the commercial classes, C. H. Totty exhibited Mrs. Ernest Wild, A. Baldwin, Antigone, the two latter being new varieties, and Mrs. W. E. Tricker. The class calling for five flowers of any variety never before exhibited was won by Mr. Totty with Mrs. J. Purroy Mitchell.

Ernest Wild, superintendent for C. W. Harkness, Madison, N. J., had as his best flowers Mrs. G. Lloyd Wigg, Pockett's Crimson, D. B. Crane and Lady Hopetoun.

In the rose classes, Shawyer was shown in excellent condition, some exhibitors staging it with stems six feet long. Sunburst captured everything in yellows. The class for novelty roses was won by C. H. Totty with White Shawyer. Other novelties shown by this same exhibitor were Mrs. F. F. Thompson, the shell-pink sport of Shawyer, and September Morn.

In carnations the finest vase on exhibition was Princess Dagmar from the Mrs. D. Willis James estate. Other varieties shown in good condition were Enchantress Supreme, Matchless, White Wonder and Cheney. The only carnation novelty exhibited was Laura Weber, a new light pink, exhibited by Chas. Weber, of Lynbrook, N. Y.

In the table decorations Wm. Duckham scored first; John Downing, second, and Robert Tyson, third. These were judged on the second day by a committee of patronesses and were the means of drawing a large attendance. The attendance this year exceeded that of all previous years.

The judges were John Canning, of Ardsley, N. Y.; Aleck McKenzie, of Garrison, N. Y.; Eugene Dailledouze, of Flatbush, N. Y., and John T. Burns, of New Canaan, Conn.

Among the prize-winning commercial growers were Chas. H. Totty, who took half a dozen blue ribbons in the chrysanthemum classes and half that number in the rose classes; Wm. Mulmichael, superintendent for Chas. A. Work, Madison, N. J., who also took prizes in both sections; Louis A. Noe, of Madison, N. J.; the L. M. Noe Estate, Madison, N. J.; L. B. Coddington, of Murray Hill, N. J.; Harry O. May, of Summit, N. J.; Wagner Greenhouses, of Chatham, N. J.; Madison Cut Flower Co., of Madison, N. J.; Chatham Rose Co., of Chatham, N. J., and W. H. Barton, of Madison, N. J., who were largely represented in the rose classes; John Heeremans, of Princeton, N. J., and G. F. Neipp, of Chatham, N. J., who made exhibits in the carnation classes.

The leading prize-winners among the private gardeners were Wm. Duckham, superintendent for Mrs. D. Willis James, Madison, N. J.; Ernest Wild, for C. W. Harkness, Madison, N. J.; James Fraser, for O. H. Kahn, Morristown, N. J.; Percy Whitney, for Mrs. G. E. Kissel; John Downing, for Dr. McAlpin, Morris Plains, N. J.; Robert Spiers, of the Model Farm Gardens, Dalton, Mass.; W. R. Fowkes, superintendent for Howard Cole, Madison, N. J.; Peter Duff, for Mrs. J. Crosby Brown, Orange, N. J.; David Hawkins, for C. W. McAlpin, Morristown, N. J.; John Everitt, for J. T. Pratt, Glen Cove, N. Y.; H. Honeyman, for Percy Chubb, Glen Cove, N. Y.; David S. Miller, for C. G. Mason, Tuxedo Park, N. Y.; Wm. Reid, for Sydney and Austen Colgate, Orange, N. J.; Thomas Page, for Wm. Hall Walker, Great Barrington, Mass.; Louis Burkman, for C. B. Alexander, Mendham, N. J.; John F. Anderson, for W. H. Hammond, Bernardsville, N. J.; Max Schneider, for Peter Hauck, Jr., East Orange, N. J., and David Francis, for Mrs. Paul Moore, Convent, N. J.

DUTCH BULBS

Preparing the Ground.

All the Dutch bulbs which are wanted for forcing purposes were in the soil some time ago; or, if they were not, they should have been. The planting of bulbs outdoors cannot conveniently be done so early and the month of November is suitable for this work. As a large part of the bulbs are used to follow tender bedding plants, and as many of these have lasted surprisingly late this season, the bulb planting is somewhat delayed. I have always found, however, that splendid success is attained from plantings made to November 20 or even later. It is always an advantage to have the ground moderately moist and these conditions did not exist over a wide stretch of country until a short time ago.

To have good success with outdoor bulbs, be sure to spade the beds deeply and work in some old, decayed manure, but be sure it is well rotted or it will prove more harmful than helpful. Pulverize the soil well and, if it is naturally stiff and retentive, work in a good coating of sharp sand, fine coal ashes or some other gritty material.

Depth to Plant.

Plant hyacinths and the larger bulbed narcissi, such as Emperor, Sir Watkin, Victoria, etc., five inches deep, the bulk of other narcissi and all tulips four inches deep, and small bulbed varieties, such as snowdrops, crocus, scillas, chionodoxas and winter aconites, three inches. Spanish and English iris should be covered four inches, but the planting of these is better if left until the last, as they commence to grow quite early.

There is an ample supply of bulbs in the country this fall and the quality is unusually good. The troublous times in Europe have reduced the demand there enormously, but the call here appears to be unusually good. Bulbs have a strong fascination, coming into bloom so early in the year, and it is no wonder that their popularity increases. They are all hardy, of easy culture and, in many cases, are even better the second than the first year. Here is a branch which florists can easily develop tremendously and, as the work comes in the fall, when our energies are not overtaxed as they so often are in the bedding-out season, we should use all legitimate means to encourage bulb planting.

Tulips and Hyacinths.

The bulbs for bedding purposes are usually confined to tulips and hyacinths. The latter are, if anything, less planted out than a decade ago, while the number of tulips shows a tremendous increase. Hyacinths are effective when grown in masses, with the colors carefully harmonized. They are undesirable when planted in mixtures, while mixed tulips are quite pleasing. Tulips and hyacinths should not be planted in the same beds. If no regular flower beds are at disposal and there is a mixed border used for hardy perennials and annuals, this is the ideal place for batches of bulbs, which should be scattered irregularly over the full width of the border.

Tulips are most effective in beds of one variety. Of course it is a simple matter to quarter circular beds to make square beds of one color with a thick band of some other color for a bordering. Pink and white, scarlet and white, and scarlet and yellow make excellent color combinations, but the solid bed is far and away the best. However, for the customer of moderate means a bed of well mixed single tulips will give the maximum of pleasure at the minimum of cost.

Natural Planting in Grass.

While bulbous plants in more or less formally planted beds are attractive, I would make a strong plea for the natural planting of many varieties in grass on the margins of stream or pond, or in woodlands. Do not set them out on lawns which are to be closely mowed, for even crocus, scillas and other small, early blooming bulbs must be allowed to ripen their foliage off, or they will flower disappointingly the following year. Use no formality when naturalizing bulbs; spread them around with the hand and plant them where they fall.

A few of the best bedding tulips are White Joost van Vondel, White Pottebakker, Pink Beauty, Queen of the Netherlands, Chrysolora, Ophir d'Or, Keizerskroon, Vermilion Brilliant, Cottage Maid, Proserpine, Prince of Austria and Couleur Cardinal. For individual beds the following are grand: Proserpine, Keizerskroon, Pink Beauty, Prince of Austria, White Pottebakker and Chrysolora.

Late Tulips.

Do not overlook the late tulips. These are the coming favorites, as is evidenced by the immensely increased sales of late years. It is astonishing that so far nearly all our parks and public gardens have practically ignored this class. They are later flowering than the regular bedding tulips, taller growing, and embrace a wonderful range of colors. For cutting they are incomparably superior to the early section. Here are a few good sorts which are inexpensive: Darwins — Clara Butt, Gretchen, King Harold, Mme. Krelage, La Candeur and Pride of Haarlem. May flowering or cottage tulips—Picotee, Bouton d'Or, Gesneriana spathulata, Gesneriana lutea, Golden Crown, Inglescombe Pink, White Swan and Leghorn Bonnet.

Narcissi.

The narcissi are better adapted for planting in clumps or as bordering along the mixed borders or shrubberies, being also splendid for naturalizing purposes, as they are at their best in grass land. For formal beds such robust sorts as Sir Watkin, Emperor, Victoria, Princeps maximus, Golden Spur and Henry Irving should be used. In grass land the short trumpet section are the most effective. Such sorts as poeticus, poeticus ornatus, all the Leedsii varieties, particularly Mrs. Langtry and Duchess of Brabant, and all the incomparabilis and Burbidgei sections can be used. Of the large trumpets I have found that Emperor, princeps maximus and Empress wear particularly well, although the bulk of the big trumpet narcissi are less hardy than the short trumpets.

Small Bulbs for Borders.

In the way of small bulbs for borders, beds or grass, the snowdrop, crocus, chionodoxa and scilla should be freely used. These all come ahead of the tulips, often before the winter snows have passed. Plant a few of the grape hyacinths, or Muscari racemosum, in the grass, and if you have a partly shaded position try even a few dozens of white fritillarias, Scilla campanulata or dog's-tooth violets, or erythroniums.

While catering to his customers' needs, the progressive florist will not neglect his own home grounds. There a bed or border tastefully planted will brighten his own home, serve as an excellent advertisement and bring additional customers for another season.

FIBER FOR BULBS.

In the Woman's Home Companion for October we notice an article concerning the forcing of Paper Whites and other varieties of narcissi, Dutch hyacinths, freesias, crocus, etc., and the writer suggests growing these bulbs in a composition of cocoanut fiber, shells and commercial fertilizer. The writer says this mixture is not patented, but is put up by most of the leading seedsmen and sold at a low price, and recommends growing bulbs in this way. We have had some inquiries for this mixture and, since we are not familiar with it, are writing to ask if you know of anything of this kind being used and if so, will you give us the proper formula for making it? Also tell us where cocoanut fiber can be obtained and state the kind of fertilizer to be used. T. S. S. C.

Cocoanut fiber is sold in 100-pound bags and can be purchased from the majority of the large seed stores; it is quite inexpensive. I would add six quarts of broken shells and the same of dried cattle or sheep manure to each bushel of the fiber. The animal manures you will find much safer and better than bone or chemical fertilizers. It is well to remember that many articles appearing in other than horticultural magazines must not be taken too seriously. They are all written with the best of intentions, but the writers, in many cases, have but a limited knowledge of horticulture. If they knew more they would not advise mixing commercial fertilizer with fiber for bulb growing. It is well to add that while bulbs can be grown in fiber, loam will give far better results. C. W.

PROTECTING PAPER WHITES.

Will you kindly inform me how much protection to give Paper White narcissi if they are put in flats and left out this winter in this Illinois climate? I want to fix them so I can get two or three flats any time I want them.

F. L. H.

While the Dutch hyacinths, tulips and narcissi can be left outdoors and will be perfectly safe when well protected, it is well to remember that Paper White narcissi are much more tender and I would not advise you to try to keep them out in your climate. Give them the protection of a cold-frame or cold cellar. You can then get at them readily and you are reasonably certain that they will not be injured by frost, as they certainly will be if they are left in the open, no matter how well you may cover them.

MARKETABLE HARDY FLOWERS.

Will you kindly give some suggestions as to marketable hardy flowers which may be grown here, in western Kentucky, and which will bring fair prices in the wholesale market? If you were to select about four to six of the best commercial varieties of jonquils and narcissi for outdoor growing, which would they be? Also what four kinds of peonies are the all-round, easiest sellers and the most profitable? Will you also tell me where to procure the necessary shipping baskets for these flowers and state what sizes are most desirable? If you will answer these questions, you will greatly oblige a beginner in the trade. A. F.

As to the most profitable varieties of narcissi and jonquils to grow outdoors for the wholesale cut flower market, there is only one true jonquil that would probably prove profitable; that is, the campernelle, variety odorus rugulosus. There seem to be two varieties of this sent out from Holland, the true rugulosus being much larger than the other and grown on longer stems. The first cost of the bulbs is slight and they increase more rapidly in this country than any other narcissus of which I know.

Of the trumpet daffodils, Emperor, Empress and Sir Watkin are the three varieties that will prove the most profitable, all things considered. Emperor and Sir Watkin are rather better, possibly, than Empress, because of color, and also because Empress is more subject to disease. As soon as Glory of Leiden can be bought as low as $3 or $4 per hundred, it should prove the most profitable of all, for it seems to

Preparing the Ground.

All the Dutch bulbs which are wanted for forcing purposes were in the soil some time ago; or, if they were not, they should have been. The planting of bulbs outdoors cannot conveniently be done so early and the month of November is suitable for this work. As a large part of the bulbs are used to follow tender bedding plants, and as many of these have lasted surprisingly late this season, the bulb planting is somewhat delayed. I have always found, however, that splendid success is attained from plantings made to November 20 or even later. It is always an advantage to have the ground moderately moist and these conditions did not exist over a wide stretch of country until a short time ago.

To have good success with outdoor bulbs, be sure to spade the beds deeply and work in some old, decayed manure, but be sure it is well rotted or it will prove more harmful than helpful. Pulverize the soil well and, if it is naturally stiff and retentive, work in a good coating of sharp sand, fine coal ashes or some other gritty material.

Depth to Plant.

Plant hyacinths and the larger bulbed narcissi, such as Emperor, Sir Watkin, Victoria, etc., five inches deep, the bulk of other narcissi and all tulips four inches deep, and small bulbed varieties, such as snowdrops, crocus, scillas, chionodoxas and winter aconites, three inches. Spanish and English iris should be covered four inches, but the planting of these is better if left until the last, as they commence to grow quite early.

There is an ample supply of bulbs in the country this fall and the quality is unusually good. The troublous times in Europe have reduced the demand there enormously, but the call here appears to be unusually good. Bulbs have a strong fascination, coming into bloom so early in the year, and it is no wonder that their popularity increases. They are all hardy, of easy culture and, in many cases, are even better the second than the first year. Here is a branch which florists can easily develop tremendously and, as the work comes in the fall, when our energies are not overtaxed as they so often are in the bedding-out season, we should use all legitimate means to encourage bulb planting.

Tulips and Hyacinths.

The bulbs for bedding purposes are usually confined to tulips and hyacinths. The latter are, if anything, less planted out than a decade ago, while the number of tulips shows a tremendous increase. Hyacinths are effective when grown in masses, with the colors carefully harmonized. They are undesirable when planted in mixtures, while mixed tulips are quite pleasing. Tulips and hyacinths should not be planted in the same beds. If no regular flower beds are at disposal and there is a mixed border used for hardy perennials and annuals, this is the ideal place for batches of bulbs, which should be scattered irregularly over the full width of the border.

Tulips are most effective in beds of one variety. Of course it is a simple matter to quarter circular beds to make square beds of one color with a thick band of some other color for a bordering. Pink and white, scarlet and white, and scarlet and yellow make excellent color combinations, but the solid bed is far and away the best. However, for the customer of moderate means a bed of well mixed single tulips will give the maximum of pleasure at the minimum of cost.

Natural Planting in Grass.

While bulbous plants in more or less formally planted beds are attractive, I would make a strong plea for the natural planting of many varieties in grass on the margins of stream or pond, or in woodlands. Do not set them out on lawns which are to be closely mowed, for even crocus, scillas and other small, early blooming bulbs must be allowed to ripen their foliage off, or they will flower disappointingly the following year. Use no formality when naturalizing bulbs; spread them around with the hand and plant them where they fall.

A few of the best bedding tulips are White Joost van Vondel, White Pottebakker, Pink Beauty, Queen of the Netherlands, Chrysolora, Ophir d'Or, Keizerskroon, Vermilion Brilliant, Cottage Maid, Proserpine, Prince of Austria and Couleur Cardinal. For individual beds the following are grand: Proserpine, Keizerskroon, Pink Beauty, Prince of Austria, White Pottebakker and Chrysolora.

Late Tulips.

Do not overlook the late tulips. These are the coming favorites, as is evidenced by the immensely increased sales of late years. It is astonishing that so far nearly all our parks and public gardens have practically ignored this class. They are later flowering than the regular bedding tulips, taller growing, and embrace a wonderful range of colors. For cutting they are incomparably superior to the early section. Here are a few good sorts which are inexpensive: Darwins — Clara Butt, Gretchen, King Harold, Mme. Krelage, La Candeur and Pride of Haarlem. May flowering or cottage tulips—Picotee, Bouton d'Or, Gesneriana spathulata, Gesneriana lutea, Golden Crown, Inglescombe Pink, White Swan and Leghorn Bonnet.

Narcissi.

The narcissi are better adapted for planting in clumps or as bordering along the mixed borders or shrubberies, being also splendid for naturalizing purposes, as they are at their best in grass land. For formal beds such robust sorts as Sir Watkin, Emperor, Victoria, Princeps maximus, Golden Spur and Henry Irving should be used. In grass land the short trumpet section are the most effective. Such sorts as poeticus, poeticus ornatus, all the Leedsii varieties, particularly Mrs. Langtry and Duchess of Brabant, and all the incomparabilis and Burbidgei sections can be used. Of the large trumpets I have found that Emperor, princeps maximus and Empress wear particularly well, although the bulk of the big trumpet narcissi are less hardy than the short trumpets.

be robust and certainly produces a much larger and finer flower than any of the others.

When there is a demand for the light, airy varieties, or for extra early ones, Narcissus incomparabilis Stella, Leedsii type, Duchess of Brabant and Mrs. Langtry are profitable. Barrii conspicuus can be bought cheaply, blooms freely, and usually finds a ready sale, though none of this latter class brings as high a price in most markets as the trumpet daffodils. Of the poeticus narcissi, N. poeticus ornatus and King Edward VII are the most profitable. The latter variety is high priced, but, where the market will pay for extra quality, is worth the difference.

It is difficult to name the four best peonies, but undoubtedly P. festiva maxima and Queen Victoria in white, Felix Crousse and Francois Ortegat in red, are as good as any. There are many good pinks of about equal value; P. edulis superba and rosea superba are the two varieties that are perhaps most widely grown, though Modeste Guerin is better than the latter.

Shippers here, in northern Tennessee, usually do not ship in baskets at all, but in good, clean boxes, well lined with paper. The blooms are carefully packed and held in place by means of wooden cleats, nailed over the stems in such a way as to hold them down firmly and yet not bruise them. Generally these cleats are put in over every layer of blooms. F. B.

GEORGE RYE'S PRIZE-WINNERS.

At the Arkansas-Oklahoma interstate fair, held at Fort Smith, Ark., October 12 to 17, George Rye, of that city, gathered in a number of blue ribbons in the flower department, of which he was superintendent. The flowers with which these prizes were won were sent to Mr. Rye by the Stuppy Floral Co., of St. Joseph, Mo. Some of his entries are shown in the accompanying illustration. The classes in which he carried off first prizes were: Best and most artistically arranged basket of flowers; best and most artistically arranged bouquet; best twenty-five cut roses; best general collection of cut flowers; display of roses, eight or more varieties, six or more blooms, each variety vased separately; display of twelve vases of flowers, not called for in other classes; basket, any kind of flowers; bouquet, any kind of flowers.

SEED STORE IN COTTON LAND.

Supporting the cotton-growers of their section through the buy-a-bale movement, the Gorman-Gammill Seed Co., of Birmingham, Ala., is in turn bidding for their support by the means shown in the accompanying illustration. If, as is urged and as seems quite probable, the agriculturists of the south turn their attention to other crops besides cotton, the Gorman-Gammill Seed Co. will be one of the seed firms to be on the ground floor of the business which is to develop. The Birmingham store is a good-sized one, 25x140 feet, and a considerable business is done. At the left of the accompanying illustration, in the buggy, may be seen the man who supplies the second half of the firm name, Mr. Gammill.

TOBACCO EXTRACTS.

I have been using a spray, for various insect pests, consisting of one pound of tobacco stems boiled in one and one-half gallons of water. I have found this to be effective for black aphis and green fly. Please advise how the nicotine can be extracted from the tobacco, as I think the pure nicotine diluted in water will be still more effective. L. S.

It is not practicable for a florist to make his own nicotine extract. To obtain any considerable part of the nicotine content of the tobacco stems an elaborate equipment is required. There are only a few concerns in the United States equipped to do the work economically and the nicotine can be purchased of them much cheaper than it can be obtained without the apparatus for distillation. Pure nicotine can be purchased from wholesale druggists, but it is not suitable for spraying purposes, as it will not mix with water; the prepared nicotine extracts offered by insecticide manufacturers and sold by all supply houses and seed stores are the cheapest and best to use. These are of various strengths, but most of them contain about forty per cent of nicotine.

NAMES OF DAHLIAS.

We are mailing to you under separate cover two dahlia blooms, both apparently of the cactus type. Will you give us the names of the varieties? R. G.

The two sample dahlia blooms were received, but, having been delayed in transmission, were somewhat the worse for wear. However, the one with a white center and pink outer petals is the old Kriemhilde, a German cactus dahlia and a good flower. Unless one is careful to give it good soil and culture, it is often disappointing, but when properly grown it is a fine variety. The other bloom was so far gone that it was impossible to identify it positively, but it may be one of the peony-flowered varieties that have become so popular in the last few years. It possibly may be a decorative type that has followed in the wake of many crops this season and come with an open center.

The box was somewhat crushed in transit. If, when blooms are sent in this manner through the mails, more care is used in packing and giving proper room, better results can be secured in ferreting out the correct names. E. S. T.

CARE OF BOXWOOD IN WINTER.

Please tell me how to care for boxwoods in the winter. S. M.

The only particular care required for the box bushes is to keep them in a cool place, and to give them water enough to keep them moist at all times. A night temperature of 40 degrees is sufficient, and if it goes a little lower at times it will do the plants no harm.

POOR SOIL FOR SMILAX.

I have about 1,000 smilax plants which are not growing as they should. About half of the leaves are turning yellow. There are hardly any insects on them. The soil contains one-third sand and about one-fourth stable manure. Should they be sprayed with ammonia water, or does the soil need fertilizer? H. C. B.

It is no wonder that your smilax plants are doing poorly in such a compost. You do not state whether your plants are small ones in pots or are planted out. If in pots, mix up a compost of three-fourths loam and the balance well decayed and screened manure. Sand is not needed unless your soil is quite retentive. Shake out and repot your plants. If the stock is planted out there is little you can do, but spraying with ammonia water would only make their condition worse. If you apply some liquid made in a barrel from soot and cow manure, sufficiently diluted, it may improve the plants somewhat, but you will not get really satisfactory results until you give them a compost in which sand is cut out and more loam used. Of course correct temperatures, proper ventilation and careful watering all play an important part in the culture of smilax. C. W.

BLIND WOOD ON BEGONIAS.

Under separate cover I have sent some parts of Begonia Gloire de Chatelaine, on which the wood is hardened and has gone blind. Can you tell me the cause and the remedy? I have been growing begonias successfully for several years, but this is my first attempt with Chatelaine. I have treated it in the same way as Lorraine, Cincinnati, luminosa and Erfordii, giving it the same house and the same bench. All the other begonias are doing well. In fact, the Chatelaines also did well at first, and I thought from their appearance, and from the amount of bloom they carried, that they had the more expensive begonias beaten in many ways, and that I would have a good supply of these on hand for the Christmas trade in case the azaleas did not turn up. Then the best and strongest wood began to harden and go blind, while the plants produced a great mass of undergrowth. They are not pot-bound. I am using a compost consisting of good rotted sod and cow manure, with sharp sand and a little crushed charcoal. There is good drainage.
J. P.

Your estimate of this begonia is correct; it is indeed invaluable for either bedding out or pot culture, and is a constant bloomer. Your plants must have had some check to act as they are doing. I have never had any of my stock act in this way. Your compost seems to have been all right. A check or lack of plant food must have caused the trouble, as I have never heard of any disease attacking this begonia. The shoots forwarded appear healthy. I would advise cutting the plants back. They will soon start away again and will still make good plants, but hardly in time for Christmas.

THE MEN YOU MEET

A. F. J. BAUR.

IF you don't know Baur, this is your chance—the Chrysanthemum Society is meeting at Indianapolis November 8 and Baur is vice-president, in charge of local arrangements. But it is not in connection with the chrysanthemum that most of the trade knows A. F. J. Baur; his reputation rests on his work for the carnation, as a grower, a novelty raiser, as secretary of the American Carnation Society these many years, and as a writer on the carnation for The Review. There are few men who give so freely of their time and energy to the affairs of trade welfare, nor are there many whose work is so effective. The reason is that, while on occasion he takes a stand and will not budge, he arouses no antagonisms; whether he will or he won't, everything is all right so far as Baur is concerned.

NO JOKE.

Many users of classified ads in The Review get such excellent results that they call them "strange," "curious," "funny," or some other word that merely means they had not appreciated the power of these little liners when the offer happens to be one that hits a general need. Then this is what happens, right away:

Please don't print that Classified ad again; everything sold and could not fill all the orders. Funny what a little ad like that will do. Send bill and I will gladly send check.—Max B. Schreiber, McDonald, Pa., October 30, 1914.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS.

At Houston, Tex, the buy-a-bale movement is just now taking precedence over the buy-a-bunch-of-mums custom, although business generally, and especially in funeral work, proceeds satisfactorily.

The chrysanthemum show in Houston is predicted to be the biggest yet held here. Robert C. Kerr, president of the Texas State Florists' Association, reports entries of exceptionally well grown stock from Dallas and Fort Worth. He took a prominent part in the recent convention of nurserymen at Fort Worth.

Robert Hewitt, of Brazos Hotel Greenhouses, Houston, is growing a fine lot of Bougainvillea Sanderiana on trellises in various forms, such as the "Lone Star," butterfly, balloon, etc. It certainly makes up well.

The Moers Seed Co. and the Reichardt & Schulte Co., of Houston, report excellent business. E. Schwenke, of the latter house, says the largest shipment of Early Snowball cauliflower to one grower this season was eight pounds, which order later was duplicated to the same grower.

S. J. Mitchell, of Houston, who keeps in close touch with Mexican affairs, says the harvests have been good. The grayback bug has been busier than usual, owing to the dry season.

The run from Houston to Galveston, Tex., is made through a grazing country, where the famous long-horned Texas steers are seen in large herds in grass almost shoulder-high. The roadsides are blooming with wild forget-me-nots, lupines, gypsophilas and gaillardias.

M. P. Hargreaves' Seed Store, at Galveston, proposes next season, owing to the continued shortage of the northern bean crops, to secure a crop of seed from the spring sowing for fall sowing the same year, as two crops are grown in this latitude each year. Spinach will be experimented with in the same manner. It is generally known that four crops of this vegetable are raised here in one year. A market gardener told me he received a revenue of $4,000 from a 20-acre truck farm here last year, which was, he thought, pretty good.

Harry Papworth, of the Metairie Ridge Nursery Co., New Orleans, La., opines that with a rift in the clouded cotton situation, business will assume normal conditions. While the volume of business has been almost equal to that of ordinary seasons, large jobs of planting that have been figured on and prepared for are still in abeyance. His best patrons are members of the cotton exchange. A leader here is the Louisiana orange, of which there is a large and thrifty lot—a little gold mine, as the canker is rampant both in Florida and Texas, but has not yet appeared here. Some stock imported and found infected was immediately destroyed. It is contagious and can be carried even on one's clothing. One of the most promising orange groves was recently planted in a cypress swamp, where, after simply blasting the stumps, all that was necessary was the filling in when planting. An exhibition is held at the nursery on the Sunday preceding All Saints' day, when society, headed by the mayor and mayoress, usually attends in crowds, and the venture has been found to be a profitable one. This year even more elaborate preparations were made for the affair. Chrysanthemums, especially Robinson and Ramapo, are in grand shape. Gardenias bloom here perpetually. Arecas, Phœnix Roebelenii and latanias luxuriate. Adiantum Glory of Mordrecht is fine, but the fronds age more quickly than those of Farleyense. Rose growing under glass is uphill work here, with constant fighting of insects and watching of the weather, and even then the success is not so great as is deserved.

The Hugh Seales Floral Co., of Birmingham, Ala., is fortunate in bringing chrysanthemums in between rose crops. Mr. Seales has taken hold at the store, where he seems to be unfortunate in the securing of help. Stock at the greenhouses is in prime shape.

The McVay Seed Co., of Birmingham, is enlarging the cut flower department, now under the charge of E. U. A. Doetsch, formerly of Minneapolis.

The Barber Bros. Seed Co. and the Gorman-Gammill Seed Co., of Birmingham, moved into their respective new stores about a year ago and, as they are directly opposite, the buyers' needs can surely be well supplied.

The Rosemont Gardens, of Montgomery, Ala., won the majority of the prizes, as usual, at the state fair held here last week. Will Cook took an active part. In fact, he is a genius, as is evidenced by the fact, for instance, that at his time of life, when most workers think of taking things more easily, he has joined the Shriners' band as second alto and, I understand, has already made many of the wearers of the fez ascribe extraordinary musical powers to him.

The Harvey Seed Co., of Montgomery, is already figuring on several large plantings of seed to take the place of cotton for next year. W. M.

Paris, France.—Monsieur le Comte d'Estienne, of Vilmorin-Andrieux & Co., states that Monsieur Philippe de Vilmorin has received the appointment of interpreter attached to the staff of the Indian army now serving in France.

Berlin, Germany.—Every florists' motor truck in the city was commandeered at the beginning of the war for use as an army transport. Not that the loss mattered much, as the business has been extremely light, though possibly more than those on the outside would expect.

Orleans, France.—E. Turbat, general secretary of the Federation Nationale des Syndicats Horticoles de France, has sent out word that arrangements have been completed between the organization and the French railways for the safe transport of nursery stock to the following seaports: Havre, Dieppe, Honfleur, Nantes, St. Nazaire and Bordeaux. Further arrangements are in prospect, but those now reported are thought to insure that "everything will go as usual from France to the U. S. A."

Yokohama, Japan.—In spite of a curtailment in European orders for giganteum bulbs due to the war and to difficult financing, the giganteum crop is reported short, especially in large sizes. It is said there will be practically no surplus bulbs this year. The Canadian Pacific steamers have nearly all been withdrawn from the service. The only American ships are the Pacific Mail boats to San Francisco, and the Japanese shippers will not ship that way in quantities, owing to the fact that they regard the California law as "dangerous for bulbs and plants." So imports are slower than usual this season. Steamers leaving Japan are scarce and if it were not for the fact that bulbs are first-class freight, steamers would not accept them now. Tons and tons of merchandise are left lying on the docks waiting to be exported.

Rotterdam, Holland.—The azaleas got out just in time. Transportation from Ghent and vicinity to this port closed shortly after the fall of Antwerp, and even communication now is cut.

Quedlinburg, Germany.—The usual lists of German seed and plant novelties will be greatly reduced this year. Conditions are not right for sending out a real novelty in Europe.

Yokohama, Japan.—Several Japanese and foreign exporters located at Yokohama lost heavily this fall owing to European shipments of lily bulbs being dispatched on three German steamers in July and August. One boat, the Doerflinger, was seized near the Suez canal and the bulbs were lost. Another, the Kleist, diverted her course to Sumatra and unloaded the bulbs there, and the other boat, the Prinz Eitel Friedrich, is still loaded up with bulbs lying in the harbor at Tsing-tau. No insurance can be collected, owing to the fact that at the time the steamers left port war was not announced and war risks were not covered.

Versailles, France.—This is by A. Truffaut: "Since, thanks to the participation of the English army, we have been able to avert the invasion of Paris and the surrounding neighborhood by the Teuton hordes, the horticultural establishments in Paris and its environs have not suffered; but, in consequence of this wretched war, which has dragged from their hearths all the gardeners from 18 to 40 years old, work has been obliged to cease everywhere. Moreover, the sale of plants in Paris is nil, and the city presents an aspect of the utmost dreariness; the greater number of the shops are closed in the most fashionable quarters, and in particular the flower stalls, which usually constitute one of the chief charms of Paris. The horticultural journals have ceased publication and the Horticultural Society of France has suspended its activities and the publication of its journal."

NEW YORK.

The Market.

The cut flower market in New York is completely dominated by the chrysanthemum. All the popular varieties and many novelties are arriving in unlimited quantity daily. The frost touched us lightly one day last week and eliminated the dahlias, leaving no rival to the mums. In quality they certainly have never been surpassed. A great many mums in pots are offered in the wholesale market.

There has been no advance in the quotations for roses, even American Beauties failing to rise, but quality is now approaching perfection in all the twenty-five varieties. Hadley is a winner, and this and Ophelia seem to be the "top-notchers" at this date. While the mum flood continues, little advance in rose prices can be hoped for. The short-stemmed and imperfect stock goes out of the street in vanloads, at the buyers' prices.

The carnation supply is large, and with the cooler weather the quality is improving, but values are low. Orchids remain at the abnormally low prices of the last month. Never has the market been so congested with them. The supply of longiflorums is decreasing. Prices will surely be better soon. The multiplicity of white mums doubtless caused the setback in October. Valley holds its own, and violets should certainly show some advance from the present quotations. The outlook grows brighter as the cold increases.

At Spring Valley.

The writer visited the big establishment of A. S. Burns, Jr., at Spring Valley, N. Y., last week, accompanied by J. F. Sullivan, of Detroit. Mr. Burns is known here as the lily king and he deserves the title. He began fifteen years ago, growing violets and carnations. From a few thousand square feet, the range has grown to 200,000, four-fifths of which is devoted to the growing of lilies. Shipments of these are made every day in the year—Formosas, rubrums, giganteums and longiflorums.

A modern cold-storage plant has just been completed. There are seven boilers of the Johnston Heating Co., four of the Lord & Burnham Co. and four of Hitchings & Co. installed.

Mr. Burns' shipments of lilies, carnations and roses to New York are handled by P. J. Smith. Shipments of lilies are made to wholesale houses in many other cities, even as far west as Kansas City. The new houses completed this year and last are all 35x200, five under the same roof.

Hadley is the only rose grown and it is grown to perfection. Another house will be devoted to this rose next season. The carnations grown are Enchantress, White Enchantress, Electra, Gorgeous, Matchless, Yellowstone, Yellow Prince, Champion, Philadelphia and several good seedlings.

William Babcock is foreman. The real estate in Mr. Burns' property at Spring Valley is over thirty acres.

Various Notes.

Phillip J. Cox, who for the last four years has been happily employed as sales representative for the Pierson U-Bar Co., has severed his connection with that concern and accepted a position as manager of the New York office of Hitchings & Co. F. W. Armitage, general sales manager for the company, being relieved by Mr. Cox of the direct care of this office, will now divide his time between the various branch offices, in general sales and promotion work.

Next Monday evening, November 9, will be ladies' night at the New York Florists' Club.

The New York Bowling Club opened its fall and winter season last Thursday evening, October 29, and will bowl every Thursday evening. The dues are $3 monthly, and the membership is limited to ten. No one bowled up to form at the first session. The idea seems to be to have a membership that can average above 200. The bowlers last week were John Donaldson, John Miesem, C. W. Scott, Jos. Fenrich, Harry Riedel, A. Henshaw, R. J. Irwin, A. Kakuda, W. Jacobson and A. J. Guttman.

Bert. Chadwick, formerly with Vaughan's Seed Store and later with the Corporation of C. F. Meyer, is now the traveling representative of R. J. Irwin.

As an evidence of good spending in the wealthy section, Max Schling states that in one week he used 1,100 American Beauties, 9,000 dahlias, 900 orchids, 600 strings of smilax and nearly 70,000 violets, the largest week's business he has ever had in October.

May 1, 1915, there will be opened here an enterprise that will probably be called the Covent Garden of New York. An enormous building, covering nearly 40,000 square feet of exhibition space, is to be used, and there will be an immense greenhouse on the roof.

Wallace Pierson and Roman Irwin are here with hunting trophies and bronzed faces, following a month's hunting in the wilds of New Brunswick. Mr. Pierson goes from here to the mum convention and show at Indianapolis.

R. Vincent, Jr., of White Marsh, Md., was one of many visitors at the show of the Horticultural Society of New York.

The Skinner Irrigation Co., of Troy, O., has installed a model system at A. T. Boddington's.

Importers of kentia seeds are rejoicing at last in the assurance that their orders are soon to be filled, and that most of the stock is on its way.

Every Tuesday and Friday the auction sales of the MacNiff Horticultural Co. continue until Christmas. Heacock's palms were quickly bought by the retailers of New York and Brooklyn.

C. C. Trepel is still opening stores on upper Broadway. He says he believes Butler, with his 250 branches in the grocery trade, gives the right cue for the enterprising retail florist, and he is apt to act upon the suggestion himself. Mr. Trepel had a party of seven in his automobile last week, visiting the Madison flower show.

J. Austin Shaw.

A. J. Verhelle, who has been conducting an agency for the new insecticide, Flora, at 2774 Bainbridge avenue, has returned to Santa Barbara, Cal., where he will conduct the Kentia Nurseries together with his brother, to whom he leased the establishment some time ago.

The Joseph Fleischman Co. has been incorporated for $1,000 to do a general flower and fruit business. The incorporators are David Haar, S. Michael Cohen and Dora E. Horwitz.

Newburyport, Mass.—J. J. Comley has purchased the True farm at Rocky Hill. He plans to build greenhouses on the place and grow stock for his retail trade.

Hartford, Conn.—The Bon Ton Flower Shop has leased the big store at the corner of Main street and Brainard place. It is said the firm is considering the erection of a greenhouse on property on Brainard place.

Brockton, Mass.—W. W. Hathaway reports business as recently having been excellent; mostly funeral work, although the arrival of mums started trade in cut flowers. The weather has been against the florists. The frosts have done little harm on the high land and people have not felt the usual autumnal desire for the greenhouse products.

Northampton, Mass.—The Holyoke and Northampton Florists' and Gardeners' Club will hold its second annual show in the Northampton City hall November 10 and 11. Arrangements were made for receiving entries through Butler & Ullman, Northampton; James Whiting, Amherst, and Gallivan Bros. and G. H. Sinclair, Holyoke.

Rehoboth, Mass.—Mrs. Albert E. Brownell has sold her establishment and business, which she operated under the name of the Seekonk Gardens, to George C. Tennant.

Worcester, Mass.—Harry I. Randall has found business so good since he started the store at 3 Pleasant street that he has been compelled to move into larger quarters and has signed a lease for the store at 13 Pleasant street.

Waltham, Mass.—A flower shop called The Rosery has been opened in the Mercantile building, on Main street, next to Asbury Temple. One of the managers is Charles O'Brien, for several years with James T. Silman.

Lenox, Mass.—At the annual flower show held in the town hall, Scott Bros., of Elmsford, N. Y., displayed three carnations, Champion, Matchless and Enchantress Supreme, and two new chrysanthemums, W. J. Surrey and John Stratton. A. N. Pierson, Inc., of Cromwell, Conn., showed two roses, Hadley and Francis Scott Key, and the Julius Roehrs Co., of Rutherford, N. J., exhibited specimen orchids. None of these was entered for competition.

PITTSBURGH.

The Market.

One would not feel proud to write the true story of the flower business of last week. We got our frost, which cleaned up all outdoor flowers, but the weather is bright and the avalanche of stock continues to come, roses, carnations and chrysanthemums, but the demand does not come with it. However, the general opinion is that the worst is over and that from now on prices will be better. They could not have been much lower, especially on roses and carnations.

Various Notes.

The Florists' Club accepted the invitation of P. S. Randolph & Sons and on Thursday, October 29, which was about as miserable a day as we have had this fall, about sixty of the members visited their new greenhouses at Sandy Creek, where they spent a most delightful afternoon. There were a few ladies in the party. Mrs. Randolph took charge of the visitors on their arrival and saw that they were served with refreshments, after which they scattered out over the place in squads, complimenting and criticising everything. The new Lord & Burnham houses, built this year with the arch span and no poles down through the houses, were admired and approved, the only objection offered being that they were too good. The houses were filled with commercial ferns, Begonia Cincinnati, cyclamens, palms, primulas, crotons and pandanus, all in splendid shape; also, a lot of poinsettias for pans were considered just right. One large house was planted with sweet peas, and there were a couple of houses of chrysanthemums, yellow daisies and Asparagus plumosus. That this is an up-to-the-minute greenhouse plant, presided over by a master of the profession, is the opinion of the visitors, who stayed until dusk and went out into the rain feeling glad they came.

The Schenley park conservatory mum show was the chief attraction on Sunday, November 1. The fine weather brought the visitors by thousands and all were well repaid, as the show this year was up to the usual standard, which means a great deal. The north side park also had its show in good shape for the visitors from that part of the city.

H. J. Heinz, the pickle king, followed his usual custom and threw open his private conservatory to the public on Sunday, November 1.

Mr. Hamm, the father of Harry Hamm, does not pretend to be a grower, but he is somewhat of a genius in the way of providing handy mechanical contrivances for their greenhouses. He now has what might be called automatic greenhouses, as everything—water, light, air, heat, etc.—is controlled by some kind of automatic device. One of their troubles was how to feed their decorative plants, for just as soon as they had given them fertilizer they would need them for a decoration and the odor was not what one would desire in a close room. Mr. Hamm now feeds his plants with liquid feed and it is so arranged that the liquid is mixed with the water and is applied when the plants are watered and as often as desired, his theory being that applying often and lightly is giving the best results. The mechanical part is a small pump that is run by water power. The exhaust or water which runs the pump is carried into a small tank with the liquid manure, pumped from the manure tank and from there to the hose. He is undoubtedly getting results and he is now figuring on applying his invention in a large way to one of the big commercial plants which uses quantities of liquid manure. He expects to show this to be the most economical method of applying it, reducing the labor at least one-half. Any person desiring to see the working of his machine can do so by calling at the greenhouses, 7035 Hamilton avenue.

BALTIMORE.

The Market.

The retailers are unable to move the large quantity of stock which the unseasonably warm days have literally pushed open and, as a result, the wholesale stores are overstocked and low prices prevail. The greatest glut is of yellow mums, with roses and carnations following. There is a plentiful supply of all kinds of stock and the accumulations of the week were disposed of to the street boys at sacrifice prices. Jack Frost paid us his annual visit on the night of October 27, when the thermometer registered 28 degrees, killing most outdoor stock, although chrysanthemums were not affected and large quantities of outdoor pompon mums still are seen. Business is fairly good and was exceptionally so towards the end of the week. White and pink mums were in the best demand, as they were not so plentiful as yellow.

Various Notes.

Charles Conroy, who formerly had a store on Franklin street near Greene, will shortly open a store on West Baltimore near Poppleton street.

M. Hilpert is sending some fine Amorita and Alice Byron mums to the Leo Niessen Co.

Mrs. M. Stauff, of Washington, was a visitor last week.

Charles E. Meehan, of Philadelphia, and Otto Bauer, Washington manager for the Pennock-Meehan Co., last week made a tour of Mt. Airy, Frederick and vicinity, accompanied by J. J. Perry, manager of the local branch of this firm, in his car.

William Terry, of Owings Mills, is contemplating opening a store on Howard street, near the theater district.

J. T. Williams, of Ruxton, is cutting some good Enguehard mums.

J. T. Harmon has opened a store in connection with his greenhouses at Catonsville. Some good White Perfection carnations are being cut.

October 29 a meeting of the show committee of the Maryland Horticultural Society was held at the office of William Feast and arrangements made for the coming fall show. It was decided to make the feature of the show the largest vase of mums ever shown anywhere. A large Japanese vase will be erected in the center of the hall, standing ten and one-half feet from floor to rim and to be filled with white and yellow mums. This vase will be known as the Gardeners' and Florists' Club's chrysanthemum vase and the mums required to fill it will be contributed by members of the club. The show will open November 17 at 8 p. m., and all exhibits must be in place not later than 2 p. m. of this day. Entries should be made to William Feast as soon as possible. Mums and plants will be exhibited the opening day, roses will be shown on second day, and carnations on the third day, insuring a fresh supply of cut flowers during the entire show. This show promises to exceed anything ever held by the society, as the committee is working hard and deserves success.

The next regular meeting of the club will be held November 9, and among other business President Graham, of the Maryland Horticultural Society, has a message to bring the members, especially the mum growers, whose presence he personally requests.

BUFFALO.

The Market.

Cold weather has at last arrived and with it a decided improvement in trade. However, a few rainy days last week made transient trade somewhat dull, but funeral and wedding work went on apace, as did debutante reception work. There were several weddings of note, as well as a number of receptions. There are still a few dahlias coming into the market, and they are much improved in quality because of the cool weather. The demand is still strong. Gladioli are still present and some are quite good. Since gladioli, dahlias and chrysanthemums are so plentiful, there is not much of a demand for carnations, which are good now. Enchantress, White Wonder, Perfection and Beacon have longer stems and somewhat larger blooms. Chrysanthemums are much improved this week. The supply is greatly increased. There is a variety of pompons. Roses of all kinds are plentiful and the quality A-1. Hallowe'en trade was large this year. Corsages of orchids and valley are selling well at present. Pumpkins filled with flowers, such as roses, pompons, cornflowers, snapdragons, etc., sold well for centerpieces for Hallowe'en.

Various Notes.

A most seasonable window was the football window at Palmer's branch store, in honor of the Carlisle-Syracuse game, held October 31. It consisted of a miniature football field with both teams in action. Footballs tied with the colors of each college formed a special feature.

The harvest dance held by the Buffalo Florists' Club was a great success. The hall was made attractive with wild smilax, pumpkins, cornstalks, etc. A large number were present and all had a most enjoyable time. Refreshments were served.

W. J. Palmer & Son had a large decoration for the debutante reception of Miss Rogers, October 26. About 500 Beauties were used. The Ramsdell reception was also a big decoration, as was the Jackson wedding, both done by Palmer & Son.

Al. Vick was a visitor last week. He attended the Florists' Club ball.

S. A. Anderson's Hallowe'en display was clever, combining the grotesque with the picturesque. Comic faces carved out of pumpkins, bedecked with hair, mustaches and beards, as well as hats, collars and ties, were quite funny. Pumpkins filled with Ward roses, pompon mums and autumn leaves were most attractive. Basket pumpkins with flowers and fruit added a great deal to the beauty of the display.

L. H. Neubeck is putting up some exceedingly attractive logs, of fall blooming crocus planted with dwarf ferns in cedar bark boxes. These are used for all purposes.

The chrysanthemum show at the Delaware park conservatory has begun. There are some fine blooms on exhibition. One large Enguehard specimen plant has 900 blooms. The pompons are just beginning to bloom and will be in their prime in about ten days. Hundreds are visiting the display.

THE CHICAGO SHOW.

The Chicago show this year should command the support of the growers, as it will no doubt help the market for mums by attracting much public attention to them.

The show is to be held in the Art Institute next week, November 9 and 10. A silver and a bronze medal are offered in each of the following classes:

Class 1—Group of chrysanthemum plants.
Class 2—Display cut blooms, large-flowering chrysanthemums.
Class 3—Display cut blooms, single, pompon and anemone chrysanthemums.
Class 4—Ten cut blooms of seedling chrysanthemums not disseminated.
Class 5—Vase, basket or other arrangement of cut blooms, large-flowering chrysanthemums, with usual accessories.
Class 6—Vase, basket or other arrangement of cut blooms, pompon, single or anemone chrysanthemums, with usual accessories.
Class 7—Best display cut blooms of outdoor grown chrysanthemums, open to amateurs only.

Exhibits cannot be received earlier than the day preceding the opening of the exhibition and must be in place by noon November 9. Exhibits by express, all charges invariably prepaid, should be addressed to the exhibition manager, C. W. Johnson, Art Institute, Chicago, Ill.

WILL SOME READER ANSWER?

The Georgia Real Estate Co., of York street, E., Savannah, Ga., sends The Review a postal asking to be put in touch with importers and jobbers of Dutch bulbs. As the concern is not in the trade, The Review will not accede to the request for a sample copy, but some reader may be able to tell the Georgian where bulbs may be bought.

Pueblo, Colo.—Miss Julia Stone, manager of the Flower Shop, reports business steadily on the increase, with prospects for a good season.

Lake Geneva, Wis.—The tenth annual chrysanthemum exhibition of the local Gardeners' and Foremen's Association will be held in Horticultural hall November 6 and 7. A souvenir program has been issued with nearly enough advertising from local merchants and others to cover the premium list.

Galena, Ill.—The Wickler sisters, Mrs. Evelyn Wickler Truax, Miss Mabel Wickler and Miss Frances Wickler, have closed their business at Grand Forks, N. D., and removed to this city, opening a new store at 104 North Main street October 31. They will do business under the old style, Wicklers'. Besides handling a complete line of florists' stock, they will include fancy fruits and candies.

OBITUARY

Godfrey Aschmann.

The Great Reaper has removed, almost without warning, a man whose strong personality has made itself felt all over this great land. Godfrey Aschmann, of Philadelphia, died October 28, from blood poisoning, the result of a trifling injury, after a week's illness. He was in his sixty-sixth year.

Mr. Aschmann was born near Zurich, Switzerland. He was apprenticed to a florist in his own country and came to America when a boy. He worked at Henry A. Dreer's, at Riverton, N. J., soon after the place was established. Later he took up gardening on his own account in Philadelphia and built, after a time, some greenhouses at 1012 Ontario street, where he remained throughout his active career, adding ground and greenhouses as his business grew. Mr. Aschmann succeeded where many would have failed. His untiring perseverance, his pluck and ability merited success. He knew what plants people wanted; he grew them and, with wonderful courage, he kept on telling the world that he had those plants until they were sold. He was a large grower of Christmas, Easter and spring plants, both flowering and foliage. He understood thoroughly the value of the space in his greenhouses, never allowing a bench to remain empty or to be wasted by unsalable material.

Mr. Aschmann's funeral, which took place from his home on the afternoon of October 31, was attended by many friends and members of the Philadelphia Florists' Club. He is survived by six children, John Godfrey, Mrs. Ida Graever, Edward, Mrs. Adeline Heritage, Howard, and Mrs. Florence Ott.

George R. Schluraff.

George R. Schluraff, head of the Schluraff Floral Co., Erie, Pa., died from heart failure Tuesday afternoon, October 27, while working at the Floral Park Nurseries, the company's grounds. An assistant who turned to ask a question of Mr. Schluraff found his body lying on the ground. A physician was summoned, but death had come instantaneously.

Mr. Schluraff was one of the oldest residents as well as the oldest florist of Erie county, where he was born and had lived all his life. He was 62 years of age.

Besides his widow, Harriet, Mr Schluraff is survived by one son, Vern L., engaged in the florists' business in Erie; one daughter, Mrs. A. B. Tozer, of Erie, and one brother, F. S. Schluraff, of Fairview. Funeral services were held at the home Friday, October 30, and interment was in Erie cemetery.

Christian Ackerman, Sr.

Following a three years' illness, due to a complication of diseases, Christian Ackerman, Sr., aged 58, died Monday evening, October 26, at Columbus, O. Mr. Ackerman, who had lived in Columbus for twenty-three years, was the senior member of the Riverside Floral Co., 537 North High street, in which business three of his sons have been engaged with him.

He is survived by his father, Jacob Ackerman, aged 84, of Columbus; his wife; four sons, G. A., Christian, Jr., and Otto Ackerman, of Columbus, and Emil Ackerman, of Chicago; one brother, William Ackerman, of Columbus, and one sister, Mrs. Christina Gouldner, of Los Angeles, Cal.

Funeral services were held Thursday afternoon, October 29, at the residence. Interment was in Green Lawn cemetery.

George J. Pearson.

George J. Pearson, president of the Fairfield Landscape & Nurseries Co., 103 Park avenue, New York city, died of an affection of the kidneys Thursday, October 29, at his home, 316 West Ninety-fourth street. He was born in Brooklyn forty-two years ago and until a few years ago was a shipping merchant. His wife and two sons survive him.

Sioux City, Ia.—Extensive improvements have been made at the store and greenhouses of the J. C. Rennison Co. About $2,000 was spent on the greenhouses at Twenty-fifth and Jones streets and approximately $500 worth of fixtures were installed in the shop at 525 Pierce street.

Bonham, Tex.—The City Greenhouses have purchased property on West Seventh street, where they will erect greenhouses next summer. They intend to install outside and inside irrigating systems. B. Sitzler reports business getting better, with the prospect of the best holiday trade in the firm's history.

Cleveland, O.—A delivery car of special design has been added to the equipment of the Smith & Fetters Co. An automatic device keeps the temperature at any point desired. The body has three "skins" and all openings are air-tight, so that the car is temperature-proof and dust-proof. Illuminated signs on each side and other features make the car one of the most elaborate turned out by a special designer.

Laramie, Wyo.—Bert Clippinger, of the Clippinger Greenhouses, says business has been much better than was expected during the last summer and is starting out now with a vim that points to a good winter's trade. This has been the warmest fall known here for a long time. Rain, an almost unheard of thing here at this time of year, fell October 22. The following day, however, it was succeeded by snow.

Thirty-first annual convention, San Francisco, Cal., August 17 to 20, 1915.

RESULTS.
We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

THERE will be a gathering of the clans at Indianapolis this week, where the C. S. A. show opens November 6.

THE mid-season mums having come in, nearly everywhere, because of the warm autumn, about a fortnight earlier than usual, may we anticipate a speedy wind-up of their season?

THE propagators are getting busy, both on roses and carnations. There was such a good sale for young stock last season that increased quantities will be prepared during the next few months.

FROM J. Dale, of the Powder River Nursery, Baker, Ore., The Review has received a specimen bloom of a seedling chrysanthemum that looks like an excellent commercial variety. The flower was in good condition after its long journey in a mail bag.

J. C. SHIELD, Monticello, Ill., has sent The Review a box of blooms of his set of seedling mums, single and semi-double, including some excellent colors. Since the parcel post was established the editor's desk seldom has been without its vase of flowers sent in by a reader.

THE Office of Information, U. S. Department of Agriculture, is contributing to newspapers a series of articles along the lines of those sent out for several years by the National Council of Horticulture. The release of November 4 was "Bulbs for Fall Planting." The next will be "Fall Fertilizers for Lawns."

BENJ. HAMMOND, chairman of the S. A. F. committee on school gardens, is distributing the 1914 report of the committee as a neatly printed and illustrated pocket pamphlet.

IT is interesting to note that market conditions have been much the same of late in all the big cities. There has been a surplus and prices have been low. The warm weather is considered the principal factor, although the disturbed condition of general business no doubt has had its influence. In the smaller cities, especially in the grain states of the middle west, the situation has been much better.

NATIONAL FLOWER SHOW.

Chairman George Asmus has instructed me to call a meeting of the National Flower Show committee at the Hotel Walton, Philadelphia, Wednesday, November 11, at 10 a. m. As important business will be transacted at this meeting, every member of the committee is requested to be present.

John Young, Sec'y.

CLOSE TO ITS READERS.

An advertising agent, who gets no commission from The Review and should be open-minded, told us the other day that he never, in all his years of studying publications as advertising media, had seen a paper that was so close to its readers; never one that seemed so full of interest for its people, nor one that is so closely read as is The Review. Then, the next mail brought these:

Enclosed is my renewal for The Review. Do I like it? It always was my best friend and it is simply a dandy in its new dress. I would not miss one copy for the price of a year's subscription.—W. N. Vary, College Park, Ga., October 31, 1914.

For the enclosed dollar please extend my subscription, which will expire in two weeks. You sure made a great improvement when you put The Review in the magazine form. It don't seem as if you could improve The Review any farther, but having been a subscriber from the first number and having seen so many changes for the better, I shall not be surprised at anything.—Wm. Wickham, Adrian, Mich., October 31, 1914.

All of which sounded especially good in view of the fact that just then an advertiser had quit because he could not be sufficiently salved in the editorial columns.

CHRYSANTHEMUM SOCIETY.

The examining committees have submitted reports on new varieties as follows:

At Boston, October 24, Zora, yellow, pompon, submitted by Elmer D. Smith & Co., Adrian, Mich., scored as follows: Color, 37; form, 18; stem and foliage, 17; fullness, 17; total, 89.

At Cincinnati, October 24, Zora, yellow, pompon, submitted by Elmer D. Smith & Co., Adrian, Mich., scored as follows: Color, 35; form, 16; stem and foliage, 17; fullness, 18; total, 86.

At Chicago, October 24, Zora, yellow, pompon, submitted by Elmer D. Smith & Co., Adrian, Mich., scored as follows: Color, 35; form, 18; stem and foliage, 18; fullness, 18; total, 89.

At Chicago, October 24, Antigone, white, incurved, submitted by Chas. H. Totty, Madison, N. J., scored as follows on the commercial scale: Color, 16; form, 10; fullness, 8; stem, 12; foliage, 12; substance, 12; size, 8; total, 78.

At Chicago, October 24, yellow seedling, incurved, submitted by Chas. H. Totty, Madison, N. J., scored as follows on the commercial scale: Color, 15; form, 10; fullness, 8; stem, 13; foliage, 12; substance, 13; size, 9; total, 80.

Chas. W. Johnson, Sec'y.

MORE PLANTS FROM ROTTERDAM.

The shipment of plants from the port of Rotterdam continues, though not so strongly as before. The consignments which arrived last week on the steamer Rotterdam, which reached New York October 26, were as follows:

Consignee.	Cases.
Schwake, C., & Co.	45
Langeler, H.	57
Merchants' Despatch Transportation Co.	17
Hampton, J. W., Jr., & Co.	6
Lunham & Moore	48
Goldenberg, A.	35
Rölker, A., & Sons	101
Smith, C. P.	30
Darrow, H. F.	49
Outerbridge, A. E., & Co.	1
Sheldon, G. W., & Co.	6
American Express Co.	55
Total	469

HONORABLE MENTION.

Not a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar-bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper. Among those who have this week enrolled themselves for more than one year in advance are:

FIVE YEARS.

Burgevin's Sons, Valentin, Kingston, N. Y.

TWO YEARS.

Moore, Fred G., Red Hook, N. Y.
Collins, George, Grand Rapids, Mich.

The Review stops coming when the subscription runs out. The new green notice with the last copy tells the story; no bills are run up; no duns sent.

HIGH COSTS ON IMPORTS.

Importers who received consignments of goods this week on the Noordyk from Rotterdam have unexpected heavy charges to meet on shipments from Germany. The German goods, it is said, were shipped in July, but, with the breaking out of the war, were held up at Bremen and Hamburg.

The added costs that consignees must pay are on a fifty per cent increase in freight rates, storage, fire insurance, war risk, and for transfer from the German ports to Rotterdam. As freight charges are based on metric tons, the per cent of added cost falls heaviest on lower priced merchandise.

The general effect of the higher costs imposed as a result of the war is in providing greater protection for domestic manufactures than ever was afforded by any tariff schedules, and the deduction is that, notwithstanding foreign countries may be in position to sell in United States markets, it will be difficult to compete, under the present costs of ocean transportation, and that, therefore, there should result a stimulus to American manufactures.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

Conditions have not been favorable during the week since last report, but there is, nevertheless, a much more cheerful atmosphere in the market. Business is improving. After one or two frosty nights the weather has again been unseasonably warm, with bright sun, keeping the market heavily loaded in most lines. It has been too fine outdoors for people to crave flowers for the house. An enormous business has been done somewhere, as immense quantities of stock are received and cleared daily. The retail stores say there is nothing special doing, but the smaller retailers, who can do business when prices are low, are buying big quantities of stock, especially mums.

The supply of roses is not large.

EVERYTHING SEASONABLE

Prices have firmed up quite a little, although they are not yet up to the seasonal average. Short roses are relatively less plentiful than long roses and bring comparatively better prices. Some excellent stock is seen; thus far every buyer has been able to get what he wanted, but a normal demand would be sure to produce a scarcity, with the supply no larger than it is at present. Beauties are not in heavy crop, but there are more than the market needs; mums are so plentiful and so cheap that it is difficult to sell long Beauties at the usual November price.

Carnations are doing a little better than has been the case. The low prices due to the hot weather in October hit the carnation growers harder than anyone else. Such low average prices never have been known in this month, but at the same time it must be said the production was much heavier than in October of last year. Some of the wholesalers now report they are able to get the usual prices for strictly fancy carnations, but the lower grades still are ahead of the demand.

The chrysanthemum season is most unusual; the midseason varieties arrived in the last days of October and now such late sorts as Chadwick are beginning to show up on the market. It looks as though the chrysanthemum season would be weeks shorter than usual this year with most of the growers. The quality of the mums this week is the best of the season to date; Bonnaffon always is the best seller in this market and now is available in all sizes. It brings better money than has been obtainable for most of the varieties thus far offered. The quality of the mums has been nothing to brag about, taking them as a whole. Pompons are everywhere; the supply greatly exceeds any previous year. The variety also is large. Prices vary considerably, but in most cases are low. The retailers are using pompons extensively for special basket sales and for table work.

At the end of last week the All Saints' day demand was a factor. Some years this event has called great quantities of chrysanthemums to the south. Important shipments went out last week, mainly chrysanthemums and roses, but the total was the smallest in years. Letters from the trade in the south indicate that the decrease was due to southern growers having had good success this year with their home crops of mums, rather than to any business depression.

Within the last few days violets have begun to sell a little like old times, as there are not many of them. The weather has been too warm; the singles have stopped blooming and the New York doubles travel poorly. Several experimental shipments have come from San Francisco. There continue to be plenty of cattleyas and enough valley. Gardenias are available. The few sweet peas sell quite well. There also is a special demand for Mrs. Ward and Cecile Brunner rosebuds because the corsage work is picking up with the retailers. Lilies are not overabundant. The frost pretty well cleaned up the odds and ends of stock, so that business now is centering on the big staple items.

BEAUTIES

NOW IS A GOOD TIME TO USE THEM.

While Mums are in season, your discriminating customers will like something else—and here you are, a fine crop of long Beauties. The quality is the best so far this season; it could scarcely be better. Prices reasonable, so you can use them in quantity.

New Stores.

The week has been unusually prolific in new business ventures. Here are some of them:

A. Iralson, who recently returned from Idaho, has bought out F. C. Mendonza, who for many years has been located at 356 East Forty-third street, taking possession November 4. The location is within a few doors of where Mr. Iralson ran a flower store for several years.

Mr. Mendonza has leased a store at 6235 Halsted street, adjoining the Empress theater, and within a few days will open a first-class retail store there.

S. Y. Bloom opened a retail store October 31 at Sixty-fifth street and Cottage Grove avenue. There were appropriate ceremonies, including a dinner for friends in the trade at one of the south side restaurants that evening.

Charles A. Johnson, formerly of Chicago, Chillicothe and Roswell, N. M., last week opened a retail store at 3205 West Fullerton avenue, making a quick start by buying an outfit of Bender fixtures.

October Weather.

The weather bureau says this was the warmest October since 1879, with the single exception of October, 1900. The mean temperature was 59 degrees, as against 61 degrees in the two record years. The percentage of sunshine was exactly normal, six hours and thirty-six minutes per day, with the precipitation slightly heavier than usual. There was no frost until October 27.

Various Notes.

The Florists' Club will hold its monthly meeting tonight, November 5, at the Bismarck hotel. At 10:15 a party will leave from the Illinois Central station to attend the chrysanthemum show at Indianapolis.

The judges for the flower show at the Art Institute, opening November 9, will be N. J. Wietor, Guy W. French and George Asmus, who constitute the local committee of the C. S. A. With stock as plentiful as recently has been the case, the growers are expected to put up a fine lot of mums.

Robert Hand is no longer with the George Wittbold Co., where he has, for a couple of years, been superintendent of the rose department at the Edgebrook greenhouses.

The arrival of Timothy Eaton, November 2, and Col. Appleton, November 3, is reported by Zech & Mann, which means that the chrysanthemum season is at its height.

Condemnation proceedings are being prosecuted to secure for school purposes the Hughes greenhouse and store property at Lawndale avenue and Douglas boulevard. Louis Wittbold was in court November 2 as an expert witness as to the value of the personal property.

E. E. Pieser was taken seriously ill during the afternoon of October 30, in the store of Kennicott Bros. Co. He is reported much better, but not able to attend to business.

James Novak, who is now running the Weber greenhouses on shares, is maintaining the reputation of the establishment for turning out good Beauties.

Erne & Klingel report the arrival of the first Bonnaffon of the season October 30, much ahead of the usual date.

At Elmhurst, Wendland & Keimel again are cutting Milady in quantity and of good quality. They said last season that this was the most profitable rose on the place.

A. T. Pyfer asserts that the All Saints' day shipping to New Orleans this year was the heaviest in the history of the Chicago Carnation Co.

John Michelsen, of the E. C. Amling Co., says there are just two pink chrysanthemums that it pays to grow, McNiece and Chieftain. He says the buyers will take nothing else so long as these are available.

A. M. Anderson is the latest addition to the sales staff of the A. L. Randall Co., in the supplies department. He is an old Chicago paper salesman, but has spent the last year and a half in England.

J. H. McNeilly says that, with the opportunity to offer flowers at low prices, his two stores on Sixty-third street are doing a record business.

Henry Wehrman, at Maywood, has planned to bring in some nice benches of pompons after the rush is over.

O. W. Frese, who is one of the veterans in experience, says he never before has seen Chadwick in the market the first week in November.

Ernest Oechslin, who met with a street car-automobile accident October 28 and was taken to the Washington Park hospital, is now much better and is steadily improving.

Miss Ida Evert has made her annual reappearance in the market, selling her brother's crop of mums. She has space this year, as last, with Percy Jones, 56 East Randolph street. The Evert mum crop is not so large this year as in 1913, due to the vicissitudes of the season.

The A. L. Randall Co. reports the presence of R. Lutey and Mrs. Lutey, of Ironwood, Mich., buying stock for the opening of a new store in that town.

T. E. Waters, of Poehlmann Bros. Co., reports as a visitor P. D. Farrand, of Valparaiso, Ind., buying stock for opening a new retail store there.

his home, and has resumed his business duties.

J. C. Elspermann, of Evansville, Ind., has been in town for several weeks and has made a number of calls on the trade. His errand here was to accompany Mrs. Elspermann, who was attending a sick sister.

Well-flowered mum plants have been selling nicely in the last two weeks with the Poehlmann Bros. Co. Not only was a big lot of pot stock worked up, but the plants bloomed unusually well. As soon as the mum plants are cleared, cyclamens will come to the front, with azaleas in reserve.

Harry Smyth, of the Wienhoeber Co., says business has increased nicely since the colder weather. He thinks the erection of several exclusive apartment buildings in the neighborhood has helped trade, as many wealthy people, formerly of the south side, have been brought into the store's home territory. He reports a good sale of roses, but says there does not seem to be a great demand for Beauties.

Hadley was bought only in quantity for trial by Weiland & Risch and the early indications at the Evanston establishment are said not to be specially favorable.

The store of Buchbinder Bros., on Milwaukee avenue, is being redecorated. Sidney Buchbinder has found business good and reports numerous sales, among them a large white enamel refrigerator and wall case purchased by Oscar Metz, 5523 Harper avenue, and complete new store fittings for Harry Kahn, in Englewood.

William Conrade, of Toledo, is building a range of short-span houses for vegetable growing. The A. Dietsch Co. has the order and is turning the material out in double-quick time, as Mr. Conrade is anxious to be under cover by November 15. All men at the Dietsch plant not busy with the orders in hand are at work overhauling the boilers and engines in preparation for the early spring rush which is expected.

A new prepared foliage, lycopodium, commonly known as bouquet green, has met with an instantaneous demand, according to Theodore Kirchen, manager for Oscar Leistner. Lycopodium is preserved and stained a natural green and is used for decorating much the same as the ordinary moss, but is far more lasting.

The Market.

A frost October 26 put an end to all outdoor stock. With the advent of Hallowe'en and All Saints' day, and simultaneously with the frost, business became brisk, until the receipts for the last week averaged far above the returns for any other week in October. On the whole, the receipts for the month of October compare favorably with the receipts of previous years, and were far better than most florists had anticipated.

Greenhouse stock is in splendid condition, with chrysanthemums nearing the height of their season, roses growing with longer stems and larger buds, and carnations assuming larger and finer proportions. The best varieties of chrysanthemums on the market now are Wells' Late Pink, Chadwick, Golden Wedding, Eaton and Halliday. The best of these retail for $4 and $5 per dozen. Of the medium-sized varieties, Major Bonnaffon and Virginia Poehlmann are good sellers. Pompons are crowding the market, and some exquisite single chrysanthemums in yellow and pink are coming in. Of the roses, Ophelia, Radiance, Sunburst and Ward have met with a big demand the last week, particularly for corsage and bouquet work. Shawyer and Killarney Brilliant are also selling well. Easter and calla lilies are on the market in small quantities. Some fine snapdragons are on the market in the pastel shades and deep reds. These bring 75 cents per dozen. Valley is good and has met with a heavy demand on account of the weddings. Swainsona is used a great deal where the finer flowers are needed.

In the potted plants, chrysanthemums predominate. There are also a few begonias, cyclamens and primroses.

Various Notes.

The Doswell Floral Co. is showing some fine chrysanthemums, Major Bonnaffon and White Bonnaffon. The window arrangements are always attractive.

A visit to the W. J. & M. S. Vesey greenhouses found all the stock in prime condition. Their chrysanthemums and roses particularly are making a fine showing. Among the chrysanthemums are Virginia Poehlmann, Salomon, Dolly Dimple, Halliday, Chadwick and Major Bonnaffon. Their pompons were in fine condition. Among the roses, Shawyer, Ophelia, Sunburst, Killarney Brilliant and Rhea Reid are the leaders. Their two houses of orchids are producing some fine cattleyas at present. Two houses are being devoted to the culture of gardenias this year, and the plants have an excellent appearance.

The Flick Floral Co. greenhouses are showing some excellent varieties in midseason chrysanthemums, among which were noted Wells' Late Pink, Golden Wedding, Eaton, Chadwick and Major Bonnaffon.

Visitors during the last week were Geo. Mounz, representing Reed & Keller, New York, and the representative of the Dennison Mfg. Co., Chicago.

The Market.

The last week has been a good one in many ways. The night of October 28 we had that long looked for frost, and it was a hard one, killing all outdoor stock. The weather has been good ever since, but there has been a noticeable picking up in business. The bulb business has had a decided revival, and there should be a good demand now till everything is cleaned up.

There is an abundance of everything in the way of cut flowers, amounting almost to a glut, and the quality is generally excellent. If the demand does not increase sharply, there will be much stock to go to the dump soon. The stores are all filled with chrysanthemums at present, and they are seemingly better than ever before. This is especially noticeable in the pot plants. Prices are little different from those of past seasons. Cooler weather would be welcomed, as it would retard the stock that is needed for Thanksgiving, which is coming forward too fast.

The Dutch bulb salesmen are still coming, but they have changed their plan of taking orders, realizing that it is hard to get customers to take a chance on future prices. The last few who have come have taken their orders without any specified prices, merely subject to the ruling prices at the time of delivery.

Now that the summer is over and we can take an inventory of results, we find that outdoor stock has suffered severely. Everything that remained alive when the rains came has made normal growth, but the loss was in many instances more than half before the rains came. Gladioli are small and not a good crop. Tuberoses are good sized, with little loss. Dahlias never bloomed better, but we have never seen fewer of them on the market, as they mostly died before the rains. The supply of canna roots is short, as they had not time to mature after they got a chance to grow.

The Joy Floral Co. had a novel window last week, a display of fifty-seven varieties of chrysanthemums, all labeled, and a large display card reading, "Joy's Fifty-seven Varieties." It attracted considerable attention. The company is having a heavy sale on McIntyre Bros. have their new place on Church street running. They have only opened a small room to handle the trade of those who drop in and take their purchases with them and to take orders to be filled from their main store on Broadway. This store is on the busiest street in the city and should materially increase sales.

Geny Bros. have some of the best pot mums that I have ever seen in the city. They have them in abundance, too. They say that business is picking up well. F. B.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

There has been a decided change in market conditions since the frost of October 28. Dahlias and cosmos are over, but chrysanthemums are more plentiful and finer than ever. Turner is the leading sort; it frequently has brought $3 per dozen, a few even more, and they are worth it despite adverse conditions. Generally $2 per dozen buys the finest flowers of all the other varieties, be they white, pink or yellow. Razer, Bonnaffon and a few more good varieties have been added to the list and all can be had in quantity. Ivory and medium grade stock, which is more plentiful than fancy, can be had at $6 to $10 per hundred. Pompons are in fair demand at from $3 per dozen bunches for greenhouse-grown stock down to extremely low prices for the hardy or outdoor stock. Fancy singles, like Mary Colladay and Nottingham, bring $4 per dozen bunches.

The sale of violets also has been improved by the frost that cut off outdoor bloom. Bouvardia and mignonette have been added to the list. Orchids continue plentiful. Carnations and roses are selling better, but at low prices.

The tone of the market was improved by Hallowe'en and All Saints' day, but has been quiet since. The volume of business is large, but the supply of chrysanthemums is so heavy that prices are low.

A Valuable Offer.

Nearly all of our practical growers have felt, at one time or another, the need of the cultural learning that may be derived from books. Most of us are so wholly practical that we have little knowledge of the theory of our calling. This is partly due to the fact that floriculture in its more complicated phases is in its infancy, so the theory has only been developed within the last decade or so, and partly due to our country being behind the leading European countries in the training they afford florists.

Charles D. Ball, one of our ablest growers, felt this need so keenly that he sent his son to State College, Pennsylvania, in order that he might learn all that could be of assistance to him in his life work. Of course this is impossible for most of us, but there is a course in State College which can be taken by any florist who is willing to make the effort. This is the correspondence course that is given in a variety of subjects that are left to the choice of the student. These subjects include all the most practical parts of horticultural and other kindred pursuits. For instance, commercial fertilizers are treated in a course of seven lessons. Each lesson is sent in turn to the student, who must thoroughly master it, write his answers and return it to his professor at the college before he receives the next lesson. Some of these lessons are quite simple and will be easily acquired by most of our growers. Others are difficult, requiring a lot of hard work to thoroughly master them. When mastered they well repay all the time and trouble given.

It is a well known fact that farms that have proved unprofitable in the past are today paying through the application of college methods. That our best men believe this will be the case in the greenhouse is shown by the interest they take in these methods. Each one of us can gain at some weak point by devoting a few evening hours each week to a couple of subjects in a correspondence course at college.

This course is absolutely free to the student. There is no charge for tuition; the only cost is for paper, envelopes, postage stamps and a book or two.

The Kentias at Wyncote.

Joseph Heacock led the way through the palm houses with that proper pride that every good grower should have in fine stock. "It is something like the circus; when you have seen it once you know about what to expect," he said. Yet everyone with a drop of sporting blood in his veins enjoys a good circus, so you can understand the unfailing pleasure always derived from a walk through these palm houses with Mr. Heacock. Particular interest attaches to those houses just now because of a great auction sale of palms. The street is tremendously agitated over this sale. All kinds of rumors are current. Mr. Heacock gave the facts simply. There were too many large kentias in one size, 12-inch, to carry over winter, so it was decided that 200 of them should be sold at auction in New York without reserve. This cut down the number of specimens and, with the regular sales in all sizes, will make enough room to space and carry the balance of the stock over winter without crowding. Without seeing you can have little idea of the extent of the palm stock in the houses of the Joseph Heacock Co. Unless Mr. Heacock had told you, you would hardly have guessed that a carload of specimen kentias had just gone out; they were not missed. The palms in every size were in beautiful condition. So, too, were the ferns and orchids.

Greenhouse Building.

Montague C. Wright, Philadelphia representative of the Lord & Burnham Co., indicates that there is confidence in the future; he reports the following recent orders for new pipe frame greenhouses placed through his office:

Habermehl's Sons, Philadelphia, house 22x128; School of Horticulture for Women, Ambler, Pa., two houses each 21x68; W. R. Massie, Greenwood, Va., house 25x50; G. V. Wakelin, Quinton, N. For iron frame construction: John Bancroft, Wilmington, Del., house 16x84; Mrs. Isaac Schlichter, Philadelphia, two houses each 20x25 and a curvilinear roof palm house 22x25; J. L. O'Quinn & Co., Raleigh, N. C., house 43x150; Mary E. Page, Aberdeen, N. C., curvilinear roof conservatory; Henry E. Woodman, Overbrook, Pa., house 16x25.

The Philadelphia Cut Flower Co. has been receiving some beautiful Turner chrysanthemums. This variety is easily the finest white today.

Charles H. McKubbin, of Henry A. Dreer, Inc., reports that the seed supply for the coming season is practically assured at reasonable prices.

Paul F. Richter, of the Henry F. Michell Co., mentions the receipt of a single order for 15,520 pounds of grass seed. Chief Burton, of the plant department, reports activity in perennials.

It was the finest show the society ever has held, almost entirely contributed by the private gardens of the Hill. The features were some wonderfully well grown chrysanthemums of the Japanese type, singles trained in bush form with a mass of blooms most attractive in appearance, standard heliotropes and geraniums, foliage plants, ferns and cut roses. The Market.

Frost has come at last, though several weeks later than last year, and all the outdoor stock has been frozen. The churches have put in their orders for winter cut flowers and fern dishes are making their way to the greenhouses in larger numbers—one of the regular results of a heavy frost.

Our big new sixty-million-dollar union depot was opened October 30 and 31. Thousands of people came to the city to help celebrate, making business better for the trade in general. The location of the new station means a saving of from fifteen minutes to a half hour for the florists of this city when expressing flowers to surrounding towns.

Business last week showed a marked improvement over the week previous, as many flowers were used for various decorations. Hallowe'en work was more plentiful this year than last, according to the general report. The principal cut flowers are mums and there are more on the market this year than ever before at this time, although the demand seems to clean them up by evening. Every florist who has greenhouses this year has planted mums. It was thought at first that the mums would overflow the market, but this has not been the case so far, though the prices of commercial sizes remain below those of last year. Fancy varieties, however, are still high-priced and there are hardly enough to meet the demand. Pompons and singles have a strong hold on the market, on account of their increasing use for basket work. In large chrysanthemums yellow is needed in this market, as the wholesalers report that several times last week they had to hustle to get enough of that color to fill orders.

The supply of roses is falling off considerably; the demand is not heavy, but more could be sold if they could be procured. The shortage in American Beauties will undoubtedly advance the price to some extent. Carnation receipts are heavier and exceed the requirements. Most of the carnations are soft. Some of them are as good as those of a year ago, but the pompon mums seem to keep the sale of these down. Pot plants, such as 4-inch to 7-inch stock in begonias, mums and Primula obconica, are selling well.

Various Notes.

Adolph D. Mohr has purchased sixteen lots near Seventy-sixth street and Broadway. The tract contains one and two-thirds acres and has a Broadway frontage of 240 feet. Mr. Mohr will use it for a greenhouse site and nursery. It is located in one of the best residence districts of this city. The purchase price was $5,200.

Joseph Austin has his place in good shape. He has a nice lot of mums, begonias and cyclamens.

A. F. Barbe is cutting a fine lot of mums, carnations and roses. His snapdragons are exceptionally fine.

C. Biedermann has been laid up for over three weeks. The first two weeks he had a carbuncle on his right hand and now the trouble is rheumatism. The trade hopes he will be entirely well before long.

lowe'en. There was a big shock of corn at one side and a pumpkin man in the center, making a good Hallowe'en effect.

E. A. Humfeld reports business as good, but he is having trouble with the glass in his houses. The grease that settles from the smoke is not easy to clean off and has to be washed too often to make a large place desirable where he is located. W. J. B.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

The first snow of the season fell on Monday night, October 26, with a low temperature; consequently most of the outdoor stock was frozen. Trade was quiet for the greater part of the week, but it is hoped that these conditions will not last long. The quiet season has provided every chance to get ready for the busy season and all are expecting a good rush for Thanksgiving and Christmas. Several parties were held on Hallowe'en, causing an extra call for yellow mums and pompons.

Some fine mums are to be seen in many varieties. Among the best sellers are Chrysolora, Halliday, Pacific Supreme, Polly Rose, Touset and Ivory. The yellows moved faster than the whites last week. Artemisias sold well last week. The receipts of roses are not so large as heretofore, but the quality continues to keep up well. Beauties are selling slowly, though they are fine stock. Easter lilies are abundant. Valley is not overplentiful, but serves the demand. Cattleyas have been plentiful, but there is little call for them just now. Violets are moving better, now that the cold weather is with us. Some good tuberoses are seen in most stores and are used a great deal in design work. Carnations are scarce. Two weeks ago there was a serious glut of them; now we almost beg for them. Asparagus plumosus and Sprengeri, leucothoe leaves and dagger ferns are sufficient for all demands.

Various Notes.

Among the out-of-town callers last week was M. Ford, of Baumann & Co., Chicago.

Hallowe'en window displays were a great attraction to the public last week. J. B. Keller Sons had a fine window decoration, consisting of a shock of corn stalks and seven or eight large pumpkins, with faces carved on the pumpkins and electric lights placed inside. Large yellow mums in vases added to the display.

The Rochester Floral Co. had a daintily arranged window. A bundle of corn stalks was placed at the side, and streamers of yellow baby ribbon were attached to pretty vases and baskets of yellow flowers.

H. E. Bates is away on a business trip, visiting Pittsburgh, Pa., and neighboring towns.

H. E. Wilson's window display included autumn foliage and yellow pompons, artistically arranged. An immense pumpkin with a carved face was filled prettily with pompons, Chrysolora mums and a number of miniature electric lights. Large vases of yellow mums were placed in the background.

Hugo Teute cut the first Turner chrysanthemums last week and they were of immense size. He has about 500 of that variety which will soon be ready to cut, and which appear to be in good condition.

Charles W. Curtis is certainly to be congratulated on his new show house. On Monday, October 26, heat for the first time was turned into this up-to-date iron-frame house. It is fitted up with galvanized angle-iron-frame benches, which rest on concrete walks and are filled with fine, healthy potted ferns. The heating system is well arranged and is invisible, as all pipes, etc., are under the benches. The Lord & Burnham Co. filled the contract.

H. E. Wilson received several cases of azaleas from Europe last week.

The Market.

With the exception of October 30 and 31, when the markets cleaned up a trifle better, business has not shown any improvement. The Michigan-Harvard football game and Hallowe'en made the demand a little better at the close of last week, but the present week opens under depressing conditions.

Chrysanthemums have reached their flood tide; the early varieties are practically over. Ivory, Bonnaffon, Eaton and other second early and late sorts are now in season. Bonnaffon remains wonderfully popular and sells better than any other variety. A few good flowers have made $3 to $4 per dozen, but the general run is from $12 per hundred downwards, with a heavy surplus. Carnations show no improvement in sales, although some really grand blooms are coming in. Roses are not quite so abundant, but prices are low. Ophelia is popular; so is Sunburst, although it is coming in of poor color now as compared with Ward. Taft, Shawyer, Killarney Queen and Hadley are other favorites. Prices on Beauties continue extremely low. There is a good sale for the little Mlle. Cecile Brunner.

Violets are selling cheaply and colder weather is needed to improve their quality. Snapdragons as yet are short-stemmed and not in good demand. Lilies include speciosums as well as longiflorums. Cornflowers and yellow marguerites meet with a fairly good demand, as does lily of the valley. Cosmos, mignonette, callas and pansies sell poorly. Cattleyas, cypripediums and yellow oncidiums are in excess of the demand. Gardenias are a little more plentiful, but the call for them is poor.

Plant trade as yet seems to lack snap.

Various Notes.

F. W. Fletcher, of Auburndale, has one of the neatest and most up-to-date establishments around Boston, having made many improvements this year. He has one house entirely planted with snapdragons and a 100-foot bench in another house. Freesias are being grown heavily again.

The annual chrysanthemum show of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, which opens November 5, seems likely to prove a varied and interesting one. Chrysanthemums now are not grown to single stems or as specimen plants to more than a limited extent here, but other flowers and plants are taking their place.

The W. W. Edgar Co. is marketing, in addition to chrysanthemums, a fine lot of Lilium speciosum, also bunches of Beaute Poitevine geranium. Lorraines and cyclamens are starting to move nicely.

W. W. Tailby, of Wellesley, is growing 12,000 chrysanthemums this season. About all are needed for his retail trade. He is one of the few growers sending tuberoses into the market.

L. E. Small, of Tewksbury, is the largest local grower of bachelor's buttons. He is devoting more space than ever to them this season and can pick thousands of fine flowers daily.

The new store of the Houghton-Gorney Co., on Tremont street, is practically completed and Mr. Houghton hopes to be able to move in during the month. His present store will be occupied by Zinn, now located a few doors away on the same street.

Penn featured dainty little baskets of Mlle. Cecile Brunner roses last week and had a large sale. Business for October just equaled that of last year, which was considered most encouraging. Penn is sending circular letters to all of the nearly 300 retailers advertising in The Review with copies of his advertisements, asking for their criticisms or opinions and asking for copies of any newspaper advertising they are doing. This he will continue, hoping to make it of mutual benefit.

Peter Hylen, of Randolph, is handling a splendid lot of Ivory and Pink Ivory and Halliday mums. Ivory and Bonnaffon continue the two most popular mums on the markets here.

Robert Cameron, of the Harvard Botanic Gardens, was one of the judges at the New York chrysanthemum show last week and reports some fine cut blooms and bush plants.

ber 2. Mr. Carbone, as usual, made many heavy purchases. These include quite a few novelties and, in spite of existing conditions, his importations are coming to hand in good season.

The Boston Cut Flower Co. did an extensive decoration October 28 for the wedding of Miss Campbell, of Dorchester. Mr. Rosenthal is mourning the death of his brother, Herman, who passed away October 24.

F. J. Dolansky is the heaviest local shipper of Cattleya Trianæ to the wholesale markets. His gardenia cut is steadily increasing.

Harry Quint has improvements practically completed at his new store, 198 Tremont street, and reports business as quite satisfactory.

Nomination of officers for 1915 will be made at the meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club November 17.

B. P. Winch, of Framingham, is sending some fine carnations this season. He grows chiefly Pink Delight, Fenn, Benora and Enchantress. He also has fine Chrysolora mums.

Ernest H. Borowski, of Roslindale, has a superb house of cyclamens and Cincinnati begonias. I doubt if any other Boston grower can show finer plants than Mr. Borowski. His azaleas have arrived in splendid shape.

Norris F. Comley is growing 35,000 carnations this season, in addition to large quantities of sweet peas and violets. His Beacon and Enchantress are fine. Other varieties grown are Pink Delight, Benora and Ward.

Among the specially fine chrysanthemums seen in the local markets this week are the Bonnaffons from W. R. Nicholson, of Framingham, and Chryso-

A few more pupils are still needed to bring the landscape classes of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club up to the full quota. Those desiring to join must make early application.

Until October 28 we had Japanese anemones, roses, chrysanthemums, dahlias and other outdoor flowers in fine condition, but temperatures as low as 18 degrees have cleaned up all remaining outdoor stock. The market, however, has not improved with the cessation of outdoor supplies.

J. Harry Levis and T. J. Gough, of A. M. Davenport's staff, Watertown, are securing patents on a new dovetail greenhouse bench. This reinforced bench can be made of concrete, glass, tile, clay or any plastic material; is sectional, interchangeable and has no rights or lefts. Advantages claimed for it by the makers are that it can be put up and taken down at will; two men can handle any part and place it; that it is comparatively in-

The Market.

The increasing supply of chrysanthemums during the last week made crowded markets all along the line. All Saints' day and the horse show used up large quantities of cut stock, but the increased demand hardly made an impression on the great quantities of stock that came in daily. Business is reported picking up in all parts of the city, but the demand is not as yet large enough to consume the daily consignments.

In chrysanthemums we find the early varieties going out and the late ones coming in, with exceptionally good quality. Bonnaffons are fine, and Ivory is holding a leading place. All pompons sell well and many fine varieties are seen daily. Roses are plentiful, but from the looks of the wholesale markets the demand for them must be slow. All varieties are in heavy supply, except Russell and Hadley. Killarneys comprise the bulk of the stock, with quality clean and healthy. Violets are coming along nicely and as yet there is no oversupply. Demand is fairly good. Carnations run along like roses, heavy in supply and little demand. Some nice orchids are coming in. Valley is fine, also lilies. These alone hold up their price. Prices on all other stock, including chrysanthemums, have been lower than in any previous year. Asparagus and smilax, also fancy ferns, have a large sale.

Various Notes.

The St. Louis Press Club entertained October 30, in its new quarters in the Railway Exchange building. The clubrooms were handsomely decorated with autumn leaves, pumpkins, corn shocks and yellow and white chrysanthemums, which greatly impressed the visitors as they entered.

A. G. Greiner says he had a fine season in the sale of cactus plants. The sale of California privet has been heavy this fall. Young plants are scarce, as the dry summer killed them off, and 2-year-old plants only are obtainable.

Ostertag Bros. put in a busy week supplying visitors to the horse show with cut chrysanthemums. Their store is close to the big Coliseum, where the show was held. October 31 all hands were busy with Hallowe'en party decorations.

Martin Moran, of the St. Louis Seed Co., has been calling on the trade, taking advance orders for Christmas holly. Their brand, called "Very Best," had a good run last year, so Mr. Moran had no trouble in booking up last year's customers.

santhemum plants for All Saints' day. These sold much better than cut flowers.

The wholesale houses of Smith, Kuehn, Berning, Windler and Angermueller were never so well supplied with cut chrysanthemums as during the last week. The increased production by our local growers this year caused these conditions and roses and carnations will have to suffer until the end of the mum season.

Marion Uhlschmidt, manager of Grimm & Gorly's east side branch, reports that their new show house in the rear of the store has been completed and is filled with fine blooming and decorative plants. This store is quite an attraction for the east side folks.

Andrew Hoffmann, manager for George Waldbart, says trade has not been so steady as at this time last year, but that they have been quite busy. A fine cut of fancy cosmos from Mr. Waldbart's farm was seen and also a big display of fancy cut chrysanthemums.

Arnold Ringier, of the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago, in company with Fred Lembke, traveling salesman, called on the trade last week. They booked quite a few large orders for bulbs, seeds and supplies.

The supply department of the W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co. is working overtime on orders for the new white beaded wood easels. Paddy Patton, head of the shipping department, says every time the boss puts in an extra advertisement in The Review it keeps them on the jump.

From Shenandoah avenue south along Grand, large crowds are seen admiring

W. W. Stertzing, 7280 Manchester avenue, Maplewood, has a fine lot of pot chrysanthemums in full bloom. Mr. Stertzing says business was good with him all last month.

R. E. Blackshaw and Geo. Husmann, representing the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, were at the Maryland hotel last week with a line of florists' supplies. They entertained the local trade and had a fine run of business.

Fred C. Weber's new show house was an attractive spot last week. A fine lot of cut stock was artistically displayed and was admired by all who saw it.

Mrs. Louisa M. Seeger, mother of William A. and Martin J. Seeger, and mother-in-law of N. M. Kingsley, proprietors of the Mullanphy Florists, died November 1, at the age of 70 years. The funeral took place November 3 and was private. Many beautiful floral pieces were sent by friends. The Grand avenue store and the downtown branch were closed Monday and Tuesday.

Joseph Hauser, of Webster Groves, says the slight frost last week did no damage to his single red dahlias and he is still bringing them to market in large quantities. They are so protected that it will take a heavy frost to kill them.

The Florists' Club will hold an important meeting next Thursday afternoon, November 12, in Odd Fellows' hall. Final discussion and vote on the proposed spring flower show and a lot of other business will come up and the officers hope the members will attend in good numbers. J. J. B.

Seed Trade News.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

President, Lester L. Morse, San Francisco, Cal.; Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

Thirty-third annual convention, San Francisco, Cal., 1915.

BEANS are a poor crop, of course, but they should be an unusually fine sample as a result of the harvest weather.

AN increase in capital stock from $10,000 to $25,000 has been filed in the Ohio secretary of state's office by the J. Wilder Seed Co., of Cincinnati.

IT is reported that some of the Holland bulb exporters who take orders also for French bulbs and Belgian plants this year have not delivered any of their azaleas.

THE seed growers in California feel that "it is an ill wind that blows nobody good" and think conditions in Europe this season will bring American seed producers all the business they can handle.

THE Aggeler & Musser Seed Co., Los Angeles, has removed its warehouse, general office and sales department to 1200 Produce street, on the grounds of the Los Angeles public market, where 25,000 square feet of floor space has been equipped with all the up-to-date accessories for the seed business. The old store will be continued as a retail branch.

THE market for Formosa lily bulbs has proved a surprise. Early in the season it was figured the supply would not equal the demand and most of the dealers were a bit shy about booking orders. When it developed that the crop was larger than expected it was thought the demand, which has been growing steadily, would quickly clean up the surplus. That it has not done so has been a disappointment. The probability is most of the large buyers had covered their wants with Harrisii or giganteum and that they were deterred from taking additional quantities of lily bulbs because the situation did not develop until after the war had become a factor.

THERE has ceased to be serious apprehension among seedsmen regarding the effect of the European war upon seed supplies this year. None, however, is able to foresee what the effect may be next season if the war continues. Prices are strong, but the larger houses in the trade have their usual reserve seed supplies calculated to meet just such a situation as confronts us at the present time. There is much less uncertainty about the situation in flower seeds next season than about vegetable seeds. It still is purely a matter of speculation as to how many vegetable seeds can be sent from Germany if the war keeps swinging in the same direction as recently. There is the possibility that shipments may exceed normal years, just as in the case of bulbs. England, it seems, is in a much better situation than was at first expected. Let-

The Only Man

We fear is the fellow who doesn't know about us. If you are a grower and don't buy Horseshoe Brand bulbs it is probably our fault for not being on the job—but it's your loss as much as ours. Think it over.

Another Thing

In regard to lily bulbs, you can get deliveries in your immediate section of the country, thus saving freight and delay.

The Best Thing

About it all, however, is that Horseshoe Brand Bulbs are the most profitable to grow in the world. There is no brand anywhere which has a uniforn standard of value to equal it.

BULBS VIA PANAMA.

Ralph M. Ward & Co., New York, report that their first shipment of merchandise direct from Japan to New York via the Panama canal will leave Japan this month. It will be a shipment of hemp braid. Another shipment will follow later, of giganteum bulbs and oriental orchids. It will be interesting to note how lily bulbs will arrive by that route. It is considered too warm to ship bulbs that way from July to October, owing to the great danger of heating. The freight rate, while cheaper than via railroads from the Pacific coast, is just the same as by the Suez canal. It has never proved profitable to ship bulbs via Suez, owing to the risk of decay, and it is much doubted if the service via Panama will be of any benefit in the importation of Japanese lily bulbs.

FEW BULBS FROM HOLLAND.

The consignments of bulbs from Holland received at the port of New York last week were less than 100, showing a heavy falling off in receipts in comparison with previous weeks. Two steamers arrived from Rotterdam during the week, the Rotterdam October 26 and the Epsilon October 28. The consignments on board were as follows:

seed, which trade-mark the complainant alleges is its own. Numerous witnesses appeared for each side during the day, and at the conclusion of the taking of testimony, counsel announced that they would submit the case on briefs. Judge Hollister gave the complainant two weeks within which to file its brief, and the defendant was allowed ten days additional to file its brief. Munn & Munn, of New York city, and Walter F. Murray, of Cincinnati, represented the complainant, and Pogue, Hoffheimer & Pogue, the defendant.

EXPRESS WARRANTY OF SEED.

Under an Oral Contract.

When controversy arises as to whether a statement made by a seller of seed concerning its quality is to be regarded as an express warranty, the question is to be determined by the test whether the seller assumes to assert a fact of which the buyer is ignorant, or merely states an opinion or judgment upon a matter of which the seller has no special knowledge, and on which the buyer may be expected also to have an opinion, and to exercise his own judgment; in the former case there is a warranty, in the latter not. At least, this is the test announced by the Appellate Division of the New York Supreme Court in the case of Coleman vs. Simpson Hendee & Co., 147 New York Supplement 865. This case was a suit to recover damages for claimed breach of warranty in the sale of a carload of seed oats under an oral contract. The court finds that the following facts were sufficient to sustain a finding of an express warranty of the quality of the oats.

Plaintiff requested defendant's selling agent to furnish "northern-grown seed oats," saying that he desired something nice and would pay a premium over and above the price for seed oats, and the agent answered that they had them, and that he would see that plaintiff received a nice carload. Plaintiff advised the agent that he desired the oats to sell to his farmers and customers, and that they were "cranks on seed oats." The next day the agent went to the plaintiff and gave confirmation that the oats were tested seed oats. Two witnesses called to testify in the case stated that the term "seed oats" means in the trade "any selected natural oats," without anything being taken from or added to the oats in their natural state, not including "sulphured" oats. S.

Extremely low prices for any stock is detrimental to GOOD business.

CUCUMBER DISEASES.

There have come to the U. S. Department of Agriculture this year an unusual number of complaints of losses to cucumber growers from blights of foliage or fruit, particularly in certain north-central states where pickle growing is an important industry.

These injuries have proved upon investigation to be due to one or another of several distinct troubles: blighting of the foliage by downy mildew or anthracnose, diseases which have already proved controllable by spraying with Bordeaux mixture; to the bacterial wilt, a disease the cause of which is known and for which a remedy is being sought; to the pickle spot, a disease of sporadic occurrence and not yet remediable; or in some cases to a disease of still unknown nature called white pickle.

Those troubles not already worked out are being investigated by the state experiment stations in Wisconsin, Michigan and New York, or by the United States Department of Agriculture, and a plan is being formulated jointly by these institutions to carry aid to the growers in case of a recurrence of the diseases next year. Rotation of crops is recommended. There is no evidence that these diseases are spread through the seed.

PRICE THEM BY THE POUND.

Several organizations of seedsmen have gone on record as favoring the sale of peas, beans, corn and grass seed by the pound instead of by dry measure. At the Washington meeting of the American Seed Trade Association the following resolutions were adopted and Secretary Kendel was instructed to bring them conspicuously to the attention of all seedsmen:

Whereas: Weight is the real basis of practically all sales of seed; and

Whereas: Selling or buying by measure simply makes an extra and a useless operation as well as opportunity for error, since a measure is seldom used except for three kinds of garden seeds and small quantities of lawn grass; and

Whereas: The selling of seeds by weight has proven entirely practical and successful in many cases, and notably so in the west; and the selling by weight of such seeds as are actually measured by anyone, namely, peas, beans, sweet corn, and lawn grass, has been tried successfully by large seed houses without any inconvenience or question; and

Whereas: Lawful weights on many items in many states are far from correct; and whereas the variation in legal weights as between the different states causes considerable inconvenience and in numerous cases is unfair to dealers; and

Whereas: Some states are already passing laws making it compulsory to sell seeds by weight; and

Whereas: Other associations have requested us to take action on this matter; therefore be it

Resolved: That it is the sense of the American Seed Trade Association in convention assembled that seedsmen should list and quote seed by weight, the bushel measure being no longer necessary; and further be it

Resolved: That our secretary inform the seedsmen of America of this action on the part of this association respectfully requesting them, for their own and the common good, to abandon the listing and quoting of seeds by measure only, as rapidly as possible to do so without injury to the trade; and further be it

Resolved: That a copy of these resolutions be transmitted to the Bureau of Standards, Washington, D. C.

WILL USE PARCEL POST.

The Post-Office Department estimates that the expansion of the parcel post by which plants, seeds and bulbs were admitted to parcel post rates will increase postal business at Yonges, S. C., from $5,000 a year to more than $2,000 daily. Yonges has a population of only fifty, but is the center of a large vegetable plant growing section. In the coming season of heaviest traffic shipments of bulbs and vegetable plants are expected to aggregate twenty-five tons a day. The growers are said to be preparing to ship ninety per cent of their products by parcel post.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

PASADENA FALL SHOW.

Bigger and Better Than Ever.

President Wm. Hutchison, of the Pasadena Horticultural Society, must have felt a thrill of pride at the excellence of the show which he so ably managed, and which opened at the Hotel Maryland, in the Crown City, October 22, continuing the next two days. The weather was delightful, the entries were bigger than ever and the quality of the exhibits has never been equaled before. The summer has been cool here and especially well suited to the Japanese varieties of chrysanthemums, which are almost universally grown here, and I never before have seen such splendidly finished, large blooms of Wm. Turner, Lady Hopetoun, Mrs. Weeks, W. Mease and Scalarandis as were here shown.

Wm. Hutchison had a most attractive group of specimen plants, comprising coleuses, fine ferns and foliage stock. R. Mackenzie also showed some splendid specimens of ferns. In fruit and vegetables the competition was keen and the judges had difficulty in making their awards. The judges were Wm. Hertrich, Alex. Urquhart, J. Jannoch, H. R. Richards, Thomas Chisholm and William Farrell. There were a few exceptionally fine plants, notably a large display of Scalarandis, but this was badly staged, being placed in the center of a group of other and rather tall plants, which hid it to some extent.

The Trade Exhibits.

In the trade groups Howard & Smith had the center of the tent and had arranged around the central pole a pretty showing of ferns, small palms and other plants, with dahlias shown on flat, papered boards. The group of chrysanthemums in many varieties from Miss Sadie Thomas was a great attraction, the pompons being especially good. Close to it was a good showing of tropical fruits from the West India Gardens, of Altadena; here many choice specimens were staged.

The most imposing group in the show was a large one from the Germain Seed & Plant Co., of Los Angeles. This occupied about 700 square feet and consisted of fine specimen kentias, Ficus pandurata, bays and other green foliage plants. A recess was filled with choice lily of the valley in pots, arranged with ferns, while plants of the giant strain of cyclamens for which this firm is noted gave the needed relief in color, aided by a few cut chrysanthemums. Tables containing Dutch and local-grown bulbs, and Chinese lilies growing in bowls of water, were also staged, and the exhibit was just as fresh and neat the last minute of the show on Saturday night as on the opening day. Close by, J. Jannoch had a pretty pergola made of pared eucalyptus covered with rambling roses, a most effective bit of work.

The Clemence Nursery had a large and pretty group of various flowering and foliage plants, including some tuberous begonias that were of choice quality for so late in the season. Laurie's had a fine showing of dahlias. The Campbell Seed Store, Morris & Snow, E. Teekamp and the Dorman-Shaw Seed Co. all had showings of bulbs and seeds.

On the evening of the opening day Thomas Chisholm entertained the judges and officers of the society at a most enjoyable banquet, where not only the good things to eat and drink but also the good things at the show were discussed to the full. Mr. Chisholm is an inimitable host and his quaint stories kept all in good spirits and brought a most pleasant day to a satisfactory end.

H. R. Richards.

PALO ALTO, CAL.

Horticultural Society Show.

The annual show of the Menlo Park Horticultural Society, held at Armory hall, October 23 to 25, proved a decided success in every way. It was conceded by everyone to be the best ever held by the society. The spacious hall allowed everything to be staged for the best effect.

The orchid groups were first-class. J. A. Carbone, of Berkeley, staged a magnificent collection of forty different varieties, including some fine brassocattleya and lælia hybrids. The exhibit of David Bassett, gardener for L. Stern, attracted more attention from the public. While not containing so many fine hybrids as Mr. Carbone's, it contained some fine cattleyas, lælias, oncidiums, phalænopsis, dendrobiums, vandas, odontoglossums and several curious rare orchids.

Foliage and decorative plants were finely shown by J. Sinclair, gardener for Mrs. J. B. Coryell; David Bassett; J. Paunicka, gardener for C. Lathrop, and C. Ehrlich, gardener for Mrs. Slade.

The cut chrysanthemum classes brought out strong competition. The following varieties stood out prominently: Mrs. Gilbert Drabble, Wm. Turner and Maud Jeffries, in white; Lenox, F. S. Vallis, Chrysolora and Mrs. J. C. Neill, yellow; Elberon, Wells' Late Pink, Morton F. Plant, in pinks; G. W. Pook, J. Lock, Mrs. H. Stevens, Reginald Vallis, Ongawa and Glenview, in other colors. The collection of novelties shown by the Lynch Nursery Co. was fine and included Odessa, James Fraser, Nerissa, Meudon and Flamingo.

Tuberous begonias were fine, both in pots and cut blooms, L. Stern's exhibits containing the latest European novelties of 1914. Although a little late, dahlias were good and brought keen competition from the Menlo Park and San Mateo growers.

Carnations were never shown better. Gorgeous, as shown by the Peninsula Nursery Co., San Mateo, and F. R. Mills, Palo Alto, with 3-foot stems, would be hard to beat. White Wonder, The Herald, Princess Dagmar, Enchantress and Yellowstone were also fine.

The floral exhibits on the third day were fine and helped the gate receipts considerably. In the table decorations, A. McDonald won the cup donated by the Chamber of Commerce of Palo Alto, his table consisting of a small lake

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

A week of tropical heat, rarely encountered so late in the season, quite demoralized business here. This was the more to be regretted, as things were moving along finely and everybody thought the "good old winter time" had started. The old saying, "Never whistle till you're out of the woods," may be altered to read, "Keep mum till the mums are gone," for we usually have a slump sometime during the reign of the "golden flower." At present, however, though the weather is still warm, there is a better tone to business. Retailers begin to realize that both Thanksgiving and Christmas are in the offing and that there may be big things happening yet. Among the healthy signs are the arrangements many of our biggest men are making for forward delivery of stock for the coming season and the anxiety as to whether Christmas stock is going to be up to the mark or not.

In the wholesale houses almost everything appears to be pretty well cleared up. Our biggest grower of indoor roses here had not sufficient stock to spare to make exhibits at local shows, while the growers of outdoor roses are not able to take care of their customers with first-rate stock. The grower with a bunch of second-rate stock and the back-yard grower of mums of course find business bad and their bitter cry goes up. But, unfortunately, next year they will have the same poor stock, the same calamity howl and the same pessimistic view of life generally. Stock is about the same as at last writing, except that chrysanthemums are shortening up and dahlias are better in quality and more plentiful, as the hot week suited them well.

Various Notes.

G. M. Bridgford, of Eagle Rock, is a quality seeker in everything pertaining to the cut flower business. His Dutch bulb plantings this year are not of the usual stereotyped varieties, but the best that the market affords, and it looks as though there were a few surprises due next season for the better class of retailers who handle his output.

O. C. Saakes has got tired of other people building around him and mussing up the sidewalk, and so has gone into the building game himself. He evidently believes that the wise men come from the east—also the flower buyers—and from now on the latch string will be out where the sun rises. Possibly he has other reasons for altering his store front, as he does not usually leap in the dark.

H. N. Gage still looks prosperous and the store is a busy place these days. His automobile appears to be making pretty frequent trips to Montebello—where the flowers grow. He does not take all the credit either, but declares that much of the success of the Montebello nursery is due to the skillful work put in by his brother.

Fred Sperry has been on the sick list, but is around again, attending to business in his usual quiet, forceful way. "Quality counts," is Mr. Sperry's motto and he believes in having his customers satisfied.

Smith & Dieterich report a much larger share of transient trade than they expected in their new store at Seventh and Figueroa streets. Hervey Lindley, their capable manager here, says they have a number of good weddings booked for November, and at the time of my visit funeral work was plentiful.

At Wolfskills' & Morris Goldenson's the state of the workroom around midday is usually an index to the work done and it is not always tidy. But John Gordon does not usually look glum because there is a muss on the floor, and, seeing his usually pleasant face elongated when I called, I had to get at the reason, which was that Morris had related a Scotch story that John couldn't cap with a Hebrew one.

S. Murata & Co. have placed a new delivery car in service, to take care of their increasing city trade. A busier place than this store would be hard to find these days, extra help having been taken on to cope with the work.

Howard & Smith are making a big bid for retail business at the store at Ninth and Olive streets. While the florists' end is always kept in full front, this energetic firm is also pushing seeds and bulbs strongly, with a stock that is fine in every particular.

Mrs. Leon De Staute signalized their return from the war zone in Europe by presenting to her husband a fine boy October 25. Both mother and child are doing well in the Montebello hospital.

Earl E. Sidebottom, of the legal and land departments of the Germain Seed & Plant Co., was passing the cigars October 27 and receiving congratulations on the arrival of a son. Mr. Marks,

The Market.

The supply of carnations and mums is much greater than the market can handle. A heavy call for funeral work has helped matters a little in the last day or two, but the growers have to dump much of their inferior stock and some first-class stock has been thrown on the market at any price offered. No California mums are now to be seen. The local-grown stock is excellent, but the early varieties are from two to four weeks earlier than usual and the midseason varieties are beginning to come in. The present excessive cut of carnations is likely to cause a limited supply for the holidays. Perennials are now plentiful and a few roses have been lifted. The supply of valley pips is considered sufficient to last over the holidays, but after that the supply will depend upon conditions in the foreign war zone. Home-grown violets are plentiful and but few California-grown ones are seen. Roses of all sorts are abundant and of excellent quality. The only shortage is in orchids, and as there are such attractive displays of other flowers, the orchids are not missed.

Various Notes.

W. Thompson, the greenhouse builder, has recovered from his recent attack of blood poisoning and is looking after several jobs which he has on hand.

William Borsch, of Hillsdale, is bringing in some first-class perennials.

J. B. Pilkington has done a great deal of experimenting to determine the varieties best suited to this climate, and among the shrubs he has found good and is introducing this year are: Ceanothus Gloire de Versailles, Buddleia magnifica, Salvia Greggii and pernettyas.

J. G. Bacher, of the Swiss Floral Co., is receiving congratulations on the arrival of a new daughter in his family.

The Van Kirk Floral Co. has a fine cut of carnations. They grow successfully nine varieties. They make regular shipments to customers outside of Portland. They have one house of mums, where the pompons are now in full bloom.

The Wilson-Crout Co. is growing no vegetables this year. The entire range is devoted to potted and benched stock, for both cut flowers and plants. A fine lot of celestial peppers has found ready sale. J. A. Wilson is general manager and A. Alenius is foreman.

E. R. Chappell, now at Lubliner's store, will leave this week to take a position with the Thorsted Floral Co., of Oakland, Cal.

The first Wm. Turner mums have come in. Some fine specimens are displayed by Clarke Bros.

H. F. Richards' carnation range is at East Sixty-eighth and Alder streets, in the residence section of Mount Tabor, and he has sold a strip from the rear of his property to give more area to the grounds about a fine residence now under construction. He had to move off his boiler and reset his piping. He has held back his plants on account of a dull market and they are due to come into full bloom later. He is offering his land for sale, intending to move his range farther out, where he will not be so crowded.

the Pieters-Wheeler Seed Co., of Gilroy, Cal., called on the trade last week.

At the carnation range of Edw. Dungey, at East Seventieth and Morrison streets, and that of W. E. Dungey, his son, at East Seventy-sixth and Madison streets, the plans are in full bloom. In both ranges some greens and bedding stock are grown.

The Mountain View Floral Co. has ten acres about its range of glass at East Seventy-second and Mill streets, on the southeast slope of Mount Tabor. They are preparing to put in seven acres of early potatoes; the balance is in shrubs and plants. At this range they propagate stock for their 17-acre nursery near Gresham. This company introduced, a few years ago, the Meteor geranium, which is now seen everywhere and is considered among the best single reds.

President Van Kirk, of the Florists' Club, has announced his appointment of the committee, authorized at the last meeting, to promote the more extensive use of flowers in boxes and baskets as street and building decorations, and to establish a permanent exhibit of bedding stock on public property and arrange for its maintenance during the season. The committee is as follows: H. E. Weed, chairman; Julius Dorsche, W. L. Crissey, Albert Rahn and J. G. Bacher. The foregoing are for active service. A consulting committee, to aid in planning the work, is composed of James Forbes, A. J. Clarke, J. B. Pilkington, E. T. Mische and Henry Kahn.

The Martin & Forbes Co. has a fine display of cut flowers at its booth in the Armory, where the land products show is now being held. This firm's exhibit is the only floral display there.

M. J. Maegley and L. Turner have opened a store at 166 East Thirty-seventh street. Mr. Maegley was formerly with the People's Floral Shop, at Second and Alder streets. S. W. W.

SEATTLE, WASH.

The Market.

There is a lull in the flower business at present, partly caused by uncertainty in the result of the forthcoming election, which is of an upsetting kind, with prohibition and an 8-hour law for this state among the questions for decision, and partly by conditions within the trade. The unusually fine, bright weather has brought carnations into full bloom, so that there has been an oversupply in the market. Some florists have seen fit to placard their windows with signs offering carnations at 25 cents per dozen, and even as low as 15 cents per dozen, but the more conservative venders have kept to the usual price and in some cases as high as $1 a dozen is asked and received for Gorgeous. As times go now, it is a hard matter to make any money out of growing carnations, but when it comes to selling them and advertising them at 15 cents per dozen, can anyone, grower, wholesaler or retailer, get a living? In this climate carnations have hitherto been the principal winter crop of flowers for all growers, so that unless a fair price is secured there is no possibility of making the flower business interesting for anyone. Roses are plentiful, with a fair demand that causes a good clean-up. Chrysanthemums are selling well, with considerable shipments still coming in from California. Violets again are being peddled on the streets, notwithstanding the ordinance prohibiting the practice. Possibly the retailers do not care to see to its enforcement, and as there are no home-grown violets here, it is a matter of no interest to anyone else. The peddlers seem to dispose of quantities and this may cause the scentless stuff to be little used by discriminating people. Few outdoor flowers are left. Of ferns and foliage plants there are plenty. A few cyclamens are offered, but these and primulas are about all the flowering plants now on sale.

Various Notes.

The Market.

The trade situation may be sized up in a few words. With an abundance of stock and little business, there can be but one result and that is an oversupply. Never have we had more beautiful weather than this autumn and never has business been slower. Stock of all kinds is of excellent quality; carnations, especially, have good stem and substance. Most of the bulbous stock is now planted and about the usual quantity was handled this season. Nursery stock is moving well; the late fall is prolonging the planting season, with a corresponding increase of sales.

Various Notes.

The local growers are coöperating in furnishing the bulbs for the city parks this season and large numbers are being planted in the various parks.

Mr. Atkinson, of Gig Harbor, is doing some landscape work in this city.

The Kentia Nurseries are noted for the clean and healthy plants sent out from their establishment, and they lay much of their success to the regular use of their insecticide, Flora, a preparation they control and use both at the local nursery and at their Ghent, Belgium, nursery. The lath house here contains over 100,000 square feet and is filled with choice kentias, from thirty inches to fourteen feet high. The Verhelle brothers, George F. and A. J., are both practical men, understanding their business from the ground up; hence their success.

Visalia, Cal.—Peter Perkins has opened his flower shop at 116 North Court street, where he will handle all branches of the retail business.

San Diego, Cal.—The Sies Floral Co. has been holding a flower show at its gardens in East San Diego, to which the public has been invited. The chrysanthemums were the special attraction.

Bellingham, Wash.—J. W. Kincaid has sold his property at 2431 Kulshan street and is moving his greenhouses and stock to 2306 Elizabeth street. The work has been somewhat delayed by Mr. Kincaid fracturing his right arm in falling from a building shortly after he started to move. One greenhouse is up and another will be completed by spring. The warm weather has made business dull this autumn.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

THE Interstate Commerce Commission has directed the Lake Shore railroad to refund $43 to Coe, Converse & Edwards on account of overcharges on shrubbery shipped from Dunkirk, N. Y., to Fort Atkinson, Wis.

NURSERYMEN of Phoenix, Ariz., and vicinity have organized and held two meetings during the last two weeks. Mutual protection and benefit and the enforcement of state laws in regard to the importation of stock are the objects.

PREPARATIONS for the removal of the Elm City Nursery Co., from New Haven, Conn., to Woodmont, Conn., are under way. The company has 200 acres of land at the latter place, and the offices as well as the nurseries will be located there.

FOR the "buy-a-bale" plan the Texas Nursery & Floral Co., of Alvin, Tex., is substituting the "trade-a-bale" plan. Manager D. Lee Slataper offers to trade nursery stock for twenty-five bales of cotton and allow 11 cents per pound at catalogue prices.

ONE of the large packing houses of the Farmer Seed & Nursery Co., at Faribault, Minn., was destroyed by fire a few days ago. About $500 worth of nursery stock and $300 worth of tools were also destroyed. The building and stock were partially insured.

E. TURBAT, general secretary of the syndicate of French nurserymen's associations, states that arrangements had been made up to October 16 for the transportation of nursery stock via the French railways to Havre, Dieppe, Honfleur, Nantes, St. Nazaire and Bordeaux. M. Turbat believes this insures the regular departure of all shipments to America.

FIRMS which occasionally have trouble with agents will await with interest the outcome of a suit brought against the Greening Nursery Co., of Monroe, Mich., by William C. Drake and Howard A. Jackson, former Detroit agents for the concern. Alleging that notification by the company of its customers that they had been "fired" constituted a libel, the two men are suing for $25,000 damages.

ANXIETY in regard to a substitute or method of packing to be used in case burlap becomes prohibitive in price was to some extent relieved by a representative of a bag manufacturing company at the meeting of the Texas Nurserymen's Association. He stated that burlap could now be had at the usual price and that, although he did not know just how long this price would prevail, the company was making every effort to keep an ample supply on hand.

PHASES OF SALES CONTRACTS.

A contract to sell trees provided that the buyer before delivery would advance $4 on the purchase price for every 1,000 buds, and afterward pay $4 per thousand for grafting trees not previously budded. The remainder of the contract price was to be paid one-half in cash at the time of delivery and one-half within sixty days thereafter. It was further agreed that on the buyer's failure to make any advance payment according to the contract, the seller might rescind the contract and forfeit payments already made. Under this contract it was held by the Oregon Supreme Court, in the case of Walker vs. Warring, 130 Pacific Reporter 629, that a mere delay on the buyer's part in making payments, without any conduct indicating an intent to abandon the contract, did not authorize the seller to declare a forfeiture of the advance payments and to refuse to credit such payments on the account for trees delivered. S.

MORE STOCK FROM ABROAD.

While the receipts from abroad in other lines show signs of decreasing, the imports of nursery stock seem to be on the increase each week. One boat from Rotterdam last week brought over 1,000 cases, the largest shipment of trees and shrubs that has entered the port of New York since the war broke out. The consignments carried by this steamer, the Rotterdam, which arrived at New York October 26, were as follows:

A. A. N. MEETING FOR 1915.

The fortieth annual convention of the American Association of Nurserymen will be held at Detroit, Mich., June 23 to 25, 1915. The last convention, which was held at Cleveland, O., was the largest and best for some years; the Detroit gathering, which will mark the fortieth anniversary of the association, is expected to eclipse any meeting in the history of the organization. The committees on arrangements, program and entertainment have already commenced their work. Nurserymen who are not on the membership roll of this association do themselves and this valuable trade organization a great injus-

THERE you will find all kinds, and you can take your pick from the best that grow. Perennials add a feeling of permanency to your home surroundings. They change their plumage, but not their face, and keep reflecting the seasons all the year around.

FALL PLANTING—To grow most hardy perennials and old-fashioned flowers succe-sfully, plant in October and November, like planting Spring-flowering bulbs. They then root during Fall and Winter, and are ready for Spring and Summer blooming.

No grounds are really gardened without a big showing in perennials. We are headquarters for perennials, and assure the widest latitude in choice as well as the most courteous promptitude in correspondence and service. Our motto—"Maximum Quality at Minimum Cost."

Get Our Suggestions for Your Canna Catalogue List

LAST WEEK, one of the largest seedsmen in the country asked us to make up for them a list of what we thought to be the best assortment of Cannas, all to be selected from our Swastika Brand Collection of 108 varieties, over 85 of which are Wintzer Productions.

We gladly did that very thing for them.

It saved them no little bother, and secured to them the expert services of Antoine Wintzer, who compiled their list in his characteristic, painstaking way.

If anyone knows Cannas—Wintzer does.

So why do you worry along, trying to make up a satisfactory list for your catalogue, or your stock order, when our help is yours for the asking?

Just let us know about how many varieties you want to carry, and we will send a list that can be depended on, as only Swastika Brand Cannas can be depended on.

CLEVELAND.

The Market.

Frost has killed the enormous crop of outdoor stock at last, and the call for all indoor stock is stronger as a result. Even now, however, business is not as heavy as usual at this season. Mums are overplentiful and are selling at low prices. Only extra good stock, like Turner, brings good prices. Pompons of all kinds and colors are plentiful. Carnations are getting longer and stronger stems day by day. Roses are in fair crop. Valley and lilies are just equal to a fair demand.

Various Notes.

A fire of unknown origin destroyed the shed of the Brookline Floral Co. last week, without doing material damage to the greenhouses. A force of men is busy rebuilding. The ends of the greenhouses are to be extended to take in the space formerly occupied by the shed. The stock was not damaged and business is continuing without interruption.

Monday evening, November 9, will be the regular meeting night of the Florists' Club, in its rooms at the Hollenden hotel. The welfare committee and the entertainment committee have arranged an interesting program. The Florists' Club's "round table night" is scheduled. The club rooms will be plentifully supplied with 6-foot round tables, one table to each exhibitor. Displays of plants, cut flowers, novelty arrangements, etc., will be staged. Anyone wishing to make a display of interest to the club will be welcome. Bring down a few good things and show them off.

Frank Ritzenthaler, of Knoble Bros.' force, returned last week from New York, where he had been putting in a couple of weeks at G. E. M. Stumpp's retail store, getting new ideas in flower arrangements and the eastern methods of store work. F. A. F.

Malta, O.—W. C. Scovell reports sales good so far this fall. He has been cutting a large number of cabbage heads weighing from one to two and one-quarter pounds and cauliflowers as large as five and one-half inches, which, he remarks, is certainly unusual.

NOTICE

I respectfully beg to inform the trade in general that on November 15th I will discontinue my florist business and office on Jamaica Ave., Brooklyn, and will take care of all future business at my Jamaica establishment, where I shall be prepared to execute all orders promptly.

I have an exceptionally fine stock of Christmas plants this season, and will take great pleasure in having you visit the greenhouses and look over the stock.

Thanking you for your past patronage, which has been greatly appreciated, and hoping to be favored with same in the future, I remain,

Respectfully yours,

The Market.

The supply of roses is larger than the demand. Mums are plentiful. The quality of carnations is only fair; they are short-stemmed, doubtless owing to the warm fall. The quantity is still limited.

Various Notes.

Park superintendents from fourteen cities of New England met here October 22 to organize a park institute. H. G. Hollister, superintendent of Kenney park, presided.

The Connecticut Horticultural Society will hold mum night November 13. President Huss will be glad to have any novelties sent in his care, should any members of the trade living out of town desire to stage these before the society.

W. R. Pierson returned October 27 from his hunting and fishing trip. He has a good stock of fish stories to tell his friends.

Louis L. Barton, of Elmwood, is cutting some fine roses. Rose Mrs. Taft has done exceptionally well at his place this summer.

A. N. Pierson, Inc., is testing a large variety of new chrysanthemums, including pompons. Anyone interested in mums will be well repaid in making a visit to the Pierson establishment just now.

How Much Longer Will You Sleep?
How Much Longer Will You Worry?

Worry makes gray hair. Don't get old when you can prevent it. Don't let the war worry you. Wake up! Go right ahead into business. Look out for yourself, for nobody will give you anything if you have nothing. The European war has nothing to do with the florists' business—we don't ship plants to Europe. If business is bad, don't blame the war, but blame yourself.

Look here:—I will help you and give you a chance, but for one week only, at prices seldom offered. We need the room for our great importation of Azalea Indica, and have decided to make a big reduction on the following plants:

Our Ferns are all Pot Grown. Bench grown and lifted are no good, they will go back on you. 20% reduction is not included in this list.

A 7-inch $1.00 Boston Fern we shall reduce to only 50c.
A 6-inch 75c Boston Fern we shall reduce to only 40c.
A 6-inch 50c Boston Fern we shall reduce to only 35c.

AZALEA INDICA.

DON'T BE DECEIVED. We are the only reliable importers of Azalea Indica. Our 25 year reputation of importing, selling and shipping should be sufficient proof of our ability. Be up-to-date and go nowhere else for Azaleas but to Godfrey Aschmann.

Our new crop from Belgium is on the road now, and we are able to fill every order, subject to stock being in when orders arrive, and if the stock fails to arrive, we have a big stock of 1913 importation, just as good if not better than the new crop. We have only the leading varieties.

Force Now for Christmas. For Christmas forcing we have: Mme. Petrick, very double pink, one of the best, 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 to $2.00. Vervaeneana, double rose, 50c, 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 to $2.00. Deutsche Perle, double white, 75c, $1.00, $1.50 to $2.00. Simon Mardner, double pink, 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 to $2.00. Vervaeneana Alba, double white, 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 to $2.00.

For Easter Blooming we have: Mme. Vander Cruyssen, best double pink, E. Enckhaute, Hexe, Simon Mardner, Vervaeneana, Niobe, De Schryveriana, Princess of India and other well tested varieties, at 50c, 75c, $1.00, $1.50 to $2.00. We are known to give first-class goods for the money, and always full value without giving measurements. Don't forget that we are Azalea Importers who have no equal.

ARAUCARIA.
OUR SPECIALTY.

WAR ABROAD will make the Araucarias scarce this fall and winter. But look, it won't affect Godfrey Aschmann. Why? We were not afraid to invest thousands of dollars in importing the plants in the spring of 1914, hence we do not care for the war, and are prepared to fill all orders—4 houses are filled with the choice ARAUCARIA EXCELSA. We are again able to fill all orders. 5½ and 6-inch pots, 2, 3, 4, 5 years old, 14, 15, 20 to 25 in. high, well established, 50c, 60c, 75c, $1.00, $1.25 to $1.50. The Market.

The first frost of the season came last week and destroyed most of the dahlias, cosmos and outdoor chrysanthemums that had not been protected. Indoor chrysanthemums, roses and carnations are at last coming into their own, but the two latter are not in heavy supply. Prices have advanced slightly over previous quotations. Gardenias are becoming more plentiful. Sweet peas are now to be had, and as the season advances, violets are becoming more plentiful, but this market calls almost entirely for singles. American Beauty roses have shown a marked improvement, and are bringing from $1 to $4 per dozen.

Various Notes.

A quite satisfactory Hallowe'en business has been reported. Far more dances were held this year than ever before, and the banquet and ball given by the Moving Picture Exhibitors' League of the District of Columbia called for a large supply of flowers. The stage decorations were done by George C. Shaffer, while all of the florists got their share of the cut flower business. Additional hotel decorations proved a source of profit to the downtown florists, for special celebrations were had in all.

Among the week's visitors were Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Gordon, of Ashland, Va.; G. L. Freeman, of Fall River, Mass., and Joseph J. Goudy, of Philadelphia.

A petition for the dissolution of the Florists' Exchange, 1214 H street, northwest, has been filed in the District Supreme court by Arthur A. Niessen, of Philadelphia, who says he owns forty-two shares of the corporation's stock, all that has ever been issued. The petition states that the assets are about $2,000, and that there are no debts or other incumbrances. Attorney Charles F. Diggs represents the petitioner.

Nearly 25,000 people have attended the annual chrysanthemum show of the Department of Agriculture, which has been held during the last week. Eighteen hundred plants were exhibited, representing about 150 varieties of double chrysanthemums, 170 varieties of singles and the pompons. C. L. L.

A COMMERCIAL SNAP

If you grow snaps principally for show, you will not be particularly interested in this ad. But if you grow for profit and want a commercial variety, you will need to take notice. We have just had a verbal report from a commercial test made by a large New York State commercial grower. Our seedling Silver Pink stood FIVE to ONE alongside of some of the muchly advertised varieties. In plain words, our Silver Pink produced five flower spikes to their one. We have always claimed two to one, but this is simply putting it up where it belongs. Our seedling Silver Pink is the one COMMERCIAL SNAPDRAGON. It is a business variety and means profit to every grower.

Fine, healthy, well branched plants, only $4.00 per 100, $35.00 per 1000. New crop seed of same, $1.00 per pkt., 3 for $2.50, 7 for $5.00. Cultural directions free. All orders cash.

LOUISVILLE, KY.

The Market.

Louisville and vicinity were visited by the first frost of the season Tuesday, October 27. For the first frost, it was a heavy one, killing all outdoor stock. The weather has continued cold ever since, with a frost every night. Sunday, November 1, All Saints' day, was a busy day for everybody. Flowers of all kinds were in demand and anybody with stock to sell disposed of it. As the outdoor stock was killed off by the heavy frost, inside stock was in demand.

Various Notes.

There was an error last week in the announcement of the engagement of Wm. Walker's daughter to Louis Kirch. It should have been announced as Miss Bessie Walker, not Miss Edith.

Henry Fuchs and Frank Gottwald were among the busiest florists All Saints' day, as their greenhouses are on the thoroughfare nearest St. Michael's cemetery, in which the main exercises for that day were held.

H. Kleinstarink has completed the installation of two steam boilers at his plant on the Brownsboro road. These are two 50-horse-power boilers, to take the place of one smaller boiler formerly in operation.

G. R. Miller, of the Kunzman Floral Co., who had his shoulder broken this fall, is up again, but unable to be active, as he is not feeling strong yet.

R. J. S.

LEXINGTON, MASS.

Since moving here from Everett, Mass., a short time ago, C. H. Lothrop, proprietor of the Meadowcroft Gardens, has been steadily increasing his business. During the summer he added a few more feet to his greenhouse and is putting to use more of his four acres of land. He has excellent success with his carnations and is growing increased numbers of bedding and pot plants. At present Mr. Lothrop is trying out a sweet-scented cyclamen raised from his own seed. This is so highly scented that, Mr. Lothrop says, a single blossom would scent the greenhouse. This quality combined with the fact that it is a persistent bloomer has led him to experiment with it carefully.

Let us quote you on Lilium Giganteum, Rubrum, Album and Auratum. Let the results convince you of the quality; the price will be right, too.

Greenhouse Heating.

PIPING NEEDS READJUSTMENT.

I have three connected greenhouses, each 22x75 and eleven feet high to the ridge. There are two feet of glass and three feet of boards in the side walls. The south end of the houses is glass; the north end adjoins the workroom. I should like to keep a temperature of 60 degrees in zero weather. At present there are in each side house six 2-inch flows and seven 2-inch returns, and in the middle house three 2-inch flows and three 2-inch returns. The boiler is large enough, but I could not maintain a temperature of 54 degrees in cold weather, though the water in the boiler was at 242 degrees. Kindly tell me whether there is sufficient radiation in the houses for this New York climate. If not, how much additional piping will be required? A. H.

For heating the houses with hot water, using an open tank system, the radiation is insufficient, and the addition of three returns in the outside houses and six in the middle house would be necessary to maintain the temperature desired in the coldest weather. It is stated, however, that a temperature of 242 degrees in the boiler will only maintain 54 degrees, from which it is evident both that the system is a closed one and that the circulation is extremely poor, as with the water in the boiler at 242 degrees there should be no difficulty in securing 70 degrees, and even more, if the water circulates freely.

Having this in mind, I would suggest a readjustment of the system, especially as I would advise putting in more piping at any rate. A good plan would be to put in three 2½-inch flow pipes in each house, placing one about two feet below the ridge and one of the others on each plate. In the outside houses, twelve 2-inch returns would be necessary, with nine in the middle house. One-third of the returns should be upon each wall and the others under the middle benches. If, for any reason, it is inadvisable to have pipes under the center benches, or in the walks of the middle house, it would answer if one 2½-inch flow pipe is carried on each of the plates and five returns upon each wall underneath.

If the top of the boiler is below the level of the walks, it would not be necessary to make use of circulators or other methods of securing a closed system, but if this is not the case a closed system is desirable.

This boiler is guaranteed to do the work and costs less to install and operate. Write for prices and recommendations.

PIPING AN ALBERTA RANGE.

I should like to get your advice in regard to the piping of the three houses shown on the enclosed sketch. In this part of Alberta, Can., the weather becomes decidedly cold at times, with the temperature occasionally as low as 35 degrees below zero. We wish to maintain a temperature of 60 degrees, as we are growing geraniums and other bedding plants. The greenhouses run north and south. House No. 1, on the west side of the range, has a lean-to roof and is 12x75, with wooden walls; the west wall is eight feet high, the east wall six feet high. House No. 2, east of No. 1, is 16x45, with wooden side walls, six feet high. No. 3 is not yet built, but we intend to build it next year, making it

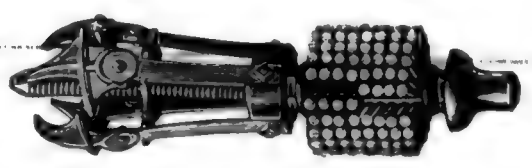
Enclosed find M. O. for balance due on the Boiler. I am well satisfied with the Wilks Heater; it kept an even temperature of 55° in the greenhouse when the thermometer outside registered 40° below during the last spell of cold weather.
Yours respectfully,
OSCAR WAGNER,
813 S. Main Ave.

And here are the reasons:



Wilks Boilers are specially built for greenhouses.
Wilks Boilers are carefully rated.
Wilks Boilers will perfectly heat up to 3000 square feet of glass.
Wilks Boilers hold an even, continuous fire for 12 hours without attention.
Wilks Boilers—well, there are so many good reasons we can't tell them all here.

Pilley's Combination Flue Brush and Scraper

By simply turning the rod or handle, the ends contract until it will readily pass into the flue. Then by turning the handle in an opposite direction the cleaner is gradually expanded until it fits the tube perfectly; the brush following leaves the tube absolutely clean.

16x75 feet. As the sketch shows, an office and a potting shed are attached to the north end of the present houses, and we shall possibly build an addition to the potting shed. In that case, all three houses would be sheltered at the north end.

For heating the two houses, we are at present using an upright boiler of a fire-engine type, with a grate two and one-half feet in diameter. The tubes of the boiler are extremely small, only 1½-inch. We are getting fairly good results, but only by giving the boiler a great deal of attention in the way of firing, cleaning the tubes, etc. In each of the present greenhouses there are a center raised bench and two side benches. The pipes are 2½-inch and are arranged as follows: There are a flow and return about a foot from the roof and a flow and return under each bench, with a

The Value of a Thermostat

LET A FLORIST TELL IT

HERE is what a greenhouse man said in a letter to The Review: "The value of a thermostat in a greenhouse may possibly interest you, so I take the present opportunity of explaining its advantages. Three weeks ago I installed a Standard thermostat, made by the Standard Thermometer Co., putting it in my rose house, 200 feet from the residence. After sundown each day I set the low contact hand at 57 degrees and the high contact hand at 65 degrees. The black temperature hand, to record 60 degrees, plays between these figures. Should the temperature rise or fall, the alarm bell, just over my bed, rings loudly. I consider this instrument a boon to any florist with a medium-sized range, for it dispenses with the services of a night fireman. With correct firing, I can keep a steady temperature of 60 degrees at night in the rose house and also in four other houses, in all about 5000 feet of glass."—THOMAS E. TOWERSON, Spring Station, Ky.

shut-off valve on the top pipes and at the two side benches.

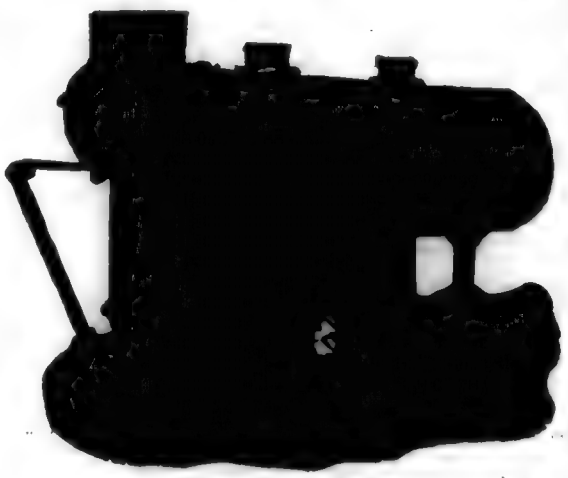
What size of boiler would be required to heat the three houses and what would be the best arrangement of the pipes? As is indicated in the sketch, houses No. 1 and No. 3 extend thirty feet farther south than No. 2, leaving an unoccupied, partly enclosed space at the south end of No. 2. I thought that this enclosed space would be a good location for the boiler room. The present boiler is under the potting shed, at the north end of the houses. J. H. M.

For heating the three houses described, the dimensions of which are 12x75, 16x45 and 16x75, to 60 degrees under the severe conditions mentioned, I would advise the use of a twenty horse-power steam boiler.

To supply the required amount of radiation in the houses, I would suggest running a 2½-inch flow pipe about two feet below the ridge of each house, with twelve 1¼-inch returns in each of the 16-foot houses and nine returns in the lean-to. While it would be possible to heat the houses with one or two fewer returns in each, it would be found that in extremely cold weather the fuel consumption and attention needed would be greatly increased. In arranging the returns, divide them so that there will be as nearly as possible the same number under each bench and upon each of the walls.

WANTS MORE DURABLE STACK.

I have had trouble in getting an iron smokestack that will stand soft coal smoke without rusting out completely in about two years. Would a stack made of either sheet copper or sheet brass be thus affected by the coal smoke? The stack I have in mind is a low one and only twelve inches in diameter; so I can stand the expense if the metals mentioned will stand the use. C. L. W.



Especially if there is much sulphur in the coal, a smokestack of sheet copper would not last any longer than a galvanized sheet-iron stack of the same thickness. A brass stack would probably last somewhat longer, but the extra cost would hardly be repaid. It would be decidedly preferable to put up a stack of brick or reinforced concrete to a height of twelve to sixteen feet. Then, if the expense of carrying up the stack to the desired height with the same material is more than can be met, the remainder can be constructed of heavy vitrified tile or sewer pipe. This will not only be found comparatively cheap, but will last for many years.

The Market.

Business in general has not shown the increase it should during the last week. Monday night, October 26, we were visited by the first killing frost of the season, which, of course, put a quietus on outdoor stock. It is a distinct relief to have the market free from this class of stock, which has retarded the sale of greenhouse-grown stock for so long a time. While the frost helped to clear the market, it did not seem to increase the sales.

Roses are right with us, both in quality and quantity, and are selling fairly well. The stock is exceptionally fine and should bring prices far in advance of what is being realized. Carnations are still in abundant supply, but are being sold cheap to keep the market cleaned up. The stock is in good condition and buyers are getting more than their money's worth.

Mums are the dominating feature just at present. The quantity is enormous and the quality is exceptionally good. The warm weather has brought this stock in heavily and some trouble is experienced in keeping the stock cleaned up. Violets are improving every day and are finding a ready sale. American Beauties are short at this time and the cut is considerably smaller than the demand. This fact is making new friends every day for the Mrs. Chas. Russell rose, which is in good supply. Easter lilies are in light supply and are moving fairly well. Valley always finds a ready market and the stock is disposed of at good prices every day.

Various Notes.

J. Rindfleisch, Beloit, Wis., was in Milwaukee, October 28 to 31, attending the Northwestern Road Congress. Mr. Rindfleisch did not neglect his florist friends, although the sessions of the Congress kept him busy.

Mr. Hayworth, of Smith & Hayworth, Whitewater, Wis., visited the trade Wednesday, October 28. H. J. S.

P. Haasch has obtained a permit to build a greenhouse at his establishment at 1256 Hopkins street. The cost is to be $300.

Business is as good as can be expected. With no great change in market conditions, nearly everybody was busy the latter part of the week, with Hallowe'en decorations. The Market.

All Saints' and All Souls' day cleaned up the local market in a way that has not been possible for some time. All of the florists who have been heard from declare that business was excellent. When this week opened there was little stock of any consequence left over, and, with the limited Monday's receipts, the market was firm. The prices, however, remained at the same low point at which they have been for some time.

The rose cut continues large and is easily sufficient for all immediate requirements. The stems are longer and the flowers better than heretofore. Last week Beauties met with a pretty fair call. Lilies sold tolerably well toward the close of the week. Carnations continue fairly plentiful, but are not in strong demand. Chrysanthemums sold well last week, particularly on Friday and Saturday. The prices realized, however, were rather low. This week's stock of mums was almost an entirely fresh supply; few were carried over from last week. Valley and orchids sell fairly well.

Various Notes.

C. E. Critchell reports a good sale of orchids, valley and Beauties last week.

Julius Baer had a goodly share of the work for the funeral of John Kilgour, the deceased public utilities magnate of this city.

The chrysanthemum show of the E. G. Hill Co. at the end of last week was good and was well attended by the public.

Visitors: W. C. Montgomery, of Dayton, O., and Peter Weiland, of Newcastle, Ind. C. H. H.

Goshen, Ind.—The Colonial Flower Shop certainly was on the map last week. The manager, Miss Dora Brown, had the store beautifully decorated during the jubilee week and on two days gave flower souvenirs to the guests. The store was packed most of the last two days and many times the street was lined with people waiting to get in. The sales were large and everybody seemed well pleased. Special prices on bulbs helped to nearly clean up this line of goods.

Cast Iron Gutters Below Cost

I have just purchased 2650 feet of new cast iron gutters of a standard pattern (see cut). These gutters vary just a trifle in straightness, about ⅛ inch to ¼ inch in a length, and were refused at the foundry on account of a misunderstanding with the purchaser. They are brand new and the prices I am quoting are lower than actual cost at the foundry. The selling price of these gutters was 75 cents per foot. I can furnish them made up in runs as desired, with sash bar brackets for any pitch of roof. These gutters will sell like hot cakes, so hurry your order in today. Cash with order preferred, but will give time to responsible parties.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

The opening of two theaters, several large funerals, a few weddings and an occasional small social function contributed to the flower business here last week. Cooler weather had a tendency to accelerate trade, which, being well distributed, caused a generally good feeling. Chrysanthemums are daily coming better, both in quality and quantity, while carnations are decidedly better in quality and meeting with an increasing demand, although the mums have the call for medium-priced blooms. Roses are in good supply and move well.

Various Notes.

Joseph Morris, head gardener at the Watch House estate, Little Compton, has returned to Boston for the winter.

Abe Liptman, formerly of Atlantic City, has opened a flower stand at the Blackstone hotel, with his brother in charge.

Eugene Seymour has just completed the installation of a new boiler in his greenhouses at Warren.

S. J. Reuter, of Westerly, is marketing a fine crop of chrysanthemums.

George Holmes, of Stickles, N. H., has entered the employ of Charles Hunt.

Thomas Curley reports good business during the last few weeks.

Peter S. Byrnes, of Wickford, has been elected a vice-president and director of the North Kingston Poultry and Improvement Association.

W. H. Tarbox, of West Greenwich, had a unique display at the recent fair at Danbury, Conn. It was a floral sloop made with hundreds of asters. An early frost caused considerable damage to Mr. Tarbox's dahlia fields, notwithstanding the use of field fires.

Carmine Piccirillo has been granted permission to erect a greenhouse 35x 150 feet at 76 Atwood street.

Walter Kelton has opened a new store in the Brownell building, near the Main street bridge, at Pawtucket.

George Fenner, at Cranston, has one large house of Asparagus Sprengeri and plumosus that is coming along in fine shape. He has another large house in carnations from which he is beginning to cut some good stock and a third house which has been put to sweet peas.

Robert Anderson, formerly gardener for Mrs. Daniel Brown, at Wrentham, is now head gardener of the Berry estate at Detroit, Mich.

Charles H. Reid, head gardener for Harry T. Hayward, at Franklin, who was recently severely burned about the face, head and arms while fighting a brush fire, is recovering. W. H. M.

...NEWS NOTES...

Youngstown, O.—A street car that jumped the tracks at Logan avenue and Elm street October 28 tore a hole about twelve feet square in John Walker's greenhouse. After the last accident of a similar character the greenhouse at the corner was shortened, but this time the damage was done just the same.

Lima, O.—Walter N. Jones, in the employ of E. N. Zetlitz, was severely injured October 19 when the motorcycle on which he and another youth were riding crashed into an automobile, which, it is asserted, was on the wrong side of the road and turned too late. Severe scalp wounds and a fracture at the base of the skull were sustained by Mr. Jones.

Syracuse, N. Y.—For the first time in sixteen years, Syracuse is to have a chrysanthemum show this fall. It will be held November 5, 6 and 7, and will be given by the florists and gardeners of this city, the proceeds going to charity. The committee of arrangements includes H. Bannister, W. S. Bultmann, Thomas Christian, Chester Harris and Henry Youell.

Medina, O.—Hammerschmidt & Clark have placed a contract with the Foley Mfg. Co., Chicago, for one house, 21x95 feet, to be completed by December 1. They are building a shed, 18x63, and have completed an underground passage from Mr. Hammerschmidt's residence to the greenhouses. A thermostat has been installed to avoid a freeze-out this coming winter.

Lancaster, Pa.—Judges for the flower show to be held in the Hiemenz auditorium November 6 and 7 are to be S. S. Pennock and Leo Niessen, of Philadelphia, and H. Heusman, of Reading. They were selected at a meeting of the Lancaster County Florists' Association, at which Elmer Weaver, of Ronks, and D. T. Connor, of the Lord & Burnham Co., New York, spoke on greenhouse construction.

Kearney, Neb.—The Kearney Floral Co., of which F. A. Davidson and J. E. Charlson are the owners, finds business better each year, as the public seems to display a greater liking for flowers. The chrysanthemum show of the company, October 31, drew a larger attendance than was even hoped for. Each visitor was given a carnation as a souvenir, and effort was made to get each one's name, but the large number made this impossible. The carnation crop is fine. The poinsettia plants are clear up to the glass, some having stems seven feet long. The blooms are just starting to show color, so that a good crop will be in for Christmas.

The MacNiff Horticultural Co.

56 VESEY STREET, NEW YORK

NEWPORT, R. I.

William B. Gardner, of Wadley & Smythe, has returned to New York for the winter.

Mrs. George D. Widener has purchased an estate on Coggeshall avenue, to be used for garden purposes. Improvements to be made include a large range of glass.

At the recent meeting of the Newport Horticultural Society it was voted that the society accept the invitation of the Newport Garden Association to coöperate in holding an exhibition next June.

Mrs. Jane Carmichael Hunnick, wife of Robert Hunnick, one of the best known of Newport gardeners, died last week. She came to this city from Newcastle-on-the-Tyne, England, where she was born, and had lived for many years in this city.

News has been received here of the death at St. Joseph's hospital, New York, of Edward Casey, formerly of this city. He was for many years gardener for George W. Merritt and later for Mrs. William G. Weild. He removed from Newport about seven years ago and had been sick for about two months. He leaves a widow, one son and two daughters. W. H. M.

Yankton, S. D.—Miss Hazel Kent, landscape artist of the Gurney Seed & Nursery Co., has been in Sioux City, laying out several places there.

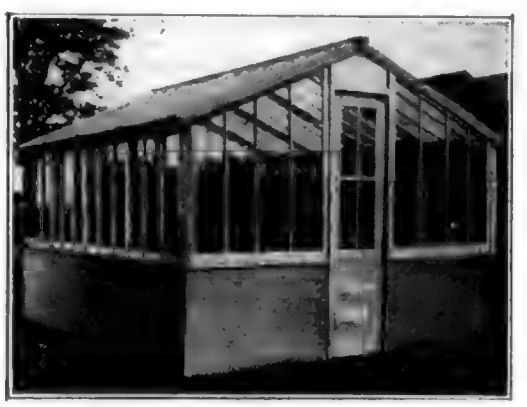
Light is Life to growing plants

But under Sunlight Double Glass Sash they are never darkened by mats or shutters.

Consider this

The old style single layer sash have but a single layer of glass which admits the sun, but cannot exclude the cold or retain the heat unless covered with mats and shutters. These extra covers cost twice as much as an extra layer of glass and they must be put on and off daily. It takes two men or a man and wife to lift the soggy mats and heavy shutters.

This is pure waste of labor and expense as well as light.



Now consider that

56 VESEY STREET, NEW YORK

NEWPORT, R. I.

William B. Gardner, of Wadley & Smythe, has returned to New York for the winter.

Mrs. George D. Widener has purchased an estate on Coggeshall avenue, to be used for garden purposes. Improvements to be made include a large range of glass.

At the recent meeting of the Newport Horticultural Society it was voted that the society accept the invitation of the Newport Garden Association to coöperate in holding an exhibition next June.

Mrs. Jane Carmichael Hunnick, wife of Robert Hunnick, one of the best known of Newport gardeners, died last week. She came to this city from Newcastle-on-the-Tyne, England, where she was born, and had lived for many years in this city.

News has been received here of the death at St. Joseph's hospital, New York, of Edward Casey, formerly of this city. He was for many years gardener for George W. Merritt and later for Mrs. William G. Weild. He removed from Newport about seven years ago and had been sick for about two months. He leaves a widow, one son and two daughters. W. H. M.

Yankton, S. D.—Miss Hazel Kent, landscape artist of the Gurney Seed & Nursery Co., has been in Sioux City, laying out several places there.

Springfield, Ill.—Hembreiker & Cole held their annual fall opening at their greenhouses last week; chrysanthemums were, of course, the principal object of display. Miss Dora Meredith is in charge of the office.

Light is Life to growing plants

But under Sunlight Double Glass Sash they are never darkened by mats or shutters.

Consider this

The old style single layer sash have but a single layer of glass which admits the sun, but cannot exclude the cold or retain the heat unless covered with mats and shutters. These extra covers cost twice as much as an extra layer of glass and they must be put on and off daily. It takes two men or a man and wife to lift the soggy mats and heavy shutters.

This is pure waste of labor and expense as well as light.

Now consider that the Sunlight Double Glass Sash have two layers of glass enclosing an air space ⅝ inches thick, through which the sun's rays pass, but not the cold from without or the stored warmth from within.

Put the Sash on your hot-bed or cold frame, and it is complete. All that remains to do is to prop up the sash on bright or warm days. A child can do this.

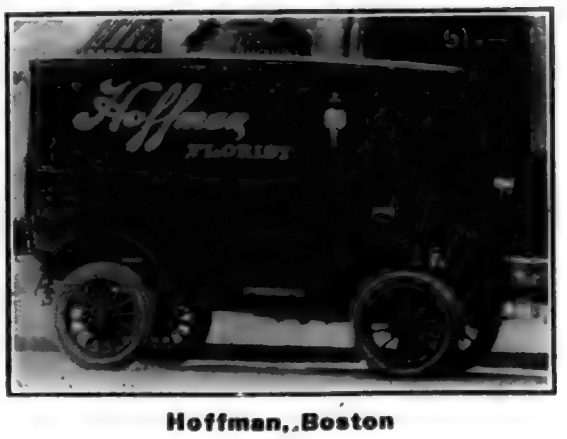
The Autocar

"Used in Every Line of Business"

A Business Builder for Florists

ABILITY to cover wide delivery territory quickly means much to the florist's business. The Autocar, running 50 to 100 miles daily, doing the work of 4 to 6 horses, at a lower operating cost than horse equipment, has proved itself the ideal florist's delivery vehicle. Penn, The Florist, 37-43 Bromfield St., Boston, says, under date of October 10, 1914: "You will be interested in knowing that we expect to order a third Autocar in the near future. We have operated our two Autocars for more than two years with the most satisfactory results. They have given us no trouble to speak of and their value to our business has gone beyond our expectations. For general delivery purposes they have been most practical and economical."



Max Schling, New York

The Autocar is the product of seventeen years' concentration on the manufacture of one model of motor delivery vehicle. It has been adopted by 1700 concerns, many of whom own from 10 to 274 cars each.

H. H. Battles, Philadelphia

The Particular Particulars of the L. & B. Construction

THIS ADVERTISEMENT is written because of the remarks made by one of our customers the other day. He said: "My neighbor bought his last house of 'So-and-So,' because he claimed that your concern was getting to be so big that it couldn't give the attention he wanted to little details."

Now let's look into the matter and see if that is so.

While we were a little concern, it is a fact that one man could look pretty much after all the details. But as soon as we began to grow, responsibilities had to be divided. If you could drop in our factory manager's office some morning, you would find on his desk a report from each one of the factory departments. Every one of these factory departments is really a little business all by itself, conducted by its manager. Every little detail of each department is looked after in the same careful way by each manager, as does our head manager now look after the bigger details of the entire business.

The su eties that all details will be looked after carefully are better than they ever were. But that isn't all—we have installed a large number of labor-saving machines. They have so short-cutted time and reduced costs that we are able better to perfect the little things and finish our houses up better than ever, with no increased cost to you.

View of the greenhouse door taken at the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., Bakerstown, Pa. Notice how the tops of the bar iron side posts have been finished off with angle ends. Other builders are apt to leave them square.

But still that isn't all—every bit of the work that passes out of our factory is thoroughly inspected. We take this particular care so as to insure, as far as possible, our work being right in every particular.

Speaking of some of the little things we do, take a look at this doorway of Fred Burki's, for instance. You will notice that the flat bar iron side posts have the corners cut off at the top. They are not left sticking up there in an unfinished, square end. This, of course, does not cause the house to grow any more roses for Mr. Burki, but it is a great satisfaction when he walks through his houses with his friends to have all the little details finished up in a workmanlike way. If we take such unusual pains in these things, that are not really vital to the house, it stands to reason that we do give an equal amount of care and attention to the things that are vital.

Isn't this, then, the kind of a house you want to put your money in?

Want to talk it over? Say when and where and we'll be there.

CARNATIONS.

CARNATIONS—FIELD PLANTS.

My stock this year is in extra fine shape, bright, bushy, thrifty and in fine growing condition. 75% of my orders this fall have been from old customers, who have been so satisfied with my treatment of their previous orders that they wish my stock again. Remember, I specialize in this line and spare no effort to produce stock that will make customers and hold them. I dig every order myself and personally supervise all packing, which often means much to the buyer.

"Mr. A. A. Gannett, Geneva, N. Y. Dear Sir: Carnations received Oct. 16, and write to thank you for the fine plants you sent me."—Wm. McLennan, Oneonta, N. Y.

NO FROST in this locality to harm carnations until after Nov. 1. Any stock unsold after Nov. 1 will be carefully protected from frost. No. 2 stock is just as good as No. 1, except in size.

PANSIES.

PANSY PARK PERFECTION is the most thoroughbred strain of giant show and fancy pansies, the flowers of largest size and most perfect form. I have made growing of pansy seeds and plants a specialty for 40 years, and it is the result of many years of breeding and selection. It also contains every variety introduced by foreign growers to date. Some of many reports: "The pansy plants all look like good, healthy, stocky plants, and we feel will come up to all expectations." Henry J. Hass & Son, Newport, R. I. "I would like to get 4000 or 5000 of your pansy plants. I saw a house of pansies from your stock last winter and they were the finest I ever saw." Harry W. Stewart, Rhinebeck, N. Y. An immense stock of fine field-grown plants from seed sown in August in sandy soil, thinly, broadcast, so that the plants grow short and stocky, with extra good roots. Over 75 varieties mixed, the reds, bronzes and best fancy sorts in large proportion, 1000, $3.00; 500, $1.75; 5000, $14.00; 10,000, $27.000. Delivery by express in good condition guaranteed. Cash.

Cast Iron Gutters Below Cost

I have just purchased 2650 feet of new cast iron gutters of a standard pattern (see cut). These gutters vary just a trifle in straightness, about ⅛ inch to ¼ inch in a length, and were refused at the foundry on account of a misunderstanding with the purchaser. They are brand new and the prices I am quoting are lower than actual cost at the foundry. The selling price of these gutters was 75 cents per foot. I can furnish them made up in runs as desired, with sash bar brackets for any pitch of roof. These gutters will sell like hot cakes, so hurry your order in today. Cash with order preferred, but will give time to responsible parties.

Must be Sold Quick—Send Your Order at Once

PRICE 8 feet 4 inch lengths, up to 100 feet, 50c per foot; over 100 feet, 48c per foot; over 700 feet, 46c per foot, F. O. B. Chicago. Includes sash bar brackets and all fittings

Cast Iron Gutters Below Cost

I have just purchased 2650 feet of new cast iron gutters of a standard pattern (see cut). These gutters vary just a trifle in straightness, about ⅛ inch to ¼ inch in a length, and were refused at the foundry on account of a misunderstanding with the purchaser. They are brand new and the prices I am quoting are lower than actual cost at the foundry. The selling price of these gutters was 75 cents per foot. I can furnish them made up in runs as desired, with sash bar brackets for any pitch of roof. These gutters will sell like hot cakes, so hurry your order in today. Cash with order preferred, but will give time to responsible parties.

Must be Sold Quick—Send Your Order at Once

PRICE 8 feet 4 inch lengths, up to 100 feet, 50c per foot; over 100 feet, 48c per foot; over 700 feet, 46c per foot, F. O. B. Chicago. Includes sash bar brackets and all fittings

Two Houses 60 x 500 feet, Moninger "ALL-STEEL" (Taken October 1)

The Big Gullett Job Is Going Right Along

When you want an iron frame house that is really strong, you will get our "all steel" type. Here is a house with all the "frills and fancies" omitted. It's so good that the other fellows send out their draftsmen and salesmen with pencil and paper to copy it. We are proud of it. You can't keep a good thing down, so if you are planning on an iron frame house it's time now to talk with us. You'll find us pleasant people to talk to and deal with. "What isn't right we make right." All our customers are our friends. Suppose you ask Gullett about us, or, better still, come down to Lincoln, Ill., and see the place.

Work is now being started on the third house 60 x 500. We work all winter.

OUR ANNUAL FREIGHT ALLOWANCE STARTS DECEMBER 1

384-page Catalogue, cloth-bound, weighs 2 lbs., covers everything for the greenhouse. Send for it. Estimates in detail and blue print plans sent free.
